A large portion of the 10,000 Indians who appear in the screen version of Zane Grey's great tribute to a fast disappearing race took part in the making of these scenes. They entailed the construction of huge settings in the almost inaccessible Sagi Canyon in northern Arizona, and also the building of the largest individual dwelling erected on the great Lasky ranch in the San Fernando Valley, California, in years.

The cliffdwellers reproduced on the Lasky ranch constitute a reproduction of the Betatakin and Kitsel cliff houses as they would appear if they were restored to their majestic grandeur of 3,000 years ago. More than 100,000 feet of lumber and 63 tons of plaster went into their building. To have transported these materials over torturous trails in Arizona would have constituted an engineering feat beyond the present skill of mankind.

This is just one of the hundreds of episodes that go to make up The Vanishing American, opening on Sunday at the Palace theater. Richard Dix appears as the Indian hero of the story while Lois Wilson, Noah Beery and Malcolm McGregor complete the list of featured players. The adaptation of Zane Grey's story to the screen was made by Lucien Hubbard. Ethel Doherty wrote the continuity. George B. Seitz directed.

Broadway Theatre.

With a clever Broadway cast the scintillating new Courtenay Savage comedy, "They All Want Something," dealing with a hectic existence in affluent Connecticut will be sent to the Broadway theatre next Monday night by Herman Gantvoort one of New York's most successful and active producers.

The players have been chosen with the sole thought of pleasing a public somewhat play tired at this season of the year and when it makes its New York premier shortly after leaving Norwich, those who have seen the play predict that it will duplicate the success of "The Nervous Wreck" which was adapted from a book by E. J. Rath who also furnished the theme for "They All Want Something."

The cast for "They All Want Something" was hand picked and then carefully sorted and on Monday night the theatregoers of this city will see what Director Hurley calls the one hundred per cent. cast.

In this select gathering of comedians, comediennes and farceurs will be found Helen Spring, Frederick Burton, Valerie Dade the dancer, Camilla Crume, Billy Quinn, Johnny Lewis, Irene Shirley, Jack Irwin, Helen Ambrose, John Gallaudet, Joseph Green and Edward Pawley.

Among the recent Broadway successes in which members of the cast of "They All Want Something," have appeared are "White Collars," "The Crooked Friday," "Spooks," "Dearest Enemy," "Adrienne," "When You Smile," "Jane Our Stranger," "Hells Bells," "Love 'Em and Leave 'Em," "The Jest," "They Knew What They Wanted," and many others. All of which the producer claims is justification for his assertion that he has picked a well nigh perfect cast.

And then as if for good measure attention is called to the fact that William T. Tilden, 2nd, Davis cup tennis champion six times "hand running" so to speak is the feature member of the company. Tilden's success on stage and screen during the past three years has been phenomenal.

Both the miser and the spendthrift think each other foolish—and they are.

POETRY

To May

Month of the clear, unclouded sky,
Thou childhood of the year,
To pilgrims from a world gone by
Bring life's springtime more near.
Oh, we have come a weary way,
Give back our wonderland of May!

Give us to smile through childhood's tears
As sunlight smiles through showers.
Give us along the road of years
To gather childhood's flowers
And bind them in a garland rare
To make life sweeter and more fair.

Give us the joy of little things
That made our childish treasure,
The buttercup, the lark that sings
And brims our heart's full measure.
Give us our fairies back again
And childhood's faith unmarred by pain.

Give us the child's imaginings
Fraught with poetic fancy
That touches all the common things
With wand of necromancy.
Give us to see with childhood's eye
What marvels round about us lie.

Give us the pure, unshadowed dream,
The innocence of vision
That we may follow childhood's gleam
Unto bright fields Elysian.
Give us to hear with childhood's ears
The music of the heavenly spheres.

Give us to love as children love,
With single heart's devotion,
As boundless as the sky above,
As deep as is the ocean;
The love that merged within the whole
Is of the universe the soul.

Month of the clear, unclouded sky,
Thou childhood of the year,
To pilgrims from a world gone by,
Bring life's springtime more near.
Oh, we have come a weary way,
Give back our wonderland of May!
—Lydia Noble in Boston Transcript.

England First

Self against Self! And England—what of her?
England, that like a laboring Titan rose
Upright, beneath a load none else could bear,
And shamed the hope of all her envious foes?

They hoped to see her broken; to see her fall.
She towered to her full stature through the night;
And, on her conquering face, before them all,
Caught the first splendor of the world's new light.

Self, at blind war with Self, today she stands;
As once her Shakespeare, with his heart on fire,
Foretold her; while those eager alien hands
In the outer dark prepare her funeral pyre.

In such a war, the very victors lose!
Each for defeat; or all for England?—choose.
—Alfred Noyes in London Morning Post.

NORWICH TOWN

An entertaining programme arranged by Mrs. Beswick J. P. Brown, lecturer of Norwich grange, Patrons of Husbandry No. 172, was given at the First Methodist Episcopal church Friday evening, before a large and enthusiastic audience, the participants comprising members of the grange. The numbers were announced by Mrs. Richard Carter, president of the Methodist Young People's Christian Endeavor society, under whose auspices the entertainment was given. United the society 526. The programme follows: Piano solo, Miss Faith Ryan; Peak Sisters, playlet by a company of women from Norwich grange; plantation songs with guitar accompaniment, also instrumental numbers with harmonica and guitar played at the same time, by Herbert Spencer; recitation, The Parson's Call, Mrs. Anna Woods; vocal solo, Until, Lewis Aldrich, with Miss Florence M. Brown, accompanying at the piano. The Peak Sisters were Keziah, in charge of these young and delicate girls, Myra Waters; Dorothy, who took lessons in a preservatory, Grace Fowler; Bethia, tells of the Boston girl, Ora Spencer; Maria, couldn't tell chicken from turkey, Ivy Peckham; Betsey, deaf and dumb, but; does her part well, Mary Austin; Sophia, the put-up of the Peaks, Bessie Murray; Belinda, who liked peppermint, Eva Higgins; Emmeline, very quiet and lady-like, Belle Rathbone; Clementine, who sings like a lark, Anna Woods; Mehitabel, who feels sorry of Keziah; Lena Pukallus, Mrs. Ida Richardson was the accompanist. Miss Josephine Rogers was in charge of the candy table, assisted by Miss Isabel Gimbel and Miss Doris Rose, who, between the numbers, dispensed candy through the audience. After the entertainment, home-made cake was sold by Mrs. William Weaver.

Rev. A. E. Whitten, pastor of the Norwich Town Methodist church, and Mrs. Richard Carter and Miss Hilizabeth Gifford, the last two members delegates from this church, attended the Epworth league convention, of Norwich district, held in Willimantic on Saturday.

Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, pastor of the First Congregational church, with the three delegates from this church, Rev. and Mrs. Charles E. Reeves, and Organist Herbert L. Terrington, will go to New London today (Tuesday) to attend the all-day session of the New London association of Congregational Churches and Ministers, to be held at the First Church of Christ, Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor.

At Norwich Town Congregational church Sunday morning, the theme of Rev. Mr. Bailey's sermon was Sincerity. The text was John 1-47. "Jesus saw Nathaniel coming to Him, and

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

New York:

Stocks: Heavy, motor shares react. Bonds: Steady. Warner Sugar issues recover.

Foreign exchanges: Lower, French and Belgian francs plunge to record lows.

Cotton: Barely steady, predictions showers southwest.

Sugar: Lower, easier spot market.

Coffee: Firm. European buying.

Chicago:

Wheat: Steady, better export demand.

Corn: Higher, light receipts.

Cattle: Irregular.

MARKET WAS DULL

NEW YORK, May 19—(AP)—The line of least resistance was again downward in today's stock market, with the general public apparently taking little interest in the proceedings. Professional operators met with little opposition when they renewed selling pressure against the motors, rubbers and public utilities. The day's sales fell just short of 1,000,000 shares.

The continued weakness of French and Belgian francs, which crashed to new low records for all time at 2.73 cents each had a depressing effect on sentiment in financial circles, but it is doubtful whether it actually caused any liquidation of stocks. French and Belgian bonds, however, were heavy.

Except for a further extension of recent gasoline price advances publication of a private report that the daily average of crude oil output exceeded the 2,000,000 barrel mark last week for the first time this year and a few earnings reports, there was little in the day's trade news to attract attention. March shipments of tires totalled 3,458,445, as compared with 3,362,812 in the same month last year, according to the Rubber Association of America, representing about 75 per cent of the industry. Copper deliveries in the first quarter were reported to be 15 per cent above those of the corresponding period last year.

Thirty five individual stocks sank to their lowest prices of the year. The list included such diversified issues as American and Foreign Power, American Home Products, American Radiator, American Zinc and Lead, Bethlehem Steel, Childs and Company Commercial Credit, Cuba Cane Sugar preferred, Electric Refrigeration, First National Pictures preferred, Hayes Wheel, Mallinson & Company, Montgomery Ward, Moon Motors, National Distillers, Standard Plate Glass, Studebaker, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe; U. S. Ribbon and Ward Baking "B".

Except for the heavy selling of the Chicago and Alton issues, which were depressed to new low levels for the year in anticipation of a stiff assessment under the pending reorganization plan, the rail issues were well supported, the average of 20 leading issues actually closing higher on the day. Net gains of a point or more were recorded by Atlantic Coast Line, Canadian Pacific, Lackawanna and Norfolk and Southern.

Heavy accumulation of Lago Oil, which advanced over a point to 22 1-4, the highest price since it was listed about a week ago, featured the oil group.

Buying of this issue accompanied the announcement of the completion of the company's fifty eighth well, the last 55 of which have been brought in without the development of a dry hole. Mariand crossed 57 for the first time in months, and Pan-American crossed 67, but both fell below these levels at the close on profit taking.

Commodity markets were quiet and irregular. Active wheat and cotton futures closed practically unchanged. Raw sugar was quoted 1-16 of a cent a pound lower, and the futures also showed an easier tone. Coffee advanced 16 to 39 points on buying for European account. Cotton seed oil prices advanced 29 to 71 points to new high records for the year. Buying influenced by the bullish census bureau report indicating April consumption of 283,000 bales in excess of considerably above ideal expectations.

Call money renewed at 3 3-4 per cent, and held steady at that figure all day. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Renewed weakness of French and Belgian francs overshadowed all other developments in the irregular exchange market. Demand sterling ruled about 3-16 of one cent lower, around $4.86. But Italian lire rallied another 10 points to around 4.70 cents. Norwegian kroner advanced 5 points to around 21.75 cents, but changes in the other important European rates were small and generally unimportant.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, May 19—(AP)—Moderate improvement in the demand for seasoned investment bonds today failed to turn the market out of the narrow trading rut in which it had been drifting. Prices of domestic issues tended upward in the early dealings, but gains were not fully maintained, while reactionary tendencies dominated the foreign list.

With French and Belgian currencies plunging to record low levels, the resistance of these bonds to selling pressure weakened perceptibly and losses of more than a point were recorded by some of the French obligations. Signs of renewed speculative selling appeared as the result of the unsettled financial situation at Paris. Polish bonds also suffered another relapse although they held slightly above the record low levels recently established.

Movements of the Brazilian issues were closely watched in view of the forthcoming financing for this country, but the changes were insignificant. Progress in the loan negotiations has reached a point which may permit flotation of the $30,000,000 this week, according to investment circles which expect the new obligations to bear an interest rate of 6 1-2 per cent, the lowest so far obtained by Brazil in this market.

One of the features of trading in domestic corporation bonds was the lively rally in Warner Sugar 7s, following assurances that interest payments would be promptly met despite recent operating losses sustained by the company, the 1939 maturity advanced more than 3 points to 71 while the issue of 1941 recovered 2 points to above 88. Skelly and Sinclair liens led an upward movement in the oils and Pillsbury Flour 6s gave a good display of independent strength.

Despite the slump in Chicago and Alton stocks to new low levels, the road's bonds maintained a firm tone. Fears of heavy assessments were reported to have caused switching from the shares to the 3 and 3 1-2 per cent bonds, which probably will be little disturbed in the reorganization. Missouri Pacific, Frisco and Nickel Plate issues attracted fresh buying.

Among the new offerings scheduled for tomorrow is an issue of $10,083,000 Westchester county, New York, 4 1-4 per cent. bonds, priced to yield 3.85 to 4 per cent, according to maturities ranging from 1928

RIGHT OF WAY ON STURTEVANT ST. DISPUTED

Trial of the case of Frank Awisyo against Josephine Isbicki, both of this city, was started Monday before Judge Charles B. Waller in the court of common pleas in session in Norwich. The action was brought to determine to whom a right of way on Sturtevant street belongs. Damages of $500 are asked by the plaintiff.

It is alleged that on April 22, 1925, the plaintiff was and has been in possession of real estate on Sturtevant avenue and was also the owner in fee of a certain private road or passageway next easterly of Yantic cove. The land is the only available way by which the plaintiff can pass by teams or other vehicles. It is alleged that the defendant has at various times obstructed the right of way. An injunction against the defendant is asked.

The case was heard and at the close the judge took the papers.

MISSIONARY SPEAKERS ADDRESSED
BAPTIST WOMEN'S COUNTY MEETING

Miss Alice M. Dean of this city was re-elected president of the Woman's Baptist Mission society of the New London association at the association's annual meeting Tuesday at the First Baptist church, this city. There were morning and afternoon sessions and the attendance of delegates from various sections of the county numbered about 80.

With Miss Dean presiding, the morning session opened at 10:30 o'clock, the devotional service being led by Mrs. E. H. Palmer of this city. After the devotional service Mrs. Louis A. Wheeler presented her report as secretary and the treasurer's report was given by Miss Grace Stetson. Under the general topic of Our Achievements the following talks were given:

Mission Education, Mrs. C. E. Gardner of Waterford; White Cross Overseer, Mrs. Henry Sebastian, Norwich; assn. Mrs. Henry Sebastian, Norwich; White Cross Overland, Mrs. M. S. Anderson of Waterford; World Wide Guild, Mrs. John Lyman, New London; Children's World Crusade, Mrs. Charles A. Hagberg, Norwich; general report, Mrs. C. E. Gardner, Waterford.

Miss Justine Briggs entertained with a solo after which there was an interesting address on mission work by Miss Goldie Bailey of Wood Island, Alaska. Then followed a Christian Americanization forum which was conducted by Mrs. C. C. Glidersleeve of this city. The closing number on the programme for the morning session was Our Book Table, conducted by Mrs. C. E. Ellis of this city. Adjournment was taken about 12:30 o'clock for dinner served in the church parlors.

About 3 o'clock the afternoon session was called to order by Miss Dean, the devotional period being led by Mrs. L. A. Hurlbut of this city. The election of officers then took place and resulted as follows:

President, Miss Alice Dean, Norwich; first vice president, Mrs. Nathan Whiting, Norwich; second vice president, Mrs. Lucian Beebe, New London; secretary, Mrs. L. A. Wheeler, Norwich; treasurer, Mrs. H. I. Peckham, Norwich.

Mrs. George O. Gadbois of New London, spoke on The Golden Anniversary and Mrs. David A. Pitt of this city spoke on Our State Meeting. The offering and roll call was followed by a solo by Miss Marion Browning after which Mrs. C. G. Fielder of Gauhati, Assam, gave a splendid address on mission work in that country. The meeting closed with a dramatized story by the C. W. C. of the First Baptist, church, adjournment being taken about 4 o'clock.

Mrs. Fielder, who is wife of a missionary in Assam, located in the northern part of India, with a population of 17,000 people, dealt in her address with Hinduism, Amanism and Mohammedanism. These make a diversity of languages and difficulty in introducing Christianity to that country. She said the work in Lewis Memorial hall, of which Mr. Fielder is the superintendent, is similar to Y. M. C. A. work. The modern Hindu boy is mixing more with others than his father did. Railroads have made progress easier. The Baptist missionary society supports this station and workers and monetary assistance are always available.

Miss Bailey, a teacher and house mother in an orphanage at Kodiak, Alaska, has charge of about 50 boys and girls. This is the only Baptist center in that vicinity as the Alaskan villages have Russian churches still. Because of inadequate equipment, children have to be turned away from the home. The children take an active part in church work. Due to a fire the main building was destroyed and most of the work is carried on in the nearby church. New equipment is needed at the home and it is hoped to have this new equipment by next year.

COMMON PLEAS COURT HEARS NOTE CASE

Trial in the case of Andrew Mikel of New London against Frank Drozd, proprietor of the American and European bakery, formerly located in Main street, which was recently attached by a number of creditors was all but completed in the court of common pleas at New London Tuesday before Judge Charles B. Waller. Mikel sues to recover on two notes aggregating $700.

Drozd, who left town some few weeks ago, and who could not be located at the time Deputy Sheriffs Manuel J. Martin and J. H. Tubbs placed the attachments arrived back and was in court Tuesday. It is understood that the defendant made a trip to the West Indies.

A number of witnesses were called in the case, which included the plaintiff, Mikel, Samuel T. Adams, clerk of the police court, Winder E. Reed, jailer, the defendant Drozd, his wife and two sisters-in-law. The defendant denies that he owes the money; admits he borrowed $500 but denies borrowing the other $200. Attorney William T. Conner appeared for the plaintiff and Attorneys Clayton B. Smith and Harry C. Brogan for the defendant.

The plaintiff in his testimony stated that while he was serving a 90-day jail term some time ago, he left his bank book with the late George Beck, who had some bonds for him, and that the latter loaned the $700 to Drozd by consent of Mikel.

At the conclusion of the testimony at recess time the case was continued until Saturday in order that Attorney Conner might secure a check which would show that the lawyer on one occasion paid a fine for the plaintiff in police court; that Mikel and he went to the post office where Mikel drew out a sum of money from a postal saving account, paying back Attorney Connor the sum expended.

COAST GUARD EXAMINATIONS FOR TEMPORARY ENSIGNS

In order to bring the commissioned personnel up to the quota determined upon the United States Coast Guard will hold examinations in New London and other cities on July 6 for appointment of ensigns, temporary grade. An excellent opportunity for men of the right calibre to become temporary officers in this old established service is offered through these examinations, and local Coast Guard officials are hopeful that many young men of this vicinity will qualify for the test.

Temporary officers while in active service receive the same pay allowances and benefits as permanent officers ad promition is just as rapid. The only difference between the two grades is that the temporary officers are not eligible for retirement. All applicants will be graded on three counts, educational and professional, qualifications and adaptability. The educational examination will cover English and American literature, American history and general information. A candidate who is a graduate of an accredited college, or who has satisfactorily completed two years of study at an accredited college may be excused from taking this educational examination in the discretion of the commandant of the Coast Guard. The professional examination will carry seamanship and navigation. In the adaptability tests, candidates will be rated on aptitude for the service as shown by testimonials, documentary evidence of previous experience, personality, tact, appearance, general demeanor, and probable ability to command men.

Citizens between the ages of 21 and 30 are eligible to take the examination and may secure additional information and application forms at the state pier or from Coast Guard headquarters at Washington.

WANTS STATE BUILDING FOR MOTOR VEHICLE DEPT.

Comptroller Frederic M. Salmon continues to think that with an expenditure of $100,000 the state could erect and equip a building for the motor vehicle department which would provide it with ample floor space for offices for the next ten or fifteen years, and relieve the pressure on the capitol at Hartford. The department now occupies thirty per cent of the floor space in the capitol. The $2,000,000 or $3,000,000 which a new state office building would cost would be better spent in making the different institutional buildings of the state fire proof and in providing more room for them," said the comptroller the other day.

If the motor vehicle department was moved from the capitol to a building of its own the state department of education could be transferred back to the capitol where it would be more accessible to the general public, added the comptroller. It is understood that in deference to Governor Trumbull's objection the plan of erecting a building on the land surrounding the state armory has been practically abandoned by the state officials and others who have been considering the necessity of finding additional floor space for the official activities of the state.

Comptroller Salmon is very much impressed with the importance of fire proofing the institutions of the state. He has a personal knowledge of the buildings and he dreads to contemplate the possible consequences of an outbreak of fire in some of them.

STATE HIGHWAY OFFICE ESTABLISHED AT MIDDLETOWN

The establishment of a division engineer's office at Middletown for the state highway department was announced Tuesday. This will increase the number of such offices throughout the state to six. Twenty-seven towns in Hartford, New Haven and Middlesex counties will comprise the new district, which have supervision over the department's road surveys, and construction activities.

The territory, which was formerly part of the Hartford, New Haven and Norwich divisions, is as follows: Rocky Hill, Berlin, Meriden, Wallingford, Guilford, Madison, Durham, Middlefield, Middletown, Cromwell, Portland, East Hampton, Marlboro, Haddam, East Haddam, Chester, Killingworth, Saybrook, Westbrook, Essex, Old Lyme, Lyme, Colchester, Salem, East Lyme, Clinton and Old Saybrook.

Daniel H. B. Starr, now assistant division engineer at Norwich, has been appointed Middletown division engineer, and John Sochrens, now resident engineer in charge of the Middletown branch office, is appointed assistant engineer. The changes will become effective June 1st. The entire new force of inspectors and engineering employes will be transferred from other engineering offices, with no additional new help required.

SETTLEMENT MADE BEFORE SUIT CAME TO TRIAL

Trial of the $2,000 damage suit of William M. McNicol of Jewett City against Tony and Katherine Tessar of that place was expected to take place in the superior court here Tuesday afternoon before Judge Earnest C. Simpson, but a settlement was effected out of court before the suit came to trial.

Mr. McNicol had made deposit of $500 on his agreement to buy the so-called Williams property of 18 acres, the defendants agreeing to sell, but when he tendered the balance of $5,395 agreed upon the defendants refused to sell.

It is understood that by the settlement made, Mr. McNicol will receive a deed to the property and the defendants will receive about $6,000.

Donovan men are at work in various sections scarifying, rolling and getting ready for the application of tarvia. Hamilton avenue is being scarified and rolled in preparation for tarvia. Cornwallstown road is undergoing repairs and the road scraper is at work on Smith avenue which is to receive an application of tarvia.

A new top dressing is being put on Park street which is also to receive an application of tarvia, and the department is getting ready to place tarvia on a number of other streets. Some work has been done on Asylum street which has been top dressed with gravel.

Tar patch work has been done on West Main, Thames and West Thames street, Central avenue, Cliff, Willow, Chestnut, Bath, Church, Broadway, Washington and Williams streets, Lincoln avenue, Broad street, McKinley avenue, Maple street, Ann street, Alice street and Mt. JOHN TROLAND WRITES FOR PLUMBERS' YEAR BOOK

John Troland of Winchester Place, Norwich, has returned from New Haven, where he attended the 36th annual convention and meeting of the Master Plumbers' association of Connecticut. Mr. Troland met many old friends and made many new ones; he was present at the banquets and lunches, entertainments and dances arranged during the two days, May 11-12.

A most elaborate year book was issued as a souvenir of the big meeting and this contained a cut of Mr. Troland, with a summary which he contributed of conditions in the plumbing industry of the state, under the title, "Some Recollections—Past and Present." Mr. Troland glorified the plumber of earlier times, who was a real artist, not merely a constructive mechanic, who, from first to last was a real worker in lead, as his name plumber implied. He touched upon the ethics of the trade, the matter of advertising, jokes at the expense of the craft, organization, etc.

The directory of the Master Plumbers' association of the state lists as members from Norwich Mr. Troland, now retired, as an honorary member and J. P. Barstow & Company.

The New Haven plumbers gave their visiting brethren the time of their lives, and had luncheons, motor trips, dances and most generous entertainment for the women friends and relatives of the visiting plumbers from all about the state.

OPPONENTS HAVE CONCEDED THE NOMINATION OF VARE

With Seven-eights of the Votes Counted, Vare Has a Plurality of Approximately 100,000—Senator Pepper Ascribes His Defeat to "the Organization"—Governor Pinchot Would Neither Confirm Nor Deny Rumors That He Would Become an Independent Candidate For the Senatorship.

PHILADELPHIA, May 19.—(AP)—Representative William S. Vare, of Philadelphia, an avowed "wet" is the choice of Pennsylvania republicans as their nominee for United States senator.

The overwhelming endorsement given his candidacy in his home city was sufficient to assure Vare a plurality approximating 100,000 tonight with seven-eighths of the votes counted, although the combined votes of his two opponents, classed as dry, exceeded the winners' total by 200,000.

His opponents in the three cornered primary fight, which ended at the polls yesterday, Senator George Wharton Pepper and Governor Gifford Pinchot, conceded his nomination as returns from outlying districts fail by a wide margin to overcome the Philadelphia lead.

His nearest rival, Senator Pepper, whose candidacy had the backing of some of the dry forces and of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, attributed the Vare victory to "the organization" and declared an analysis of the returns failed to show any issue upon which the contest turned.

"The greatest majority of the votes throughout the state wanted me, while the organization wanted Vare," he said.

Governor Pinchot made no attempt to explain the result.

"Mr. Vare has won and I have lost," he said. After admitting it had been his hope, by winning the nomination, to carry on his work "in defending the 18th amendment, forestry, conservation and giant power," he declared he will continue that work anyhow."

Reports that Governor Pinchot may become an independent candidate for the senatorship were in the air during the campaign, but even when brought to the governor's attention, failed to bring any expression from him. In his statement today, he said he had made a "clean-cut, open fight for certain great definite principles and "m glad I made it."

"In the battle for these principles it is better to have fought and lost than never to have fought at all," he said.

Asked if anything in his statement could be construed as meaning that he would run independently in the general election next November, he replied:

"I have nothing to add to the statement."

Returns tonight from 7415 districts of the 8281 in the state gave Vare a plurality of 102,585 over Pepper. Vare's vote was 585,199, and Pepper's 441,-314 in the same districts. Pinchot received 312,706.

The combined vote of the two candidates classed as dry, Pepper and Pinchot, exceeded that of Vare by more than 200,000. Together they received 754,020 votes in the 7415 districts.

The total republican vote was the largest ever cast in a state primary. With 866 districts to report it was 1,-379,218.

Other candidates on the Vare ticket were leading their opponents in the incomplete returns although by small pluralities than the congressman.

The Beidleman vote failed to keep up with that for Vare in the returns from many counties outside of Philadelphia, particularly in western Pennsylvania. Starting out in Philadelphia with a plurality of 173,784 its lead gradually was whittled down, first in Allegheny county and then in other outlying districts.

WILLIAM S. VARE,

VARE'S PLURALITY HAS DROPPED BELOW 100,000

PHILADELPHIA, May 19.—(AP)—Congressman William S. Vare's plurality over Senator George Wharton Pepper in the contest for the republican nomination for United States senator dropped below 100,000 tonight for the first time since the tabulation of unofficial returns began. Figures for 7,-656 districts out of 8281 in the state gave Vare a lead of 98,592.

Vare's vote was 588,899; Pepper's 485,247. Governor Pinchot, running third in the contest, had 319,286 votes in these districts.

VERDICT RENDERED IN THE JOHNSON CASE

NEW HAVEN, May 19.—(AP)—Joseph Macri, Nick de Meoli and Charles L. Pavis, were sent to the reformatory, while Edward Collins, their companion in the robbery of Henry S. Johnson on September 6, was placed on probation, execution being suspended, in his case on a reformato sentence, by Judge E. M. Yeomans in criminal superior court here today.

The jury found Collins and Pavis guilty of robbery with violence. Macri and De Meoli changed their pleas to nolo contendre while the trial was in progress.

The trial of Collins and Pavis came to an end yesterday. Judge Yeomans charged the jury this morning and after about two hours deliberation, the jury returned its verdict.

When Collins heard the decision he collapsed and had to be revived while court was in recess. Pavis showed no signs of emotion. The four men were then called to the bar and were sentenced. Three were sent to the reformatory but in the case of Collins court suspended sentence because of the wife and child of the young man.

The four have been in jail since last fall and all with the exception of Collins will be forced to remain in the reformatory for at least 18 months.

The body of Johnson is to be found in West Haven on the morning of September 8, last. It developed during the trial that the four men had carried the man to the spot in a taxicab the night before, having found him apparently in an intoxicated condition at Congress avenue and Commerce street.

ORGANIZED INDUSTRY THE SECRET OF PROSPERITY

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(AP)—Organized industry was praised tonight by Secretary Mellon as "the secret of America's prosperity, the key to future growth and the justification of big business," in an address delivered over the radio to the convention of the National Electric Light association at Atlantic City.

Appearing for a sympathetic attitude toward business generally, Mr. Mellon declared pioneer conditions in industry have passed and "we can no longer count solely on our boundless resources but must depend on the increasing efficiency of our industrial system."

"Because business is big it is not necessarily a menace," the treasury secretary said. "The justification for big business is that it serves the public more efficiently than many small businesses could do in that particular line."

Higher wages and reduced cost of [illegible] are not find that it pays to manufacture in quantity and to make a larger volume of small profits."

JURY COMPLETED FOR THE TRIAL OF WHITTEMORE

BALTIMORE, May 12.—(AP)—A jury was completed late today to try Richard Reese Whittemore for the murder of Robert H. Holtman, Maryland penitentiary guard, who was struck down when Whittemore escaped in February, 1926.

Selection of the jury, speeded by a ruling of Criminal Court Judge Eugene O'Dunne that counsel might not question veniremen concerning their personal affairs, was accomplished in five hours, exception to the ruling, as an innovation in Baltimore courts, was taken by Edgar Allen Poe, Whittemore's counsel, who intimated he would use it as ground for appeal should the state win its case.

Whittemore took the opening day of his trial calmly, sitting at the counsel table with his single attorney, appointed by the court. He conversed freely with Poe and eied up every prospective juror with level gaze.

When, the jury complete, State's Attorney Hart B. O'Connor—himself only two years older than the 27 year old "Candy Kid"—leveled a finger at him and demanded that the jury certify his guilt, the prisoner did not flinch. His eyes wandered about the court room and now and then set on those of his wife, Margaret, and his father, John Rawlings Whittemore, seated a few feet to the rear.

Whittemore was released to Baltimore for trial after Buffalo, N. Y., jury failed to convict him of a murder charge in connection with a $92,000 bank robbery.

NEW HAVEN FIREMEN WERE OVERCOME BY GAS

NEW HAVEN, May 19.—(AP)—The firemen who were partially overcome by smoke and illuminating gas while fighting a fire in the cellar of Chilli's restaurant in Church street this morning, were reported tonight as being entirely recovered. NEW MEASUREMENTS FOR CHILD'S MENTAL GROWTH

ATLANTIC CITY, May 19.—(AP)—New measurements of the child's mental growth were presented, a nation-wide campaign to do away with the diseases which scourge childhood was proposed and a new program for safeguarding every child's milk supply was suggested to 6,000 health workers attending the scattered sessions of the third day of the American health congress here.

It has become possible to measure an infant's mental growth, as expressed in his behavior, in much the same way his physical growth can be measured, according to Dr. Arnold Gesell, professor of child hygiene, Yale university.

"The infant has a psyche which is already well on the making at the time of birth, said Dr. Gesell.

"His personality is a growing multitude of patterns of behavior; of eating, sleeping, playing obeying, of liking, disliking, fearing and avoiding.

"At the Yale psycho clinic we have made studies of several hundreds of normal infants, which show that the curve of mental growth tends to follow some lawful lines.

"Although we have not found two lives exactly alike; neither have we found two normal babies of the same age absolutely unlike."

REFERENDUM ON DRY LAW IN NEW YORK NEXT FALL

ALBANY, N. Y., May 19—(AP)—Prohibition took its place among the issues of next fall's election campaign in this state with the announcement tonight by Governor Smith that he had signed the Karle-Phelps bill providing for a referendum on the question at the general election.

Unless the dry seek by court action to prevent submission of the question, which now is considered unlikely, the people of the state at that time will be asked to express their opinion on the following query:

"Should the congress of the United States modify the federal act to enforce the eighteenth amendment so that the same shall not prohibit the manufacture sale, transportation, importation or exportation of beverages which are not in fact intoxicating as determined in accordance with the law of the respective states?"

In his memorandum of approval, the governor based his action on the contention that "the referendum will settle for the present at least, the attitude of the people of this state on this whole question, and if the will and the voice of the people mean anything in democratic government, any vehicle through which it can be ascertained is to my mind desirable."

Measures to Restore the French Franc

Agreed Upon By Premier Briand, the Finance Minister and all the egents of the Bank of France.

PARIS, May 19.—(AP)—President Doumergue, Premier Briand and M. Peret, the finance minister, together with the governor and all the regents of the bank of France have agreed upon measures to restore the franc as soon as possible, M. Peret, who has just returned from London, informed the correspondents to this effect after a lengthy conference at Elysee palace this evening.

The finance minister remarked that naturally the measures in mind must be kept secret, but added that the whole question of exchange and the causes of fluctuation had been thoroughly examined.

Speaking of the London negotiations M. Peret said: "The conversations have simply been suspended; we are seeking to make our viewpoints agree. I must return to London as soon as possible, but naturally that depends upon political events. The representatives of the bank of France are remaining in London because a certain number of technical points are to be examined, which they can try to settle, reserving the larger question of agreement in principle."

The minister declared that his conversations with Sir Austen Chamberlain, the British foreign secretary, and Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer, demonstrated to him that the British statesmen undoubtedly were well disposed to aid France.

Therefore, M. Peret remarked, reimbursements further delayed, saying, "We must not hasten matters."

He concluded by remarking that the English could not understand the fall of the franc; they did not wish it, and had nothing to gain thereby—and the English cost of living was formidable.

The decline of the franc, which is causing fear for the life of the Briand cabinet, has resulted in strong pressure within the government in favor of prompt radical measures including use of the $50,000,000 available from the Morgan loan.

400 CIVILIANS KILLED IN BOMBARDMENT OF DAMASCUS

LONDON, May 20—(AP)—A despatch to the Daily Express from Damascus dated May 8 says:

"The city has undergone another bombardment by artillery and airplanes. More than 500 civilians, including women and children and about 100 rebels and twenty French were killed.

"Three hundred houses were destroyed.

The despatch says the bombardment was briefly reported May 31, when it was announced 50 rebels had been killed, but that the real extent of the damage done or the casualties were not made known.

According to the correspondent's account of the affair the rebels attacked some French army posts, killing eight soldiers and capturing 20. Two hundred rebels then retired into Ouzai, a southern quarter of the city of Damascus and barricaded themselves in houses.

Early the next morning 3,000 French troops surrounded the quarter, which contains 80,000 inhabitants and summoned the people to deliver up the rebels declaring that otherwise they would be bombarded.

The reply of the inhabitants was that they were unarmed and were unable to coerce the rebels. They invited the French to enter and capture them.

German Reichstag Has Endorsed Marx

Foreign Policies Are to Be Guided by Reparations Agreements and Locarno Security Pacts.

BERLIN, May 19—(AP)—Chancellor Marx, who has succeeded Dr. Hans Luther as head of the Germany ministry, today received approval of his policies from a tolerant reichstag.

It is likely, however, that Chancellor Marx's revamped cabinet will be forced to look alternatively to the socialists and the nationalists for support to ensure its preliminary existence.

In a brief official declaration, Chancellor Marx said that Germany's foreign policies would continue to be guided by the London reparation agreements and the Locarno security pacts. Inasmuch as the personnel of his cabinet, except for the retirement of Dr. Luther, has not been changed, the chancellor said that its program would contine unaltered.

He appealed to the reichstag for assistance in furthering the government's desire to "promote the political and economic welfare of the German people within the scope of the republican constitution of Weimer without which national unity is impossible."

After a brief debate, which was singularly free of controversy, the reichstag voted the cabinet its approval by a liberal display of hands. The nationalists supported the coalition parties in the vote, while the nationalists abstained from voting.

Laying emphasis on the government's determination to pursue the foreign policy which was intimated by the adoption of the London reparation agreement and the Locarno pacts, the chancellor made only a fleeting reference to the flag issue, which caused the downfall of Chancellor Luther.

Discussing the property claims of the former ruling houses in Germany, the chancellor said that the government shortly will submit a compromise bill which is now under consideration by the cabinet.

In the ensuing debate the socialists announced that they would move for the adoption of a law compelling German foreign missions to hoist only the republican colors. The radicals also will demand that whenever the flag of one of the federal states is displayed with the national standard, the latter must be the larger of the two.

The reichstag adjourned until June 7.

SERIOUS OUTBREAK IN COUNTY JAIL IN CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, May 19—(AP)—An outbreak which assumed near riot proportion created pandemonium on the third floor of the county jail here today. Benches and tables were broken, deputies were threatened and more than a score of prisoners refused to return to their cells for several hours. The revolt was confined to the "bull pen" on that floor.

The disturbance grew out of a visit by the county grand jurors as part of their investigation into Sheriff Fred Kohler's conduct of the prison. It started when the prisoners are said to have attempted to complain about their food.

The investigation was ordered by Common Pleas Judge Frank C. Phillips today after Louis Sagora (Louie the Fleman) had disclosed that he sold pies into the jail, the proceeds going to Sheriff Kohler. He also told how cigarettes and other articles were sold at prices higher than those in retail stores.

VARIOUS EUROPEAN COUNTRIES ASK FOR SECURITY BEFORE DISARMAMENT

GENEVA, May 19—(AP)—Fire and gas bombs could slay or paralyze the entire population of New York, M. De Brouckere, of Belgium, asserted in a declaration before the meeting of the disarmament commission today, in which he portrayed the horrors of chemical warfare from the air.

To him it was the most vital thing in disarmament to meet this problem immediately and frankly be the nations accepting supervision of all airplane and poison gas equipment.

"Don't talk so much about disarmament; just go ahead and do it," was another of his striking declarations to which all the delegates listened in rapt attention.

These affirmations by a Belgian liberal are deemed significant, because the further the general disarmament discussion proceeds the more it is apparent that immense difficulties and real complications will render the achievement of disarmament no easy task.

"Give us security, and we will lay down our arms." This would aptly summarize the position of the various European countries as expounded at today's Geneva meeting. This attitude, first announced by France, was unequivocally affirmed by nations like Jugoslavia and Czechoslovakia, and also Belgium again. Therefore, evidence was forthcoming of a scheme of mutual assistance more effective than that provided by the covenant of the league of nations, or even the accords of Locarno.

The commission found the question as to what is the difference if any, between offensive and defensive armaments a very distressing matter to settle.

Viscount Cecil, Great Britain, thought that all armies were offensive, because they could immediately be made so.

Hugh S. Gibson, chairman of the American delegation, said the American view was that it was difficult, if not impossible, to affirm whether a given armament was defensive or offensive. He thought it hinged on the use or disposition of the armaments rather than on the armaments themselves.

CHARGES OF CORRUPTION IN THE PENNSYLVANIA PRIMARY

Made and Denied on the Floor of the Senate—Later The Senate Ordered by a Vote of 59 to 13 to Investigate Expenditures of All Senatorial Campaigns This Year—Senator Reed of Pennsylvania Denied That There Had Been Any Corruption in the Pennsylvania Primary.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—(AP)— Investigation of expenditures in all senatorial campaigns this year—primary as well as general—was ordered today by the senate, 59 to 13, after charges of corruption in the Pennsylvania primary yesterday had been made and denied on the floor.

Complying with a resolution adopted, Vice President Dawes named the following senators as members of the committee to conduct the inquiry: Reed of Pennsylvania, and Deneen of Illinois, republicans, Reed of Missouri, and Bayard, of Delaware, democrats, and La Follette, of Wisconsin, a progressive republican.

The committee will select its own chairman, and it is likely that the post will go to Reed, of Missouri, author of the resolution, which stipulated that two republicans, two democrats, and one progressive republican were to be named on the committee.

The move for the inquiry was launched from the democratic side and resulted in the sharpest political skirmishing in the senate at this session. Two roll calls were necessary and before they had been completed there had been a considerable shifting of votes, milling around and laughter in the chamber.

Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, set off the fireworks with an ironical speech, during which he called attention to published reports of expenditures in the Pennsylvania primary ranging from $2,000,000 to $5,-000,000.

Republican old guard leaders immediately threw their forces for battle as short debate proceeded, but they were bested over by a combination of democrats and republican insurgents, the vote being 59 to 24. Senator Reed of Missouri demanded and got an immediate vote on his resolution. As the roll call started there was much confusion on the republican side with some senators high on the list failing to vote when their names first were called.

Fourteen republicans who had voted against considering the Reed resolution voted for its adoption, while seven others failed to respond to their names on the second roll call.

The case of former Senator Truman H. Newberry of Michigan and prohibition figured fairly extensively in the debate. Adverting to the Newberry case, Senator Harrison said the senate in seating him had adopted a resolution condemning the very practices which were indulged in yesterday in Pennsylvania by the three candidates for the republican senatorial nomination.

Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, entering the chamber just as he will concluding, hotly denied there had been any corruption in the Pennsylvania primary. He declared that Senator Harrison overlooked the fact that Pennsylvania had a population of nine millions who could vote, whereas three fourths of even the small voting population in Mississippi was disfranchised.

MACKINAC TRIAL HAS OPENED IN PROVIDENCE

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 19.—(AP)—The first graphic word picture of the scene of desolation on board the excursion steamer Mackinac when a boiler exploded off Newport, August 18, 1925, taking 55 lives, was painted for the jury trying the captain, master and agent of the vessel on criminal charges this afternoon in superior court by Mrs. Delora Mulvey of Pawtucket, who lost a daughter in the disaster.

Michael Maguire of Pawtucket, who testified that one of his daughters is in the state hospital for mental diseases as a result of the catastrophe, followed Mrs. Mulvey on the stand and gave an equally vivid account of the disaster. Both witnesses testified that the vessel was late in leaving her Pawtucket dock on the excursion, and that they had asked Kelley, the defendant who is being tried as an accessory before the fact of manslaughter, if everything were all right. Each said that he replied that everything was all right.

Assistant Attorney General Oscar L. Heltzen, who is prosecuting the case before Judge Walsh, declared in outlining his case this morning that he would attempt or prove that "wanton disregard for life and criminal neglect of duty" on the part of the three defendants were responsible for the accident. Captain George W. McVay and Chief Engineer James A. Grant are charged with manslaughter.

Although Mr. Stokes was almost constantly in court over one or another of his affairs, he was best known to the public because of the divorce actions in which he took part, and for litigation growing out of his wounding during a visit to the apartment of two chorus girls.

He had three children, "Weddy" by his first marriage and a boy and a girl by his second.

The widow, Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes, who won a separation from Mr. Stokes after his five year effort to divorce her had failed, was on her way here tonight from Denver with her two children to attend the funeral, which will be held Saturday. Canon Stokes will officiate.

CULBERTSON SURPRISED WHEN CONFRONTED BY LETTER

WASHINGTON, May 19 (AP)—While defending President Coolidge before the special senate tariff investigating committee, William S. Culbertson, minister to Rumania and former tariff commissioner, today was taken by surprise by the production of a letter he had written Commissioner Costigan last July assailing the president's policies.

The letter, written on legation stationery at Bucharest and dealing with the appointment of Edgar B. Brossard to the tariff commission, said Culbertson would feel fully justified in leaving the commission "if this appointment is to be regarded as a revelation of the president's policy."

"I did not suppose Coolidge would do the thing so rawly if he did it at all," the letter said. "Evidently your suspicions were correct and Brossard has been playing with the sugar lobby and now he has his reward. I can imagine the effect on the staff.

"They must feel that honesty is not the best policy."

The letter concluded with "more power to your arm in the fight you are in. Affectionately yours."

Mr. Culbertson plainly was vexed over the introduction of the letter by Senator LaFollette, republican, Wisconsin, a member of the committee. He declared it was a personal and private communication to an intimate friend and was never intended to be used as a public document.

The present Senator LaFollette drew from Culbertson an admission that he had given his father a written statement before he came out for the presidency and subsequently sought its return and obtained it.

Chairman Rheinock brought out that some of Culbertson's papers were marked confidential and some were not. The witness said that was an accident so he intended all of them to be confidential.

BRIDGEPORT TROLLEYMEN ACCEPT THE WAGE INCREASE

BRIDGEPORT, May 19—(AP)—Trolleymen of this city today voted to accept the increase of two cents an hour, offered them by the Connecticut company. A large majority of the men cast their vote in acceptance. A committee representing the trolleymen, asked the company for an increase of 15 cents an hour and the company countered by offering a wage increase of two cents an hour. The question and request for an eight hour day, the company answered that they would try to arrange the schedule of runs so that the men would finish a day's work in less time.

The local trolleymen were the last to vote on the state-wide referendum. New Haven trolleymen voted to accept the offer, while the operators in Hartford, on the other hand, rejected it.

The ballots cast in the referendum will be counted tomorrow in Fraternal hall, New Haven by the state conference board of trolleymen.

TO FILE WRITTEN CLAIMS IN COMMUNITY HOTEL CASE

WILLIMANTIC, May 19—The special case of Eleanor T. Ford vs. The Community Hotel Corporation which was started Tuesday occupied the entire session of the Windham county superior court here today with the exception of a little over one half hour just prior to the adjournment of court until this Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, standard time.

At the opening of court, Assistant Clerk Miss Marjorie Bradford stated that four cases assigned for today had been settled out of court. These were the suits of Elmer Gaumond, administrator vs. Joseph Gagner; Yvonne Gaumond, by her next friend, Elmer Gaumond vs. Joseph Gagner and Zelida Gaumond vs. Joseph Gagner. The cases were the outcome of an automobile accident in which a boy was killed at North Grosvenordale over a year ago. Gagner was fined in a recent criminal term of the court for failure to give the right of way at the time of the accident. The civil suit followed.

The case of the Interstate Bureau Corporation vs. Richard T. Higgins, & als Public Utilities commission, which was to have been heard today was put over until Thursday to allow time for the hearing of the Ford Community Hotel case.

Concerning the evidence being heard Tuesday for the plaintiff side Philip L. Hill and Joseph Peck, real estate men gave testimony. In stating that he had visited the premises a second time Mr. Peck said that with a right of way the property was worth $50 a foot, making the total value of 66 feet frontage $3,300. With the right of way closed he placed the value at $20 a foot, or $1,320. The plaintiffs then rested.

Attorney Foss for the defense described the property and presented deeds dating back to 1857, the deeds having to do over the present site of the hotel, the building of which has blocked the right of way being disputed.

Samuel Chesbro, a real estate agent, said that he would place the value of the Ford buildings at $2,000 and he did not think that the closing of the right of way would cause a depreciation of more than 25 per cent. of that figure. He valued the land at $1,900, giving the present total valuation as $3,900.

Former Selectman James M. Smith testified that in his opinion the matter of a right of way would not make much material difference to the value of the property which he estimated at from $1,500 to $2,000.

Mrs. Laura Smith of Newport, R. I., daughter of the late Samuel J. Young who purchased the hotel property in 1882, said that she had seen her father close the right of way on occasions. He did this by causing the erection of a fence which was broken down in some manner.

Charles E. Leonard, stating that he was chief of the fire department 25 years ago, said that he had occasion to use a line of two and one-half inch hose on the then Young property to flush out some pipes. He made use of the lane and right of way disputed and there was a fence across it at that time. He saw the fence there on other occasions.

Charles H. Baker said that he had been a resident of Willimantic for 45 years and in his work was familiar with the property. He said that he often saw a fence blocking the way and that the lane, being only 13 feet wide and often covered with ashes and tin cans, was not commonly used.

William J. Miller, employed at the Johnson house when it was conducted for many years by Samuel J. Young said that he often saw the fence at the head of the lane. He did not think that the lane had been used very much.

At the afternoon session Arthur D. Washburn, a resident of this city for 56 years and also a former employe at the Johnson House from 1885 to 1913, told of a fence being erected by Mr. Young shortly before the death of the latter.

Patrick J. Minnihan, a resident of Willimantic for 52 years and a barber for 35 years said that in 1893 he had a shop on Main street directly across from the site of the new hotel and the former site of the drive way. He had an unobstructed view of the right of way and for a number of years he saw a fence at the head of the lane. He said that the fence was there to keep horses and pigs from running into the hotel yard. He was shortly cross examined regarding the latter statement.

Fred J. Lord said that from 1904 to 1906 he was employed at the Johnson house by the late Samuel J. Young and that he had seen the fence blocking the driveway.

Eugene J. Randall who said that he peddled doughnuts, cream, butter, etc. for 14 years and had customers in the vicinity of the right of way, including one in the Johnson house, told of finding the lane fenced during the years 1906, 1909 and again in 1912.

William R. Frisbie of Norwich, who conducted a garage in the rear of the hotel property and bordering on the lane said that he noticed the fence in the lane, remembering distinctively the years 1913 and 1914.

Louis I. Zechiel of this city, who also at one time conducted a garage on the premises also testified to the fence being there at intervals.

Frank Ferrell, a third witness to have run a garage bordering on the lane said that he personally had put up a fence across the right of way, acting under the instructions of Mr. Young. Here the defense rested and three of the plaintiff witnesses, E. O. Sumner, William E. Taylor and Frank L. Ford were recalled to the stand for brief questioning.

The plaintiff side then offered its last strand of evidence in offering a paper serving as an introduction of a declaration on the right of way by James Walden, deceased, and former owner who conveyed the property on November 30, 1892 to Daniel E. and Thomas P. Smith. After a recess the defense made known its objection to the document on the grounds that the the declaration was not adverse to the interests of Walden as Walden and a former partner, Griggs, had retained the deed and ownership to the driveway. The document was ordered filed by the clerk.

Written claims on the case will be presented to the court next Tuesday morning, on order of Judge Christopher L. Avery.

In the case of Ford vs. The Community Hotel Corporation, the damages of $1,500 are claimed on the assertion that the value of the property has dropped nearly half due to the closing up of the right of way to Main street by the erection of the new hotel. According to the grand list the property in question is included at a valuation of $1,400.

The case of Jackson & Sumner vs. Frank Brown was started late Wednesday afternoon in the superior court. The first witnesses called by Attorney John Kline for the plaintiff was Stanley J. Sumner. In his testimony Mr. Sumner said that between four and five o'clock on the afternoon of March 3, 1925, he was demonstrating an automobile owned by the plaintiff firm, to Roger Lescoe of this city. Mr. Lescoe was driving and with him on the front seat was Mrs. Lescoe WEness sat to the right of the car on the rear seat. The machine was descending Windham street and was traveling about 10 miles an hour up on reaching the intersection of Windham and Valley streets. The car had passed the center of the intersection, headed south, when a Dodge car operated by Brown approached from the right, traveling easterly on Valley St. Due to high bankings the north corners of Windham street at the intersection block the view of Valley street to cars traveling southerly Witness, in the rear seat was looking out of the window but did not see the Brown car until about the time of the crash. The Dodge crashed into the right rear of the plaintiff car, damaging a fender and door to the amount of $66. In addition to this the car had to be sold at a reduction of $150. There was also much inconvenience and the expense of using another car, while the damaged machine was being repaired and could not be used as a demonstrator. Mr. Sumner said that in his estimation the Brown machine was traveling about 20 miles an hour when the brakes were applied it skidded some 30 feet with only one brake holding. The force of the blow was such that the rear of the Sumner car, a Studebaker, was pushed aside for about one yard. Witness was cross examined by Attorney E. B. Harvey. Court adjourned at 5:10 o'clock, daylight time, to resume at 9 o'clock, standard time this Thursday morning.

CHORUS GIRL'S SCHOOL PROVIDES STEADY WORK

NEW YORK, May 19—"Chorus Girls for Hire" might be the sign hanging on the establishment of Allan K. Foster, whose business is providing dancers for musical comedies and revues.

For many years he was a stage director and some of his experiences led him into his present enterprise.

Under his system, Foster takes girls and trains them, free of charge, for a period of six to eight weeks. Those who have developed and show promise or a good future, he then places under five year contracts, with salaries which mount until $100 a week is paid the final year.

Forty weeks employment a year is guaranteed and one of the contract provisions is that every girl must save ten per cent. of her salary. The average chorus girl, working independently, has employment twenty weeks. It is estimated, and is not paid while rehearsing.

Smoking and drinking, as well as stage door "Johnnies," are prohibited. Chaperones are provided to care for the girls socially and morally.

Early in their training the girls are taught all forms of dancing, swimming, riding and fencing. Four hours each week are given over to learning new dances and specialties. At is to give an illustrated stereopticon talk on poultry and County Agent Walter T. Clark will talk about the work of the farm bureau. These addresses will be open to the public. "Have a Camel"

Open one up! The tobacco tells its own story

CAMELS are made of the choicest Turkish and Domestic tobaccos grown. To prove what we say about Camel's tobacco quality, make this test:

Take a Camel and any other cigarette. Tear off the papers and place the tobaccos from the two cigarettes in separate piles. Now shake them up and examine the tobaccos. Your own eyes will quickly show you the difference, how the Camel tobacco is longer and of a richer color. Then gather up the two piles separately—and smell them.

You will at once notice the rich, fragrant aroma of Camel tobaccos not found in the other.

This marked difference is even more apparent when you "taste the smoke." It is solely because of the quality of the tobaccos and the skill of the blending that Camels never tire the taste, never leave a cigaretty after-taste.

Camels are so good that we know you will like them. Give them every test known and you will find Camels the highest quality cigarette made, regardless of price. Have a Camel!

DANIELSON

BOY PAINFULLY INJURED WHEN STRUCK BY AUTO

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, May 19.—Eppeni Malley, a boy about nine years old, son of Joseph Malley of Danielson, was seriously injured tonight when he was struck by an automobile driven by Louis Duman of Goodyear, formerly of Putnam. Dr. F. P. Todd was called to attend the injured boy and ordered his removal at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam, the child being in a semi-conscious condition at the time. The first examination indicates that the jaw was fractured in one and possibly two places and there were indications that the skull was also fractured. It was said by observers of the accident that no blame was attached to Mr. Duman and that the affair was unavoidable.

GYPSIES GYP MAN BUT HIS MONEY WAS RETURNED

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, May 19.—Gypsies traveling in a motor caravan of eight cars claimed the attention of state and local officers Wednesday afternoon while a checkup of the party was made to determine which one of a bevy of gaily adorned women of the party had lifted $12.10 from Edward E. Alden of Brooklyn.

It appears that Alden was coming along the state highway with a saddle horse in the vicinity of the Meadowbrook farm at South Killingly when the string of gypsy cars rolled along. The caravan halted and a gypsy woman stepped out of one of the machines and accosted Alden. As Alden told the story later, she asked him for a match and followed this request with another that she be allowed to see his money. Alden demurred a bit at first, but finally pulled out his money bag and handed it over. It contained, he said, $21.10. The woman counted the money, put it back in the bag and handed the bag to Alden. Then the gypsies went on their way.

Thinking over the matter, Alden decided to count his money and was a bit amazed to find but $9 in the bag. Rushing to the home of A. E. Hall nearby he telephone to Danielson and told the state and local police about the affair. Chief McFarland halted the gypsies as they came through Main street and State Officer George Gardner appeared and took up the case.

When Alden was brought in to make identification of the woman he claimed fleshed his money he was not at all certain as to which one of the women had talked with him and handled the money bag. Alden is 60, and not so observing of details as would have helped in this case. However, one of the men in the gypsy band went to the barracks and while not admitting that any theft had been made, paid $12.10 to Alden that the matter might be adjusted and the party allowed to proceed on its way. Lack of positive identification of anyone in the band by Alden as the person who took the money left the officers without adequate grounds for a prosecution. The gypsies, who said they were bound for Norwich and New London, claimed to be coppersmiths.

WILL BURN HOUSE FOR RELAY PUMPING TEST

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, May 19.—Chief A. P. Woodward of the fire department is going over to North Scituate Saturday afternoon. They're going to set a dwelling house afire over there and then put out the blaze—if they can.

Now, this isn't as terrible as it would seem at first glance. The house was purchased some time since from the city of Providence by a North Scituate man for about $2.50. He has removed such parts of it as were of particular value to him, and having no further use for it has given it to the Firemen's association for use in an interesting experiment. The house was one of those that went into the discard when the great reservoir system for the city of Providence was being developed in the Scituate territory.

Ten neighboring fire companies are to be on hand Saturday to witness what is described as a relay pumping experiment. When the house is set afire and gets to blazing merrily a stream of water will be directed upon it through a relay system of three pumpers. One of these pumpers will be located on the edge of a pond about 2,000 feet from the dwelling. This piece of apparatus will pump water out of the pond into a line of hose that will run to another pumper several hundred feet nearer the fire and the second pumper will boost the stream along to a third pumper, which in turn, will force it along into a line of hose that will direct the water against the burning building.

Relay pumping has been tried from time to time with considerable success. While no such system would be used in a community like Danielson, with its ample number of fire hydrants, it can be used frequently to great advantage in outlying communities, where extremely long lines of hose have to be run from any available supply of water to a burning building. One small pumper such as is found in communities like North Scituate would not successfully force a stream each great distance, but three pumpers working on the relay system might do it. North Scituate is going to try it out Saturday. If it works well, fire companies from various communities thereabouts might unite their efforts in time of fire to save property that otherwise would be destroyed.

Rain and a general indisposition decimated the attendance at the Good Year church Sunday morning. The sermon was on "Looking Up" based on the text Luke 16: 23 "In Hell he lifted up his eyes." Adversity is good soil for the growth of religion. The last word on Hell has not been spoken, though the modern definition of eternal loneliness may, perhaps, be more soothing than the old fire and brimstone idea. There is enough so-called Hell in this life to encourage one to look up for relief. Too many go through life with eyes riveted to the ground, often due to indifference, a low spiritual vitality and a lack of love for the best. Inestimable wealth is within the reach of all would they but look up and see it.

Several applications for membership having been presented, Killingly grange conferred the first and second degrees on a small class last Monday night. The literary program was given after the degree work. Walter G. Bruce, agricultural teacher in Killingly high school, who arranged the program, was present and provided the following numbers: Original paper on "Dirt", George Wood; talk, What Our High School Course is Doing for Agricultural Training, Walter G. Bruce; humorous reading, Mrs. George Clisbee; vocal solo, Helen Keech; debate, resolved that the American farmer is himself a large contributing factor for the agricultural ills of our country, Lecturer C. A. Downs as a substitute extemporized on the affirmative side and said that experts on farm problems hold that the farmer has the solution for his ills within himself. Farmers are inclined to be slow in accepting new and more efficient methods. Cyrus McCormick was unable to sell a single reaper for nine years after its first successful demonstration. Farmers injure themselves with inferior and poorly packed produce. Farmers often defeat their own ends from a failure to properly study their job. John Z. LeBelle for the negative side of the question argued. Eliminating all of a farmer's own blunders his ills would still largely remain. Present selling methods require the farmer to finance the rest of the world, and take what he can get for his own goods. The law of competition tremendously handicaps the farmer in the labor market. Farm organization is very difficult as each farmer must be organized separately and every day. The cards are stacked against the farmer. While the farmer often succeeds in spite of his opposition it is still true he is fighting against laws and conditions over which he has little or no control.

Mrs. Mannie Phillips Witter, wife of Riley B. Witter, died at their home in Brooklyn Tuesday night at about 10:30. Up to early Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Witter had been in her usual robust health. Following her dinner she was about the household as usual and then became suddenly and violently ill, lapsing into a state of unconsciousness and so remaining until her death. Her passing came a great shock to her relatives and friends.

Mrs. Witter was born in Foster, R. I., and lived their many years prior to her marriage to Mr. Witter. She leaves her husband, who is in a critical state of health, a step-daughter, Miss Helen Witter, a sister, Mrs. Warren Bennet of Foster and a brother, Orrin Phillips of Mansfield, Mass.

Rev. Alexander Hewes Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church of Norwich, is to be the speaker at the graduation exercises of the senior class of Killingly High school on Thursday, June 24.

Graduation exercises for the eighth grade classes of grammar schools of the town of Killingly are to be held in the town hall on June 10. The graduation exercises for the Brooklyn eighth grades are to be held in Unitarian hall in Brooklyn on the evening of June 10.

Four new disc wheels to be placed on the Captain Put Engine company pumper, have been shipped and are expected here within a few days. These wheels, with new tires, will replace the artillery type of wheels in present use upon the big vehicle. It will be recalled that a wheel on the truck collapsed during the past winter and had to be replaced. In view of this happening it was deemed best to equip the pumper with a new and stronger set of wheels of the disc type. New tires were needed, too, after the years of service that the original tires have given. Arrangements also are being made to have the pumper varnished.

Wednesday was the last day for paying taxes due the town of Killingly without being liable for the interest charges that are now in effect. Collector James R. Walsh sat in the day at his office in the town hall building and many were the checks and bills and coins that he received from those anxious to square accounts with the town before the collection period ended. Collections have been very good this year, Collector Walsh says, and he will have some figures for the public in a day or two.

Davis of Putnam will be at the home of Elmer Green in Plainfield today (Thursday) from 12:30 to 1:30, and at the home of Clarence Salmon in Brooklyn Friday at the same hour, standard time.

Another supply of oil having arrived, the work of putting it on street surfaces in various parts of the borough is again underway.

Automobiles are getting cheap. A sale of a machine in running order at $22, was reported Wednesday. This is less than a price of one tire for this particular make of car and only a little more than it is going to cost to register it.

Another dance by the K. H. S. Alumni association at the assembly hall of the school afforded a pleasant evening for the many who attended Wednesday evening.

No special effort will be made this year to have the half-holiday season introduced until July, when such half-holidays for the summer season have begun for several years past.

Attorney Warren D. Chase of Hartford is to be the speaker at the Memorial day exercises in East Killingly.

Don't Let High Blood Pressure Shorten Your Life

How to Stop It—Read This.

It may surprise you to know high blood pressure is so serious that insurance companies refuse to issue policies to those who have it. All because it shortens life.

High blood pressure gives little warning and until certain symptoms take hold, you do not know it. They are head pains, flushed face, hot flashes, dizzy spells, shortness of breath, sleeplessness, and nervousness.

Only a purely vegetable medicine like Norma that drives out the waste matter which clogs the system and forces the heart to do extra work can reduce high blood pressure. Often one bottle of Norma will bring reduction enough to stop the symptoms which distress and worry you.

Norma is a physician's prescription. It worked so wonderfully in his personal practice that it has now been placed in drug stores so that people everywhere can obtain it. Check the uncertainty of high blood pressure by reducing it with Norma. Lee & Osgood Drug Store.

PUTNAM

GEORGE W. GILPATRIC DIED SUDDENLY IN PUTNAM

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, May 19—George W. Gilpatric died suddenly at noon today at his home on Fremont street, aged 71 years.

For more than seven years he had been a sufferer from heart trouble which at the time of his first attack was in a serious form and for many months a quick fatal termination was feared. He gradually grew better but he was obliged to give up active work. His improvement was gradual and for the past five years he had been in fairly comfortable health. There was hardly a day even during winter weather that he was not able to make a trip down town. He was an almost daily visitor at the Arcanum club and when the property was taken over by the Masonic club he continued his regular visits. He spent Tuesday afternoon there and was planning to go down today. This morning he was working around the yard and had put an awning on the veranda and when he entered the house at noon he made no complaint and sat down in a chair apparently as well as usual. A few minutes later without uttering a word of complaint he pitched forward and evidently died almost instantly. His wife and her sister, Miss Etta Hodges, who has been spending the winter and spring there were in the room and ran to his side. He did not speak and in the opinion of the physician, who arrived shortly afterward, death had been instantaneous.

Besides his wife, Mr. Gilpatric leaves three sons, Walter H. Gilpatric of White Plains, N. Y., a prominent attorney of New York city; G. Harold Gilpatric and F. Raymond Gilpatric; the latter for several years having been sales manager of the Stanley company of New Britain.

For many years Mr. Gilpatric was agent of the Adams Express company. Then he and Hiram B. Whipple organized the firm of Whipple and Gilpatric, dealers in wood and coal. During a long period of years he was one of the most active and hardest working citizens of Putnam. While with the express company he was noted for his uniform courtesy and kindness and consideration, qualities that made him one of the best known and best liked persons in the community.

At the Arcanum club and the Masonic club his visits were looked forward to with pleasure and every member of these organizations and every one who knew him was his friend.

APPROPRIATION CERTAIN TO HELP VALUATION WORK

PUTNAM, May 19—In appropriating a sum of $14,000 for the revaluation of taxable property of Putnam on a equitable basis, the town has taken one of the most important steps in its history and what business men generally believe will be a great step forward in its growth and progress.

It is known that there are great inequalities in the present valuations. Some property appears on the grand list at close to its real value, some at 75 per cent, some at 25 per cent and quite a little that is not listed at all.

No one is to blame for this condition. It is something that the town has just grown into and only by some such plan as was adopted at the special meeting on Tuesday afternoon can the conditions be remedied. The fact that the officials, like the town assessors, the town selectmen, members of the board of relief, the mayor and the council committee as well as other leading citizens recommend the present

FIGHTING TENT CATERPILLARS

At this season of the year when trees are leafing out and attracting attention by the great quantities of blossoms, it is too often the case that they also come in for special notice because of the numerous nests of the tent caterpillars which they harbor.

Where such conditions exist it is apparent that either the pest must be eliminated or the leaves soon will be. With their thousands of workers it takes but a short time for the stripping of the trees and once they get the mastery of the situation there's a poor outlook for tree or fruit.

There are various ways of fighting the tent caterpillars. Great help is given by the collection of the egg masses and destroying them. That is an easy and effective prevention. It is also possible to tear down the nests, or to burn them out by applying torches to them, although with the latter there is a possibility of doing more or less damage to the trees. But the claim is made that damage is done to nothing but the caterpillars if the suggestion of former Game Commissioner Crampton is followed and the tents are shot up with black powder.

This method which Mr. Crampton vouches for as the result of his experiments consists in loading shotguns with nothing more than black powder charges and firing them directly into the trees at a distance of but a few feet from the nests. It knocks out all life in the nests and does it without causing any injury to the trees or the fruit. Such shooting should, of course be done at a time when the caterpillars are in the nests rather than when they are feeding.

Whatever method is adopted as a means of combating the tent caterpillars there is no question but what there should be a general assault made upon them. Only by so doing can there be expected to be any headway made against them. They make the most of procrastination on the part of humanity and thrive on the fact that too many are inclined to pay no attention to their depredations.

GERMANY'S CABINET CHANGE

In going from one cabinet to another Germany has done only what has been done before, and what can be expected occasionally in the future. When there is dissatisfaction manifested toward one cabinet, its head or its ideas changes are effected through a failure to give it endorsement. The break in Germany came through a difference of views concerning the flag of the republic.

There is a determination on the part of the monarchists to keep their interests to the front. They have never accepted the idea of a republic They would like to get back to a monarchy and they lose no opportunities for advancing their views and showing their strength.

When it came to the matter of the flag they insisted upon the restoration of the old German colors while other factors are insistent upon the adoption of new colors for the republic. There came the time when Premier Luther must take sides and he decided that the wise course was to endeavor to effect a compromise. This he did by supporting a combination of the two colors. That was a mistake. It satisfied no one. It was not approved by the monarchists and it was not satisfactory to the supporters of the constitution. He would probably have fared better had he come out positively for the new colors. His action produced a motion of censure and when that came to a vote it resulted in a resignation of the ministry.

The outcome is that Premier Luther has been succeeded by Premier Marx. The latter retains the former's cabinet and will endeavor to conduct the government in keeping with the good results obtained by his predecessor but with the knowledge of the particular mistake which he made in regard to the flag.

The Luther policies were for the most part encouraging to peace and steady progress and it is not likely that such will be overlooked by the new premier. They are of course just what Germany needed in the past and what is called for in the failure to resolve the problems that are faced.

ESCAPES THROUGH INSANITY

Not so long ago in the state of New Jersey, a young man was accused of killing a girl of six and a Negro chauffeur. He was tried on the latter charge and was found guilty by a jury and sentenced to death. An appeal was taken from the decision to the court of errors and appeal, made up of 16 judges, which has just reversed the decision and by a vote of 11 to 5 has granted the prisoner a new trial. The ground for the reversal was that the defense at the time of the trial was insanity.

This decision means that there can be a new trial with the outcome certain to be influenced by the decision of the higher court, or it is possible that he can be committed to an asylum for the rest of his days. Even a new trial no more could be wanted than a verdict of not guilty because of insanity which would leave the situation practically the same as it stand now and calling for his restraint.

Whether it will be possible to commit him for life on whether it will be possible to make such commitment depends upon his period of insanity remains to be decided, but the latter seems the probable outcome. Whether he can gain his liberty in a few years or never again rests with the future. Much will depend upon the nature of his case, the remedy and influence that can be brought to bear in his behalf. There is no assurance that he will spend the remainder of his days in an asylum even. Insanity has been cured, or at least it has been possible to get decisions indicating such results concerning individuals who have escaped capital punishment because of insanity, and what has been done in other cases will always remain a hope in the New Jersey case.

The Noel case has come in for some severe criticism because of the manner in which he was permitted to be at large when it was known that he had threatened to harm others, but by the decision of the court it doesn't appear that the people of New Jersey are going to be permanently relieved of the menace from such an individual in the future. Confinement in an insane institution may mean only for such a reasonable time that efforts can be instituted to have his declared sane and therefore entitled to his freedom.

PENNSYLVANIA'S PRIMARY

From the time it was evident that there was to be a three cornered contest in the Pennsylvania primary recognition has been given to the possibility of that situation working to the advantage of Congressman Vare, one of the candidates for United States senator, and it is that possibility which has resulted.

Because Governor Pinchot injected himself into the contest and brought his bone dry tactics into operation against Senator Pepper, Congressman Vare saw the chance to get the benefit of a devision of the republican vote as a wet candidate. On that he made his run and won, although the combined vote of his opponents would have been overwhelming had it been united. This unity was prevented by the Pinchot candidacy and the selection of Vare is therefore chargeable entirely to Pinchot. He must be given the credit for forcing the Vare choice upon the people of Pennsylvania. His unwillingness to heed the appeals to withdraw in favor of Pepper kept the Vare opposition divided. He was clearly informed in advance of the effects of his course but refused to yield. His blind confidence in his own success has produced the interesting effect of having the bone dry leader of the state prove to be one of the most valued workers in behalf of the wet candidate for United States senator. That Pinchot should run a poor third should convince him what a difference there is between the influence he thought he wielded in the Keystone state and that which actually exists. He stands repudiated and has made it possible for the claim to be made that Pennsylvania is overwhelmingly wet.

Inasmuch as all three candidates had declared their support of the Coolidge administration no significance is attached to the result in that direction, though the administration would have preferred Pepper and the majority of the republican voters of the state would have nominated him but for the candidacy of Pinchot.

DANIEL O'NEIL

Not by any means did Daniel O'Neil of Holyoke devote his entire attention to baseball, but it was through his long years of interest in and promotion of the national game that he was so well and favorably known in this vicinity.

He was always an enthusiastic baseball fan, ardent owner of baseball teams and head of baseball leagues. He was best known hereabouts through his connection with the old Connecticut league of which Norwich was a member for a number of years and his visits here along with his teams, in those days when Henry Davenport and Thomas Reilly and Jim O'Rourke were likewise prominent as small league magnates.

Dan O'Neil did much to maintain that league and its successors. He was always one of its pillars and always stood for clean sportsmanship. That he made the same excellent impression in the Eastern league that he did in the old Connecticut league is indicated by the fact that he was for ten years the president of the former organization, the office he held at the time of his death.

Baseball has been the better throughout this part of the country because Dan O'Neil was connected with it and his influence in connection therewith will be greatly missed in the years to come.

MODERN METHODS

"Have a good time? My cakes alive, I should say so," the returned traveler beamed upon the neighbor who came in to hear all about the trip to the city. "Sat right down here in the kitchen while I rub up this silver, it got awful black while I was away. It's a comfort to have a real kitchen. I told Margaret I couldn't see how she could ever feel to home with just one of them kitchenette contraptions—just a little cupboard to cook in.

"You never see the like. But Maggie, I mean Margaret, she won't let anybody call her Maggie no more, she said the less kitchen she had the better she liked it. She didn't get nothing but breakfast there—just dry toast and coffee. But when she was going out to her clubs or parties she let me cook up my own lunch. Dinner was at night. Ain't that outlandish?

"'If you think it's more fun to cook than to go down to the cafe, Aunt Mercy,' she said, 'it's all right, but don't do it to save money, because Malcolm and I aren't trying to economize on your visit, old dear.' Mag—Margaret's husband's an awful good man, and he certainly gives her her head. I just wondered what Jim would have said if I'd ever told him to go to a restaurant for his breakfast because I needed my beauty sleep. I guess he'd thought I was plumb losing my wits.

"When I heard Mag—Margaret telling Malcolm that one night when we all came home from a show I was just downright indignant, and I said right out to her that she didn't know nothing about treating a man right. I thought I'd just shame her, and I said that if she was too weak to get up to make toast and coffee I'd do it myself. I won't going to see Malcolm going down to the cafe for breakfast, not while I was in the house.

"'You tell 'em, Aunt Mercy,' said Malcolm, and he and Mag both laughed, and he asked if he couldn't have muffins and scrambled eggs for once. After that he had a regular breakfast every morning, and do you believe me it never shamed Mag at all? She slept right through it, and when she did get up she'd kiss me and say I was an old dear, and I was trying to cut her out with her husband.

"Of course I'm awful fond of Mag—Margaret. You know I helped to bring her up, but I think she's wore off most of the stride trainin'. I gave her I told her so, and I said to her that if she didn't have the best kind or a man she would be in danger of losing him if some sensible, hardworking girl tried to cut her out.

"'Oh, Aunt Mercy,' she laughed like everything, 'you don't know Malcolm. He's not looking for any sensible girl and talk about hard work, why, I'm the hardest-worked woman in Chicago. My two bridge clubs, the civic league, the gymnastic dancing class, the Dante circle and all the other things I belong to just about work me to pieces.

"'And what do all them circles and leagues amount to?' I asked her, real sharp. 'If you was to set down and darn your husband's socks and make him some good old-fashioned nightshirts instead of them ready-made new-fangled pajammies he wears you'd be doing a woman's work. A woman should stay to home and look after her man.'

"'If you'd only live with us all the time, Aunt Mercy,' she said.

"'I'm afraid your Uncle Jim would turn in his grave if he knew I was deserting the old home,' I said. 'He set such a lot or store on that house, Mag—Margaret, and he wouldn't want me to stir from the place he left me in.'

"She looked at me kind o' pitying and sighed and said, 'I suppose it's too late for you to change now. You gave up to him when he was alive and you're still doing it. Anyhow, Uncle Jim did love you in his way.'

"Of course he did, and it was a good way," I answered, trying not to speak cross, for Mag's a nice girl and means well, even if she is kind o' advanced in her ideas. That very night when Malcolm come home he brought her a bunch of the biggest roses I ever see and a box of candy. It was some kind o' secret anniversary between 'em.

"'She's the best little woman in the world,' he smiled at me confidential like. 'If it weren't for Margaret, Aunt Mercy, I would not be where I am now. Her brightness and sweetness have made me hustle for her. She's been my little booster all right.'

"Do you know, that just set me to thinking. My Jim never gave me no flowers and candy and compliments like that. I believe maybe there's something after all in this new way o' handling husbands. Just the same, I think Mag ought to darn his socks. Don't you?"—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Emile Berliner, whose 75th birthday anniversary is to be celebrated today, ranks among the greatest of American scientists and inventors. Although his skill has won for him recognition for many inventions, his claim to distinction rests chiefly upon his contributions to two or three important divisions of science. While Alexander Graham Bell invented the telephone, Dr. Berliner completed it by his invention of the loose contact transmitter, or microphone, as it is technically known. And while Edison and others combined to devise the talking machine, it was Berliner's genius that produced the "lateral cut" disk record and perfected the process that enables unlimited numbers of duplicate records to be made from the original performance. At 75 years of age Dr. Berliner is still inventing. He was born in Germany, of Jewish parentage, and in his early career in America was a store clerk in Washington.

From Small Beginnings

Jonathan P. Dolliver, the Boy Teacher, U. S. Senator

Jonathan P. Dolliver was United States senator for two terms, and a very-much-alive senator at that. He was such a powerful speaker that his appearance for or against a measure meant a great deal to the country. He was one of the most prominent leaders in framing the celebrated Dingley tariff bill in 1897. In those days the newspapers were full of accounts of what Senator Dolliver did and said. That man, who had become so prominent in the greatest affairs of the nation, and in planning for relations with other nations, was born in the West Virginia mountains, in Preston county. There, practically without any of the ordinary opportunities, he laid the foundations for his rise to power.

The little school to which he went was not taught by a great teacher, nor did it have expensive equipment, nor refined pupils. In spite of all this Dolliver, who was merely an open-air mountain boy, gained from that school the desire to study, an ambition to become something, and a power to speak in public that few of the United States senators educated in the most expensive schools in the country could equal.

A school is not good because it has many pupils, or great wealth behind it; it is great only when it teaches—and many a little "district school" has proved its worth in inspiration.

The stimulus of the little school in the mountains sent Jonathan Dolliver on to the state university from which he graduated at 17. Now, at once, he became a teacher, although he was only a boy himself. Some of his pupils were older than he, but none had a keener mind or a more active personality. The young teacher's unusual power as a public speaker led many to suggest to him that he become a lawyer, and so he took up the study of law, entered into it with zest, and at the same time used his great natural gift for service in political life. On the stump he spoke most convincingly, holding his hearers with quick humor and convincing oratory. The people liked him, and thought him good enough for public office. At 21 he was sent to congress, and at 43 to the United States Senate.

An untimely death took him from his energetic work at the age of 52. He was a remarkably powerful, self-made man.

Stories That Recall Others

Reversal of Form

A woman known to be quick of wit in handling customers in a large store recently had an experience which placed her well to the front of the absent minded class. On a recent rainy day she stopped in a store to look over the bargains. Glancing out the door she saw the rain pelting down, so, still looking over the bargains, she raised her umbrella. She soon became aware of snickering going on about her and saw that her umbrella was held above her head doing needless duty. She was much embarrassed, put the umbrella down and fled from the store. She walked two blocks in the rain before she noticed again that her umbrella was not functioning as it was intended.

Matter of Dress

In a certain school the teachers began wearing smocks. The first day little Willie's teacher observed from time to time that he was gazing at her out of very quizzical looking eyes. At recess she noticed he seemed equally fascinated with the other teachers' smocks. She decided that he was attracted by the bright colors. At the close of school that day he rather shyly paused at her desk a moment.

"Did you want something, Willie?" she asked kindly.

He lifted his round innocent eyes to her face and said: "Yes'm, teacher. Why are all the teachers wearing their kimonos to school?"

THRONE RIGHTS FOR SALE BY MONTENEGRIN HEIR

Ever since the last earthly remains of the old "Danus" were carried to the top of Black Mountain and interred in the presence of King Alexander it has been evident that Montenegro will not be a separate kingdom again for some time.

The logical heir to Montenegro's throne, Prince Peter, third son of old King Nikolas, seems to realize this as well as any one. King Nikolas was a shrewd financier. He knew how to persuade several emperors and kings to pour gold into his strongbold. The czars of Russia, the king of Italy and the emperor of Austria all contributed. Prince Petar inherited some of the old man's business instinct and is said to be dickering with an English firm with the view to selling his rights to the throne. Petar is asking the Jugoslav government for nearly $3,000,000 for relinquishing his rights. He hopes to cash in on his rights at a discount and let the English firm fight it out with the Jugoslavs.

Virtue is its own reward—and too often its only one.

WHY RIGHT-HANDED?

Have you ever tried to do anything with your left hand and noticed how awkward you are? Or if you happen to be left-handed you can't do very much with your right. Why is it?

This is the reason. The left side of the brain controls the right side of the body and the right side of the brain controls the left side of the body. The larger side of the brain then controls the most active hand.

In a word chain—the last letter brain is larger than the right because the blood supply seems to be richer. So it seems that because it is the easiest thing, most people become right-handed.

Try writing your name with your left hand and see what success you have. Your crooked writing only means that you have not cultivated writing habits with that hand.

Probably more young men would be able to earn their own livings if they didn't have fathers to support them.

With His Back to a Rock

'Tis what's behind and not before
That makes the difference in the score.
—Old Mother Nature.

That which is in front of you, you can see; but that which is behind you, you cannot see and still keep your eyes in front. So it is most important to make sure of what is behind—even more important than to make sure of what is in front. Even in times of trouble and danger there is everything in your backing. There is nothing like having a rock at your back. That is, unless it happens that you want to run away.

Johnny Chuck was exploring in the Old Pasture. Never had he been along this old cowpath before, and so but for what the Merry Little Breezes told him as they danced ahead of him he didn't know what to expect as he rounded each turn. It was quite exciting and it was a lot of fun, and Johnny was beginning to feel quite himself again. He didn't give the Old Orchard and his home over there a thought. He didn't even miss Polly Chuck. Always he had wanted to visit the Old Pasture, and never had he been there before. Now was his chance and he had to make the most of it. He had even forgotten that there might be danger. He had forgotten that it was in the Old Pasture that Old Man Coyote lived.

So it was quite a dreadful surprise to almost walk into Old Man Coyote, and that is what Johnny Chuck did. Yes, sir, he did. You see, all the Merry Little Breezes had grown tired of dancing about and running ahead of Johnny, so at last they all lay down for a nap. But Johnny was so excited with his explorations that he didn't stop to nap, too; he kept right on. Yes sir, he kept right on without anybody to warn him of what might be ahead of him. And so it was that as he came around the big rock he came face to face with Old Man Coyote, who was on his way home. Old Man Coyote had crossed over from the other branch of that cowpath—the one Johnny Chuck had gone down.

"Huh!" exclaimed Old Man Coyote, and grinned. "Huh! If this isn't Johnny Chuck! And what are you doing way over here, Neighbor Chuck?"

Johnny Chuck is no coward. There isn't one teeny, weeny cowardly hair in Johnny Chuck's body. The proof of this is that now every one of them stood right upon end. Johnny did his best to grin back at Old Man Coyote, but his grin wasn't much of a success, excepting in that it showed all of his sharp teeth. Johnny backed up after a hasty look over his shoulder. He backed up against the great rock. Then he looked straight at Old Man Coyote, and this time he did a little better in grinning. He did almost really grin.

Old Man Coyote sat down, and as he sat there, looking at Johnny Chuck, something very like respect came to Old Man Coyote. His first thought had been to kill Johnny Chuck at once, but now, on second thought, he realized that killing Johnny Chuck wouldn't be such an easy matter. With his back to that rock, Johnny would be able to put up a dreadful fight, and Old Man Coyote didn't feel like it. Perhaps if he had been very, very hungry he would have. But he was hardly hungry at all, for he had had a big dinner and was on his way home. So after watching Johnny Chuck a few minutes, Old Man Coyote walked around him at a safe distance, then trotted along up the path, Johnny Chuck remaining right where he was, with his back to that big rock. He remained there for some time, long enough to make sure that Old Man Coyote was not coming back. Then Johnny once more went on his way.

DEPAOLO PLEDGES SAFETY ON PAIR OF BABY'S SHOES

INDIANAPOLIS, May 19 (AP)—A pair of baby shoes was worth $17,500 in cash to Peter DePaolo last year, but they failed to bring him victory at the recent International speedway race.

The 1925 American automobile racing champion, who also leads the pack for 1926, attributes his success to the fact that a pair of his youngster's boots hangs from the front axle of his car in every contest. His cash winnings aggregated approximately $37,500.

DePaolo is superstitious only in that one respect. He said from the time he attached the shoes he has not had a serious accident. They will be his good-luck piece until he quits the sport.

JUDGE AVERY FINDS ACT VALID FOR M'COOK LAND CONDEMNATION

The act of the 1925 legislature which provided for the acquirement "by condemnation proceedings or otherwise" of certain property at East Lyme adjoining Seaside sanatorium, the state institution for treatment of bone tuberculosis in children, is a valid act and became law when it was signed by Governor Trumbull declared Judge C. L. Avery of the superior court in a decision handed down Wednesday in which he denied motion to quash and overruled demurrer in the suit for condemnation proceedings on the McCook land at Crescent Beach in the town of East Lyme. Judge Avery's decision was filed here with Judge George E. Parsons, clerk of the court.

The demurrer and motion to quash was argued before Judge Avery in the superior court at New London on April 20, being brought by Attorney Charles Welles Gross of Hartford, counsel for John J. McCook of Hartford individually and as executor of the will of Elias S. McCook. It was his contention that the act was simply an appropriation bill, and that it was signed by Governor Trumbull 19 days after the adjournment of the general assembly. The Hartford attorney made the claim that the act should have been signed within three days of the adjournment. This view was opposed by Attorney Arthur M. Brown, who was acting for the state, having been designated as special counsel.

Memorandum of Decision

It is axiomatic that the legislature may itself determine the necessity and propriety of a condemnation of private property for public use. This determination is in its nature a political question and when determined by the legislature, it leaves nothing for the courts except the question of compensation, which is a judicial question. The legislature having determined that the necessity exists to take the particular piece of land described for the purpose of a state institution, no preliminary votes nor proceedings upon the part of the trustees of that institution are required. This disposes of the various grounds of demurrer other than the claim that the act never became effective because not signed by the governor until after the rising of the general assembly.

I find that Governor Baldwin, during his term signed acts passed by the legislature more than three days after the rising of the general assembly which passed the act. I find that Governor Holcomb signed numerous acts more than three days after the rising of the general assembly which passed the acts. This practice was followed under Governors Lake, Templeton and Trumbull.

In view of the construction placed upon the constitutional provision by executives of such great learning in constitutional law as Governors Baldwin and Holcomb as well as from the language of the constitution itself, I am of the opinion that the act in question became law on the date of its signature by Governor Trumbull, notwithstanding the fact that it was not signed until more than three days after the rising of the general assembly.

The motion to quash is denied and the demurrer overruled.

Appropriation of $35,000

An appropriation of $35,000 was made by the legislature in order to secure the land, which lies next easterly of the sanatorium property and has beach frontage on the waters of the sound.

It is said to be probable that the case will be fought through to the supreme court.

There are about 325 Italian pastors, he said, and the Baptists have 60 churches and missions with a membership of 5,000. Martin H. Sprague, formerly of Groton, now of New London, and father of the late Henry M. Sprague, has been awarded the lump sum of $1,000 in compensation in a supplemental finding by Commissioner J. J. Donohue, against the New London Ship & Engine Co., and the Aetna Life Insurance Co., respondents.

Trial of the case, which arose over an automobile accident in the city some time ago, began Tuesday afternoon and was concluded just before noon Wednesday when Attorney Arthur T. Keefe, representing the plaintiff, and Attorney C. V. Jansen of Norwich, counsel for the defendant, concluded their addresses to the jury. Judge Waller then delivered the charge.

Dr. Lawson sued for $600, claiming that the Barclay car was on the wrong side of the road. The defendant entered a counter claim for $1,000 damages, claiming that the physician approached the curve at an unreasonable rate of speed.

The jury which heard the case consisted of the following men: Charles W. Elliott, Michael Enright, this city; Augustus Preston, Charles Flint and Charles F. Baker, Groton; Fred P. Davis, Frank F. Holdridge, Stonington; Fred W. Turner, Ledyard; Jacob Adams, Montville; George A. Keney, Waterford; Fred A. Beckwith and Winifred W. Hanney, East Lyme.

BEARCATS BEAT BRASSCOS IN FIRST GAME OF JUNIOR TWILIGHT LEAGUE

The Bearcats took the opening game of the twilight league at the Academy campus Wednesday evening by defeating the Brasscos 13 to 3. For two innings the game was fairly close but from then on costly errors by the losers coupled with opportune hits settled the contest for the Bearcats.

Johndrow, who started for the losers pitched good ball but errors by his teammates proved his downfall. McGrose who replaced him showed the effects of having pitched three games this week and yielded five hits in four innings. Most of these hits were for extra bases. Dudek twirling for the winners allowed but four hits in the seven innings and fanned 4.

The feature play of the game was made by Franaski when he ran to deep left field and snared Tombari's long drive. Then with a quick throw he threw to second doubling O'Brien. LaGare then threw to first getting Carlin completing as nifty a triple play as has been seen at the local campus in some time.

Tonight's Game

This evening's contest in the league should be a great battle for it will bring together two of the bitterest rivals in the city namely, Warriors and Centennials. These clubs have been after each other's scalp for some time but have never managed to meet on the diamond. Therefore, tonight in their first meeting fur is bound to fly and this tilt should be a hummer.

The Warriors, 1926 champions of the league will have the majority of last year's team back with a few reinforcements. They will line-up as follows: Jab Burns will catch with Couture on the mound. Gil Kampf will take care of first with Leo Morin at second, Lee Hamil at third and Bill Burns at the short field. In the outfield Lefty Pavalak will take care of left field, with Norm Courbois in center and Ed Healy in right.

The Centennials will use Vitliano behind the bat with Shea on the mound. Murphy will play first with Jack Marks at second, Labenski at third and Tennant on short. Keenan with play left field with Jackson in center and Connell in right.

The game will start at 6.30 p. m. sharp and there is ample seating arrangements for a large crowd.

CARPENTIER READY TO ENTER RING AGAIN FRIDAY

NEW YORK, May 19.—(AP)—A picturesque figure in pugilism for almost two decades, Georges Carpentier of France today shadow boxed through the last workout of a long training grind which he hopes will put him back on the light-heavyweight throne.

Although the popular orchid has seen only thirty-two summers flit past, his appearance in the Madison Square Garden ring Friday night for a ten-round battle with Eddie Huffman of California, will mark the opening of his nineteenth season as a boxer. His long ring campaign has left few marks on one of the finest physiques of pugilism—Carpentier still is considered one of the handsomest men in the game and a pugilist whose prestige has been shaken only slightly by his knockouts at the hands of Battling Siki, Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey.

Carpentier looks upon his fight with the rugged Huffman as a stepping stone to the throne from which he was tossed by Siki four years ago. Boxing men consider Tex Richard's coup, in signing Young Stribling to box his first match after the Paul Berlenbach title fight of June 16, a link in the chain which Carpentier must complete by a comeback to win back his laurels.

If Stribling succeeds in dethroning Berlenbach, triumph by Carpentier over Huffman will set the stage for a championship fight between the Georgian and the Frenchman, in the battle of close followers of the game.

MACKIE WINS TITLE AGAIN IN INTERSCHOLASTIC GOLF

GREENWICH, May 19.—(AP)—Jack Mackie, Jr., of Lawrence high, present New York state champion and winner of the 1924 interscholastic tournament again won the championship at the eastern interscholastic golf tournament, which ended at the Greenwich Country club here today. At the 15th hole, Mackie was 2 down. He won the 15th with a birdie and the 16th also, making it even on the 18th hole, where he rimmed the cup. Hicks might have played safe by halving the hole, but instead played for the cup, knocking Mackie's ball in, and giving the latter the championship, 1 up.

James Nelson, of Jamaica high, defeated Hugo Bezdek, of Tome school 1 up in the second string and William Grandy, Exeter, defeated Fred Buckley, Port Chester, N. Y., 1 up in the third string.

WILTSE UNABLE TO STOP WHITE SOX ON HOME FIELD

BOSTON, May 19.—(AP)—Hal Wiltse lost his first home pitching assignment when Chicago fell on the Red Sox twirler in the fourth inning, and scored seven runs. The White Sox opened the series here with a 9 to 7 victory.

Lyons was hit heavily, but spectacular catches by the Chicago outfield, particularly by Mostil, helped him over many rough spots.

RUTH NOW AHEAD OF HIS 1921 HOMER MARK

NEW YORK, May 19.—(AP)—Babe Ruth today passed his record home run pace of 1921, when 59 circuit drives were propelled from his mighty club into the stands of American league parks.

By clouting two more round-trip hits, his thirteenth and fourteenth of the season, Ruth shot ten days ahead of his mark of five years ago. He had made but twelve homers on May 19, 1921.

Ruth's thirteenth homer, which arrived in the third inning with two runners on the paths, was made against pitcher Zachary. His second came in the eighth, the first ball tossed to him by Pitcher Ballou. Both drives travelled on a line high into the right field bleachers.

Ruth's thirteenth homer in 1921 was "not" made until May 25, which was the thirty-third game of the season as against today's thirty-first of the present campaign. His fourteenth homer five years ago arrived on May 29.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL LEAGUE Broadway and Elizabeth Win

Broadway captured its third consecutive victory in the grammar school baseball league games held yesterday at the Academy and Duwell Fields, thus adding to its hopes for landing the big Bulletin trophy cup, while Elizabeth also nosed forward with a win, proving itself to be a close rival of the Broadwayites. Despite the wide margin in the scores both contests were lively and interesting.

GLAD TO SPREAD GOOD NEWS

Helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Cleveland, Ohio.—The friends of Mrs. Helen M. Kowalczyk of 6819 Hope Avenue, were glad to hear that she has regained her health. For quite some time Mrs. Kowalczyk was quite ill and it was impossible for her to work. She took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to build her up. After she had started taking it, she wrote to the Pinkham Company as follows: "I certainly boost Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I feel stronger already and sleep sounder. I am very glad to spread the good news of how it has helped me."

"Happy to Recommend Pinkham's"

Detroit, Michigan—"I heard of this medicine through an advertisement in the 'Detroit News' and wrote to Mrs. Grace Gillem, whose letter was published. Then I started taking the Vegetable Compound and got the best results. I used the Sanative Wash, too. I am really happy if I can advise women to take your medicines."—Mrs. M. E. HOUND DOG BUSINESS IN ARKANSAS NOW LUCRATIVE

EVENING SHADE, Ark., May 19—(AP)—Time was when the presence of a flock of houn' dogs around the cabin of an Arkansas countryman was regarded as a sure sign of shiftlessness and that the farmer was "triflin'."

Today, however, this has changed. For the houn' dog made famous in song and story has become the means of a surer prosperity for his raiser than corn or cotton. The hogs may run wild without care, but the dog gets the best.

If you travel through the Ozark hills and hear the booming voices of a group of hounds you may conclude that some dog owner is plying his trade of training hounds for market. A good hound today is worth up to $50 in the eastern market. And a good pair of hounds will pay the keep within a few days because for they will capture.

The market for hounds is active locally. This ad appeared recently:

"Now is your chance to raise hound pup from the famous old bull dog's mine. Old Bell took eleven prize possums and a rabbit in three last fall. Can trail and tree any varmint that ever ran on four legs."

RT. REV. E. CAMPION ACHESON NAMED BISHOP COADJUTOR EPISCOPAL DIOCESE

HARTFORD, May 19.—(AP)—The Rt. Rev. E. Campion Acheson, suffragan bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Connecticut since 1916, was today named bishop coadjutor by the clergy at the annual diocesan convention here. He was elected on the fourth ballot, having led by a substantial plurality in the three preceding. The laity, among whom Bishop Acheson had even stronger support than among the clergy, approved the choice of the latter by a large majority. Upon motion after the result of the balloting was announced in respective orders, the selection was made unanimous by acclamation.

Bishop Acheson who is 67 years old and a resident of Middletown, where he was formerly rector of the Holy Trinity church becomes bishop coadjutor to Bishop Chauncey B. Brewster, who is 77 years old. At the latter's request, the convention last year attempted to elect a coadjutor, but postponed further action until this year after 12 ballots failed to produce from one of the four leading nominees the 63 votes necessary to elect.

The election carries the right of succession to Bishop Brewster who has already designated the work he will turn over to the coadjutor. It also gives Bishop Acheson a seat in the house of bishops of the general convention which as suffragan bishop he did not have. His official occupancy of the office will commence at the ratification of his selection by the bishops of the other dioceses in the country, which will probably require two months. He will continue the duties of suffragan bishop until the diocese acts to relieve him of his connection with that office.

That a suffragan bishop would be appointed within a few years for Connecticut, or that the diocese, the second largest in area in the United States would be divided, was seen by some of the delegates today as the result of the appointment of a commission of clergy and laity to consider dividing the diocese and to study the matter of increased Episcopal supervision for the diocese. The commission is to make recommendations to the next convention, in area and the number of parishes and missions this diocese, the original Episcopal diocese, is exceeded only by New York, while it is fourth in the number of communicants and the number of clergy. Because it was the first recognized diocese, there is said to be a sentiment against a division.

In his remarks on his election after the convention met as one house following the approval of the clergy's selection by the laity, Bishop Acheson expressed his appreciation at being elected and pledged his loyal service to the bishop.

"It will be my duty," he said, "to first ease his burden. I will be loyal to him in the work of the diocese, and to the clergy and to the laity. I have no end to serve but the church and God. I will continue in the future as in the past, perfectly independent in expression and in action. If I accept on that basis, I feel that I can do something in this diocese and will continue its old traditions."

"I am at the bishop's service, day and night," he concluded, "if I become weakened in health and strength, I pledge you, I will not become a burden to the diocese, but I will hand back the trust you imposed in me today."

CHICAGO FINDS RADIO HAS AIDED MUSIC SALE

CHICAGO, May 18.—(AP)—Radio and the phonograph have extended the desire for individual musical accomplishment, if a consensus of reports from Chicago's music houses reflects general reaction.

The sale of sheet music was found never to be so great. The demand for band and orchestra instruments was never so brisk. The principal stimulus was declared to be the popularization of radio.

The statement of John Philip Sousa before a congressional committee that radio had brought with it a "listening public" which no longer bought nor played sheet music, was not echoed in these music stores. Representatives of the leading makers of musical instruments and the publishers of sheet music cited figures to show that the trade was growing steadily, especially since the perfection of radio.

Whenever one of the popular "mike" artists thumps a new song hit on his guitar or ukelele the dealers say there were many who resolved to master the magic of the melodic strings. Instead of such entertainment quelling interest in music, these men said it awakened a sense of musical appreciation.

Radio and the phonograph are not the only factors in the increasing vogue of musical instruments and sheet music, it was found. Contemporary with them has been a recognition of music by the public schools as a factor in education. Almost every public school now has its orchestra and its band, and gives scholastic credit for musical attainment.

The exception in the gain in the music trades as noted here was in the field of the pianos. The piano business has slumped in the last four or five years, although several leaders in the industry now find evidence of a comeback. They attributed the decline in the sale of pianos not to the invasion of the home by the radio or the phonograph, but to the motor car, the tendency to small homes and apartments and partly to their own failure to meet the advertising pace set by the manufacturer of other home equipment.

The phonograph trade was curtailed by the development of radio, but dealers here said figures indicate this year's sales will be greater than ever, particularly in view of recent improvements.

GETTING UP NIGHTS

Tells you there is danger ahead. A healthy bladder does not act at night.

J. H. Dorton, W. Graham, Va., says: "I had to get up seven or eight times at night for forty years. I thought it was my age. After taking Lithiated Buchu a short time, I am alright." Lithiated Buchu cleanses the bladder as Epsom Salts do the bowels, thereby relieving irritation, driving out foreign matter and neutralizing excessive acids. These are the causes of unnatural action of the bladder at night. Lithiated Buchu (Keller Formula) is not a cheap medicine. The tablets cost two cents each. Sold at all leading drug stores or Keller Laboratory, Mechanicsburg, Ohio. Locally at George Engler's Drug Store.

NOTED "SLOW TRAIN IN ARKANSAS" IS NO MORE

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 19 (AP)—The historic "Slow Train through Arkansas" passed from the picture many years ago and the promotion departments of state railroads intend to keep it so.

The coming of the heavier steel and well built road beds brought the same transportation advance here as elsewhere and railroad officials say trains are no longer slower in Arkansis than in other states.

It was this and the fact that the promotion departments of the roads are endeavoring to show the world that Arkansas is not behind the times that led to the dropping from the stocks of "news butchers" on at least one railroad of the old joke book bearing the slow train title.

There was a time when the slow train through Arkansas was a fact. In those days the equipment was light and roadbeds were poorly made. But today it is different. The Missouri Pacific runs some of the fastest trains on main line from St. Louis to Texarkana and thence via the Texas and Pacific and Rock Island run trains between Little Rock and Memphis, a distance varying from 134 to 150 miles in three hours and 20 minutes. The Rock Island takes less than six hours for one of its fast trains from Hot Springs to Memphis, a distance of 195 miles, partly through mountains.

The Missouri Pacific operates a number of high class trains from St Louis carrying tourists via the southern route to California. One mail train makes an average speed through the state of forty miles an hour or better. One passenger train running from St. Louis to El Paso reaches the Arkansas-Texas border 12 hours and 35 minutes after leaving St. Louis 493 miles away. The fast western trains of the Rock Island make about the same time.

Railroad officials think it is time that the old slow train idea was laid away and that the news agency aided them by barring the joke book from the trains.

LOWER MEXICAN DEATH RATE AIM OF U. S. SCIENTISTS

NEWARK, N. J., May 19 (AP)—Reduction of Mexico's death rate is the goal of a party of American scientists who will spend the summer in a study of that republic and its peoples.

The investigation has the approval of the Mexican government and public health officials and will be directed by Dr. Frederick L. Hoffman, consulting statistician of the Prudential Insurance company.

Mexico is reputed to have the highest death rate of any country, but in the opinion of Dr. Hoffman, much of its mortality is within the reach of preventive measures.

NIGHT CLUB TASTES ARE AS FICKLE AS FASHIONS

NEW YORK, May 19 (AP)—The tastes of people who make the night life of New York change like fashions, and if those who provide the entertainment would survive through the years, they must make humanity a subject of constant study.

This is a conclusion Sophie Tucker, internationally known night club artist, reached long ago. She believes its observance was never more necessary than at present.

"When I came back from Paris and London last winter, after seven years absence from night life here, I found conditions entirely changed from what they used to be," she said.

"Would you think ballads would take with those who now frequent the clubs? Oh, no. They don't want any Little Gray Homes in the West Songs.

"Hot songs are what they demand and you've got to sing them if you want attention. I use a ballad now and then and whenever I do I always feel the attention of my listeners dropping away.

"I make a close study of the people in my place every night and before I begin singing try to meet as many as possible. I want to know them and I want them to know me. Then I know what to give them in the way of songs and other entertainment."

Miss Tucker is disappointed in New York's present night life. The fellowship and desire for real entertainment, which she said existed in the days of the old Reisenweber club, now are missing.

"There's too much drinking now" she explained. "In fact, the chief thing appears to be the bottle and no one wants to quit until the bottle has been emptied.

"The night life of Paris and London is on a higher basis from every point of view."

Dainty hepatica is being brought in and blues cover great patches in the fields, in some localities.

More to be said about ICE CREAM than you ever dreamed!

Food, Health and Energy!

THE great "out-of-doors" and good food are partners in building health and energy. Ice cream is rich in food value. It has greater food value than many other foods commonly thought to be more substantial. For instance, taking equal weights there are more calories in Ice Cream than in beefsteak; roast chicken, pork chops, Haddock or eggs.

Ice cream is food in a form easy to digest. The body can quickly secure a refreshing new supply of energy from ice cream. It "picks you up" quickly when you are tired out.

Ice cream supplies the equivalent of milk for children who need to drink milk, but do not like it. It tempts people who have poor appetites, and so gives them needed nourishment in a form they like to eat.

Think of the delicious flavor of ice cream—surely! But think of it also as a food. Eat it often, as part of your regular diet.

Purity through control of raw products

WE CONTROL our own raw products—right from the farm to you. This gives us at all times a definite, dependable supply of cream whose purity and quality we know absolutely. This is only one of the precautions that we take in order to give you pure, rich, wholesome ice cream. Our laboratory methods of testing are described elsewhere in this advertisement.

Week-end Desserts; Guests; Economical Food; Smokes; Fatigue-time Help and Specially so!

An "easy" food

ICE CREAM is an "easy" food. As it requires no work of preparation and suits everyone, it is an easy solution of one of the week-end food problems.

Serve guests

ICE CREAM is a food you can be proud to serve guests. It's refreshing colors add to the attractiveness of the table, especially when guests are present. And it is so generally liked that it is sure to please.

An economical food

YOU find ice cream on the tables of the well-to-do, yet everyone can afford it. It's a luxury in flavor—yes, but in food value it's a very practical part of lunch or dinner. It combines luxury with economical food value.

A point for smokers

SMOKERS, here's a point for you. Ice cream refreshes your smoke taste. When your mouth and throat tell you you have smoked enough, but nevertheless you'd like another pipe or cigar—eat some ice cream or a nice sundae. Then, just like after a good meal, you can enjoy another smoke.

Fatigue-time help

DO YOU ever run into a period of fatigue in the afternoon, with more business or more shopping still to be done and no pep to do it? Eat some ice cream and see how quickly it refreshes you.

Variety

WE OFFER a variety of flavors, plain and in combination so that all taste preferences may be satisfied. A few of the delicious flavors are mentioned elsewhere in this advertisement.

Specially so

WE TRY to make all the good things that can be said about ice cream "Specially So" about our's. We enjoy a very valuable public confidence. We are going to the limit to protect and enhance that confidence and good-will. And we are going to do our best to keep you informed every week of the special flavors we offer. If you don't know who our dealer is near you, write or phone us and we will gladly tell you.

Watch for week-end Special each Saturday

EVERY week you'll see an announcement of the special flavor we suggest for the week-end. Every week a different one. Each one more delicious than the last. Every week a new surprise for the family. Watch for these announcements in the newspapers each Saturday.

Delicious Flavor—Creamy Smoothness!

IT ALL comes from using pure cream, fresh eggs, delicious fruits, rich syrups and delicacies from the kitchen of an expert chef. There's Vanilla, Chocolate and Strawberry—old favorites. There's Golden Cherry Custard, French Macaroon, Toasted Almond, Orange Nougat, Chocolate Nut Bisque—each one a delicious special.

A flapper eating some Fruited Nut Custard was heard to remark, "It's a wow on wheels!" High praise!

What's your special flavor? Ah, that's right. That shows you're a person of good judgement. Eat some today. It's the ice cream that makes French chefs jealous of America!

Made under conditions of scientific perfection

EVERY process in the production of our ice cream is carried out under conditions of scientific perfection. Our testing laboratory is in charge of Professor Henry F. Judkins, formerly head of the Dairy Department of the Massachusetts Agricultural College. Here, all the cream, fruits and syrups that we use are regularly tested for quality and purity.

FRENCH ENDIVE

Gardeners, who have paid high prices in the fall and winter markets for the salad known as French endive, can produce it themselves. Now is the time to plant for it. The plant used is a form of chicory known by the Belgian name of witloof. There are several varieties of it. Magdeburg is standard and good. It does not suffer seriously from either diseases or insect pests. Prepare a well-worked seedbed in which plant a few seed about an inch deep at intervals of six inches, with the rows eighteen inches apart. When the seedlings are established, thin them so that there will be only one in each place. This is important as two or three grown together make poor roots. Ordinary garden care should be given the planting throughout the summer. In November the plants will have leaves about a foot high and roots almost as large as a well-developed parsnip. Take these up then and leave them to lie in the open garden for a week or ten days, as this tends to remove the bitterness in the salad. Such frost and cold as they undergo then will not hurt them and probably improve them. Cut off the tops about an inch and a half from the root, and for convenience cut off the bottom of the roots so that they will be all the same length—eight or ten inches. In a well-drained, warm cellar provide a box of the area needed and about 12 inches deep. In the bottom place about six inches of moist earth brought from the garden. Into this thrust the chicory roots, so that they will stand upright about five inches apart each way. Then with more moist earth fill in around them, taking care that they remain upright, until they are covered, and add more moist earth until the tops are about six inches below the surface. That is all that need be done until the salad crop is harvested. The time of its development is about three weeks. Then the surface will be broken by the growth, and when the roots are removed they will be found to have compact heads, the French endive of the markets. If the growth does not break through in three weeks, the roots should be examined. They will probably be found to have developed shorter heads. If the cellar is very dry, it is sometimes necessary to moisten the earth, though this can generally be avoided by covering the box so as to prevent evaporation.

THREE REFINED COUSINS OF THE CABBAGE

Considering their popularity as table vegetables, their expense in the market and their ease of culture, it is surprising that so few gardeners have cauliflowers, brussels sprouts and kohl-rabis in the home garden. Cauliflowers from early sown seeds or plants from the seed heuses may be set out now for the early crop. Kohl-rabis can be sown in the open ground. They should be treated the same as turnips. As they are an early summer or late fall crop, doing best in the cooler portions of the season, the seed should go in at once. They may be transplanted as easily as cabbage but it is just as well to sow in rows and thin to six inches apart.

They produce an upstanding turnip, the swollen stem bearing the leaves being the edible portion of the vegetable, of delicate flavor somewhat resembling the cauliflower. They want rich soil and plenty of moisture.

Broccoli, which most people cannot tell from cauliflower, is attaining much popularity in the Pacific coast states where it is grown as an early winter crop and succeeds best here from early spring plants or for a late fall crop. Its culture is the same as the cauliflower. It is claimed that the broccoli is of more delicate flavor than the cauliflower, but to attain this flavor it must be cooked immediately after it is cut. Otherwise it is stronger. The head or curd is not as solid and close-packed as the cauliflower. This is the most substantial difference in appearance.

Brussels sprouts may be planted in May for the fall crop. They require the same cultivation as the cabbage and cauliflower and are at their best when the frost touches them in the fall. They make stems during the summer with cabbage-like leaves which are gradually moulted until only a tuft remains at the top and the miniature cabbages form at the scars where the older leaves grew. It is an expensive market vegetable but very easy to grow. All these plants need careful attention for plant lice and should be sprayed with a nicotine solution early.

FEEDING PROBLEMS DURING MONTH OF MAY

Spring is with us once more, and with its return comes the pasture feeding problems. Good dairy feeding calls for the use of plenty of roughage. Pasture grasses will furnish the roughage for the next two or three months in a very satisfactory manner. When we feed hay during the winter months we usually supplement it by feeding silage, in most cases, and in all cases we feel that grain must be used. When we turn our cows out to pasture we invariably cut out the grain ration. A little reasoning will show that this is poor judgment.

Cows that are dependent on pasture grass alone cannot get the amount of feed they need. Any cow giving over 3 pounds of milk a day will need some grain.

Many of our dairy herds are in excellent flesh at this time of year. The writer has watched a good many herds during the past year and has been much impressed with the feeding methods used both in pasture and through the winter. Cows that are in good flesh now should be so fed during the summer months that they will hold this condition. The writer does not mean that cows ought to be fat, but there is a great difference between a cow in good flesh and one that is a candidate for a hat rack. Keep the cows in good condition all the time. It is not a very wild statement to say that probably 90 per cent of the cows in this state spend most of their time in getting into or getting out of condition. Keep them in condition all the time and it will save money.

When we stop to consider that the average cow needs for maintenance and production from 100 to 150 pounds of pasture grass daily we can easily see why it is necessary to furnish some additional feed.—A. R. Merrill, Dairy Specialist.

NEW BULLETIN DESCRIBES VARIETIES OF ALFALFA

Before buying alfalfa seed there are three points upon which the purchaser should have information, says the United States department of agriculture. They are: The name of the variety, the section of the country in which it was grown, and the quality of the seed with regard to both germination and purity.

The alfalfas of this country vary in their adaptation to climatic conditions and length of day, some giving the best results in the north and northwest, whereas others succeed only in the south and southwest. As an aid to the prospective grower of alfalfa in determining the variety to grow, the United States department of agriculture has prepared Farmers' Bulletin 1467-F, Commercial Varieties of Alfalfa. The bulletin discusses in detail the origin, adaptability, and establishment of five distinct groups and their subdivisions. The five groups are: Common, Turkestan, variegated, non-hardy and yellow flowered.

Unfortunately, says the department, it is not possible to distinguish between the varieties or strains of alfalfa by the appearance of the seed, and the tests that have so far been developed to assist in this connection are not of much practical benefit to the farmer. It is important therefore, that dealings be had only with thoroughly reliable and intelligent seedsmen and growers.

SERIOUS EFFECTS OF THE CHESTNUT BLIGHT

The destruction of our chestnut by blight will cause certain economic disturbances. Just as the squirrel has now to search for other foods, so the industries dependent upon the chestnut will have to depend upon other trees, or go out of business. A large proportion of the poles used in this country are chestnut, but these can be made from other kinds of trees and from steel. Chestnut lumber, ties and other products can be replaced by products made from other species, but there is no substitute for the chestnut extract wood which supplies the raw tanning material for the extract plants and tanneries of the Southern Appalachians. The hemlock bark of the northwest produces a different kind of tannin and is too far distant from the eastern leather industry, while the chestnut oak bark of the east is not sufficiently abund nt and economical of manufacture to replace the chestnut. Thus we face the prospect of our vital leather tanning industry becoming dependent upon foreign supplies of tannin. Already we are importing about one-half of our supplies and with the passing of the chestnut, which makes up one-half of our domestic production of tannin, we will be in a much worse position.

One step which would help to conserve the supply of chestnut available for the extract industry is to stop the forest fires which annually burn over a material part of the Southern Appalachian forests. Growing chestnut is killed and blight killed chestnut is destroyed by these annual fires.

Limited experiments are now being conducted to secure a strain of blight resistant chestnut for planting as a source of tannin. The hairy Chinese chestnut shows promise because of its resistance to blight and its tannin content which preliminary tests indicate is higher than that of the American chestnut. But, as this chestnut and all other tests on it are limited, the planting of it on an extensive scale as a private investment, even if sufficient seed were available, can not be recommended. Other species of chestnut and related trees are being tested for their resistance to the blight and for their tannin content.

A few individual trees of American chestnut show a marked degree of resistance to the blight. Some of these trees are being propagated and tested as one of them may prove to be the starting point for a new growth of chestnut. The office of forest pathology in the bureau of plant industry, United States department of agriculture, is interested in receiving reports of exceptionally resistant chestnuts of any kind but a tree should have survived the blight after nearly all of the chestnuts in the vicinity have been killed before it can be regarded as especially resistant to the disease.

He that loves and runs away isn't worth chasing.

AUTO BUMPER IS GOOD FOR SAFETY UP TO 8 MILES PER

CHICAGO, May 19.—(AP)—The motorist whose automobile bumpers protect him at a speed of more than eight miles an hour is "just lucky."

Tests made by the Underwriters laboratories here for companies handling casualty insurance show that no bumpers can be guaranteed to protect a motor car and its occupants from accidents at a greater speed. Many accidents are prevented by bumpers when cars are traveling faster but the extent of such prevention cannot be calculated.

The laboratories have a heavy steel, bullet-shaped ram mounted on wheels on an inclined track. Fastening bumpers submitted for test to a standard motor car frame, they let the ram crash into the bumpers at various speeds and for a specified number of times. A calibrated device records the ability of the bumper to withstand the collision.

Experiments have shown that a car travelling more than eight miles an hour may under many circumstances crack off a lamp post or knock down a telephone pole.

OSWALD MOSELEY WILL HAVE HARD TIME DISOWNING TITLE

LONDON, May 19 (AP)—Oswald Mosley, socialist husband of Lady Cynthia, will have his hands full trying to dodge the title of baronet regardless of declarations that he would not accept the honor upon the death of his father.

The son-in-law of the late Marquis Curzon and the former Mary Leiter of Chicago, could only renounce the title by special act of parliament abolishing the baronetcy, say the legal lights, and this would be exceedingly difficult to obtain.

Lawyers also say that Lady Cynthia, who cares nothing for her title, preferring to be addressed as "comrade," could easily establish her claim to a peerage which has for some time been in abeyance in the Curzon family. If she does not want it, declare the lawyers, one of her sisters could accept it.

PLUCKY BIRD DOG SAVES LIFE OF MINING PROSPECTOR

TACOMA, Wash., May 19 (AP)—If hero medals were given to dumb animals, Henry E. Spencer of Tacoma would apply for one for Rex, his nine months old bird dog. Mr. Spencer credits his life to the dog which proved his bravery in a hand-to-hand fight with a mother cougar and her three cubs.

Mr. Spencer, who is mining in the Olympic mountains was suddenly confronted with the animals. He was unarmed and the beasts showed fight. Spencer threw rocks at the mother cougar, but in doing so he lost his balance and fell. Before the enraged cougar could spring, Rex appeared and attacked one of the cubs. This distracted the mother who turned on the dog. Spencer was able to retreat. The dog came through with only minor injuries.

LACK OF CAMELS LED TO MOVIE CONSTRUCTION FEAT

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., May 19 (AP)—A dearth of camels in Southern California led to the building here of one of the most ambitious "inside exteriors" ever attempted for the movies.

When Director George Fitzmaurice prepared his schedule for Son of the Shiek he planned to spend the first few weeks of production in the Arizona desert some miles from Yuma. For the long shots it was necessary to have several dozen camels. A search revealed that none was to be had. All of them in Southern California were being used in other pictures.

Fitzmaurice, resorting to strategy, decided to build his own desert. As a result, thousands of tons of sand were piled onto the big stage at the studio and skilled craftsman evolved an oasis, a clump of palm trees and two ruined temples. The set was constructed in such perspective that to the camera it appeared to be several miles in length, when in fact it occupied only about half a city block.

With the made-to-order desert under a double battery of the most powerful studio lights, the principals appeared in a series of close-ups while enough camels were rounded up to start filming scenes out on the real desert.

At the last meeting of Little River grange in Hampton, the program was competitive, with Mrs. Frank Nichols, leader of the sisters' side, and William W. Jewett, the brothers'. The judges Asa Burdick, Mrs. Arthur Hyde, Mrs. Arthur Marsh, decided in favor of the sisters.

TAYLOR, WITH FAMILY IN MYSTIC, ROBBED FOR NEW LONDON AFFINITY

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 19. — "That's what a woman can do for a fellow!" said Russell Taylor, as he sat in the prisoners' pen in the police court this morning after his conviction and sentence for robbing the American Railway Express company of goods which the company claimed were valued at more than $500. Taylor was associated with Joseph Burnham, a brakeman, in the crime. Taylor has been in the employ of the express company. He evidently "got off the track," for he had become enamored of a young divorcee in this city and was with her much of the time when he and she had leisure. The express company missed goods in transit and then put Inspector W. H. Haney on the job of finding where the goods disappeared to. The inspector traced the goods to New London, where they were in the custody of Taylor as platform man. The movement of the goods was checked up and they were found to have come into the possession of Taylor, but never to have been forwarded beyond his jurisdiction. At first he held out and denied his guilt, but the inspector was convinced that he had the right man and Taylor yielded and confessed by writing out his statement and signing it in the presence of Mr. Haney and Capt. Kelly of the railroad police of the New Haven road. No detail was missing from the confession. Taylor told what he had stolen and said he gave the plunder to a "lady friend." The officers went to the residence of the woman and there found much of the plunder. It was largely silk underwear, chemises, stockings, step-ins, etc. There were shoes, too, disclosing that the "lady friend's" wardrobe would not press for replenishment for a considerable time. It was not disclosed that the woman knew the goods were stolen or she was not connected with the robbery to any other extent than that disclosing her as receiving the plunder. Taylor has been estranged from his wife at Mystic, though whether the estrangement came about before or after he met his affinity is not known. It is apparent that Taylor was badly smitten and that he did not try to break away from it. He had bought an automobile to be paid for in notes, but the payments had not been made and he is said to have lost the machine. It was also anything when he was not employed and with it he was at the beck and call of his "lady friend." Mrs. Taylor came to this city and sought to have her husband return to his home and to his three children, all small, but her mission was not successful. The best she could do was to get from him an agreement to contribute $10 a week to her support. She did not want to divorce him, for she needed his support for the children of whom he is the father. For her own support she did not care; for that for her children she was anxious. She had the mother-love for them and for them she planned. Taylor was earning sufficiently well to provide an ideal home for himself, the woman he had sworn at the altar to partake for and forsaking all others cling to her alone, and for the children born to him. His wants are understood to have been $42 a week. Even that was not sufficient for the manner of living he had adopted and the wife and children were the sufferers. The prosecutor represented the best side of the case to the court and told Judge Prince that Taylor was entitled to some sympathy because he had confessed his crime and had spared the state the expense of prosecution. He had made a full and complete confession and told in detail of his offense. The enormity of the offense was such that Taylor might have been bound over to the superior court and held in jail here till next September before he would have been brought to trial. To show him some consideration Taylor was permitted to plead guilty to a complaint that he had stolen goods of the value of less than $500. Then he was sentenced to jail for a month and was ordered to pay a fine of $100. Joe Burnham, also had leisure. The express company missed goods in transit and then put Inspector W. H. Haney on the job of finding where the goods disappeared to. The inspector traced the goods to New London, where they were in the custody of Taylor as platform man. The movement of the goods was checked up and they were found to have come into the possession of Taylor, but never to have been forwarded beyond his jurisdiction. DR. THOMAS W. ROGERS DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 19. — Dr. Thomas W. Rogers, about 74, well known and highly respected practicing physician of this city, died shortly after noon today at his residence, 42 Huntington street. He is survived by his wife. Dr. Rogers' death was caused by shock and he had been ill at his home many months. He had practiced medicine in New London about 30 years and had been a resident of this city practically his entire life. He specialized in diseases of the ear and throat. Dr. Rogers was in New York attending a convention of physicians when he was stricken and was immediately transferred to his home where he had been confined continually since.

Raymond Brown, a sailor attached to the S-1, submarine base, was painfully injured late last night when he fell down a flight of stairs at the Stanton restaurant, sustaining lacerations of the right ear and scalp. He was taken to Lawrence hospital where several stitches were necessary to close the wounds. Today Brown was allowed to return to his boat. Brown was at the eating house, which is frequented principally by sailors about midnight and in endeavoring to go to the street, lost his balance and plunged down the stairs, his head striking the metal stair-strips, rendering him partially unconscious. A pedestrian observed Brown as he plunged to the street entrance and notified Sergeant Patrick Murphy, who was at the corner of State and Bank street. The officer went to Brown's assistance. Brown was bleeding profusely from a deep cut on the right ear and another on the scalp. The ambulance from Lawrence hospital was summoned and the sailor was removed to the institution.

Complaint has been lodged with the police because of the grounds of the Nameaug school, Montauk avenue, being used by young men late in the afternoon and on Saturday afternoons as a ball field, depriving the children who attend the school of the use of the grounds. Last Saturday afternoon the ball players smashed several windows in the building and the teachers have requested that the young men be ordered to refrain from using the grounds.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stockel today ordered the operators' licenses of Guiseppe Contino, 288 Bank street, and Edward Bergevion, submarine base, returned to the owners. The licenses were suspended two weeks ago for violations of the automobile law.

William Glossenger, formerly a frequent visitor to the court, was there today after a long absence. He was charged with intoxication and admitted that he was rightly accused. William, during the war period and after the advent of prohibition was very industrious and accumulated a savings bank account that, properly handled, would have provided for him a long time. But he shifted his course with the result that he was in court again. He was given his chance today by a suspension of judgment.

William Anone and his brother-in-law Joe Sultara reside in the same house in Shaw street, but the premises are not large enough to accommodate them and keep them at peace. They got into a row over their respective rights in the yard, and in the fracas Rosario Frena was struck in the face. They brought their troubles to the court. There they were told to settle their differences and to come back a month hence and tell the court they were to dwell in peace.

Committal service for Jennie W. wife of Dr. James W. Morgan, formerly of New London, whose death occurred at Providence Saturday, was held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in Cedar Grove cemetery. Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ, officiated.

A thief obtained a considerable quantity of building material and implements last night, when he visited the partially constructed house on Highland avenue and stole among other articles six bundles of shingles one-half keg of nails, a gallon of paint and a gallon of shellac, besides a saw and hammer. The theft was discovered this morning, when Daniel Heffernan, 579 Pequot avenue, contractor, appeared at the building to cause operations to be resumed. Heffernan reported the theft to the police.

Morris O'Connell, of 20 rear Tenth street; Miss Delpha Danagha, Uncasville; Dewey McGowan, submarine base; Edmund Hyde, Stonington; Joseph Couderi, Westerly; Charles Riley, 71 Ashcraft road, and Ernest Pearson, 13 Richards street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were dismissed today.

George Ross, colored, was arrested this evening charged with intoxication and theft, when complained against by Morris Roe, white. The latter was taken into custody on a charge of intoxication, more particularly because the police wanted to be sure that Roe would be on hand tomorrow morning to appear against Ross in the police court. Roe complained to Patrolman Frank Philopena that he had been robbed of $30 at Ross' home in the basement, 137 North Bank street and that Ross did the robbing. Patrolman Philopena, accompanied by Motorcycle Officer Augustus Ray went to Ross' home and placed the man under arrest. Ross denied that he perpetrated the robbery, but accused Annie Kennedy, a notorious character, who, Ross said, had been at the house a short time before accompanied by a male acquaintance. When the police arrived there, however, the Kennedy woman and her companion had departed. The Kennedy woman is well known to the police and a search is being made in an effort to apprehend her.

Edward Hickey, an old offender against the law, will be in the police court again Thursday morning. He was arrested on State street today by Patrolman John Clifford charged with intoxication and begging.

Mrs. John Mansfield and infant son of 26 South Ledyard street, were patients dismissed at Home Memorial hospital today.

Edward Daniels, painter, whose lifeless body was found in a sitting position at a table in his lodging room, 24 Golden street, yesterday morning a month after death had occurred, was buried in Jordan cemetery yesterday afternoon. Services were conducted at 62 Washington street by Richard W. Mansfield, superintendent of R. P. Learned mission.

It is expected that a strike of journeymen plumbers will begin next Monday when the present working agreement between the masters and journeymen will have expired. All attempts to adjust the differences existing because of demands made by the plumbers have proved futile with the masters, who intimate that the new schedule as it now stands will not be signed. If this proved to be the case there is sure to be a strike. The present wage of the plumbers is $1 an hour and they seek an increase of 5 cents. Besides the increase in wages, the journeymen demand that the masters do not employ non-union plumbers; that they shall receive double time for overtime; that they shall be paid a half day's pay if they go on a job that takes more than an hour or less than an hour to perform; and payment for a full day's work on any job that requires over five hours and less than eight hours. Several meetings have been held between the committees representing the plumbers and journeymen, but nothing leaning toward a settlement has been reached.

Coroner J. J. Desmond of Norwich, has concluded his investigation into the death of John Att, Flats of Colchester, who was killed by a Groton & Stonington Traction company trolley car at Poquonnoc bridge on the afternoon of the 8th inst., and announces that he will probably render a finding within a week or 10 days. Fatt was riding on a truck operated by Lawrence Thompson and as the truck emerged from a yard the trolley car was approaching. When Fatt saw that a crash was imminent he leaped to the ground landing between the tracks. In another instant the the truck was knocked from the rails and Fatt's body was terribly mutilated.

APPROPRIATIONS $123,000 AND TAX OF 12 MILLS VOTED

(Special to The Bulletin).

WILLIMANTIC, May 19—Without a dissenting vote, except on a $1,000 proposition for playgrounds, the 500 electors of Willimantic voted appropriations of $123,000 and a 12-mill tax on the grand list, at a special city meeting held in the town hall Wednesday. Mayor John C. Tracy presided and City Clerk James F. Donohue Jr., read the warning. Resolutions calling for $100,000 for improvements and repairs to the city water system, $20,000 for sewers on Ann and Hope streets, $2,000 for the Visiting Nurse association and $1,000 for playground equipment were introduced by Corporation Counsel William A. King.

Discussions on the various appropriations made the meeting one of the liveliest in some time. The first resolution was in regard to levying a 12-mill tax payable June 14, 1926. The tax will raise more than the amount called for in the budget. School Committeeman Robert O. Snow and John Regan opened the speech-making on the $100,000 appropriation for the water system. The former was heartily in favor of it Mr. Regan said that it was a good idea. "But we should first" he said, "secure enough water at the pumping station pond." The proposed improvements were outlined by Henry W. Taylor, engineer of New York, who made a careful survey of the system and drew up the specification of the proposed works. The new machinery at the pumping station will use one-third less water to pump than the present one and will eliminate the necessity of resorting to steam power during the dry season.

The second major project is an additional distributing main of 14 inches from the reservoir into the city. At present there is but one 12-inch main.

The next important step is to install a complete loop by laying a main from Jackson street over Lewiston avenue and down High to Valley streets, thus encircling the Hill section and providing more adequate fire protection as well as added domestic pressure.

A further check-up will be made on the sewer flush tanks which were partly cut down in July of last year, serving to eliminate a waste of over a half million gallons of water a day. It is believed that 200,000 more gallons can be saved. The dam at the pumping station, which is badly leaking, is also to be repaired, in the program. By eliminating the use of steam power the saving in coal and labor per year will almost pay the interest on the debt incurred to make the improvements.

On this matter Attorney Samuel B. Harvey asked about the necessity of the project. Alderman Robert H. Fenton added to the words of Engineer Taylor. Justice George E. Hinman raised a question relative to the methods of raising the money. An amendment was offered to the resolution, providing that the money be raised eventually by the issuance of bonds. Ex-Mayor Charles A. Gates and M. E. Lincoln were also heard on this issue. Those heard on the appropriation of $20,000 for sewers on Ann and Hope street were Alderman Charles H. Beebe, T. R. Sadd, Alphonse Chagnon, John E. Brick and M. E. Lincoln. It was pointed out that, according to custom, two-thirds of the cost of installing the sewers is assessed on the property owners. There are 32 of these on the two streets.

Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton delivered a stirring brief address in behalf of the Visiting Nurse association when the appropriation of $2,000 to carry on that work was brought up. This amount, like the two preceding ones, was voted without a dissenting vote.

The $1,000 for playgrounds came under the verbal fire of Messrs Snow and Regan. Regan could not see the sense of putting money into the playground and Snow thought that nothing short of $10,000 a year could do the work. The plans for this year were outlined by Mayor Tracy and the resolution adopted. On motion of Counsel King the mayor and common council were authorized to borrow the sum of $110,000 or any part thereof to meet the appropriation voted at the meeting and were instructed to fund the debt in the form of serial bonds, upon receiving permission to do so at the next session of the legislature in January. The meeting adjourned at 9:30 (D. S. T.)

Martin House Barber Shop Opening

On Friday this new establishment of two of Norwich's most popular and enterprising young barbers will be opened to the public by Edward Brodeur, more popularly called Eddie Brothers and E. J. Ravenell—or to his friend just "Jerry," both very well known to them public. Eddie has worked in the best shops and hotels and for the past 15 years was with the Wauregan Hotel shop and "Jerry" has a longer experience as a barber and owner. He has worked in the Narragansett Hotel in Providence also in Fontains Hair Cutting Parlors for a period of 5 years.

To insure a most up-to-date shop they spent a week end in Boston and have installed what is considered the last word in barber and beauty equipment and accessories. The whole shop is done in white enamel with the mirrors and stands of French plate glass with white glass trim, mounted on the stands are the sterilizing cases of white glass with German silver trimmings, insuring the last word in sanitation.

Underneath the stand are the cabinets for the sanitary seal pack envelopes containing an individual comb and brush for each customer and containing towels and barber accessories, all enclosed in this dust proof cabinet. The trim and panels enclosing mirrors and stand and separating the women's compartment from the men, are of mahogany as are the waiting chairs. The barber chairs are the latest design Koch chairs of white porcelain with German silver trimmings and deep upholstery of black leather.

For the ladies compartment there are beauty chairs with a new and novel arranged shampoo board enabling the customer to have a shampoo without leaving the chair. A latest type Londyette hair drying machine is also installed in this department, insuring a quick and sure dry head before leaving the shop.

The latest type Shelton vibrating machine the use of which allows the operators to give a massage without any metal parts touching the skin, thereby insuring a sanitary massage are used. Electric clippers for each operator are provided. For the kiddies they have a novel attachment, a hobby horse mounted on their chair of white porcelain with German silver trimmings, which serves to keep the child's attention and insures a "painless operation" following the largest city style with this installation. The two large wash stands are of vitrous white China.

Sanitary neck bands are used exclusively and being used only once, insure absolute sanitation. Floor coverings are of battleship grey inlaid linoleum and lighting fixtures are daylight lenses with ornamental side wall fixtures, insuring absolute daylight at all hours.

Outside the shop is mounted a new electric revolving sign of the usual barber shop emblem.

Special attention will be given to women and children's bobbing and every convenience installed tends to help toward no waiting for men. Souvenirs for the opening day and the shop motto is "Service With a Smile," insure "Ed and Jerry" a popular reception in their new venture.

Breed Theatre

It takes more than a flood to make a torrent—at least the kind of torrent audiences at the Breed theatre are now seeing, in the spectacular new Cosmopolitan production of "Ibanez' Torrent." The torrent is there — a gigantic onrush of water that tears a village up by its foundations and spreads devastation in a mighty thrill that that is not the real torrent in the story. The torrent, as the author, Vincente Blasco Ibanez, saw it, was in the maelstrom of human emotions that sweep away destinies just as the mighty flood carried material things before it.

The new picture is a mighty thrill, and an enthralling drama that grips one very heartstrings. Wonderfully acted, gorgeously staged and costumed —it has more than that. It tells a powerful story in a new way—a way that leaves one gasping at its sheer originality.

Broadway Theater

Not even a fireman will be able to find a technical fault in the manner in which the actual fire scenes in The Still Alarm, a Universal-Jewel coming to the Broadway theater commencing Sunday as first feature in a double program were handled. They are said to be perfect in every detail, for with the exception of William Russell, John T. Murray and Edward Hearn, who impersonate firemen in the picture, every other fire-fighter in the cast is a member of the Los Angeles Fire department.

Forty firemen were used in these thrilling scenes, the men working under the direction of Lawrence B. Andrews, a Los Angeles battalion chief. In the scenes where the horse-drawn apparatus figures all the drivers were veterans of the old days and most of them are nearing retirement. They got quite a thrill out of once more driving the horses. Many of the horses used in the picture are also veterans of the department, having come out of their retirement to work before the camera.

There also was the real smoke and the real fire of a big conflagtion, belching out from windows and roof. Floors crashed and roofs fell in. Apparatus dashed in an out of the scene. Police kept back the curious. In fact there was re-enacted everything that takes place at a real fire.

The cast is an all-star one. Among the players are Helene Chadwick, Russell, Travers, Edna Marion, Murray, Dot Farley, Edward Hearn, Erin La Bissioniere and Jacques d'Auray. The Still Alarm was directed by Edward Laemmle.

Broadway Theater

I am his wife—listen to my story. Why should I be cast aside late in life that another woman may have my husband? He feels I have not kept step with his progress. That is man's selfish view; all men share it. I question the justice and deny the right of my husband to repudiate this partnership to which I have contributed a home and a child.

I did not "trap him into marriage." He took me as he found me. His growth and social development are due to greater opportunities I could not have in the confining environment of our home in a small town with a baby to look after. He now justifies his leaving me because society has not accepted me; a weak defense when a woman has given her all to a man. That's the basis of my marital break with Stephen Dallas. What can he say in answer to this?

STELLA DALLAS.

Over half a million people laughed and cried at the motion picture Stella Dallas in the seven months it showed at George White's Appollo theater, New York. This great audience has seen and heard both sides of the story and willingly paid $3 for a seat.

It is coming to the Broadway theater soon at prices within the reach of all. An augumented orchestra will be an added attraction. Our advice is to watch for play date.

Palace Theater

The rumble of the World war was heard once more when Director George B. Seitz reached that part of The Vanishing American, Zane Grey's epic of the American Indian, which includes the adventures of the hero in France during 1918.

Thousands of men participated in the making of these scenes at the Presidio at Monterey, California, where four batteries of French 75.s were called into service.

This particular part of the story sets forth the part played in the World war by the red men who fought side by side with and for the people, who are responsible for taking the western empire from them. Richard Dix is the Indian hero while Lois Wilson appears as the white heroine. Noah Beery and Malcolm McGregor also are featured players in the picture, coming to the Palace on Sunday.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theater

A few weeks ago one of those Vienna professors who emerges on started occasions stated that American men were shrinking in stature and that in three million years we would be a race of pigmies. If a Vienna professor could step back stage during a performance of They All Want Something the new Herman Gantvoort production which comes to the Broadway theater, Monday night he might change his ideas or increase the amount of annual shrinkage necessary to produce the aforesaid pigmies. He'd see a few potential giants at that performance to wit:

Herman Gantvoort the producer is six feet two and one half in half hose; William T. Tilden the tennis champion who is featured in the play standing six feet one and one half inches with shoulders as wide as a yard stick; Courtenay Savage author of the play a neat six feet with a golf brown complexion to make the picture complete. Joseph Green well known player who is in the cast another six footer and others of the company just missing the six foot mark. The only small man about the place is the director William Hurley—Dynamo Hurley on Forty Second street—who bosses all the big ones and doesn't need to be tall to get by.

"They All Want Something is one of those plays that promise to "rock buildings with laughter" and "double up audiences." It comes heralded as genuinely amusing. Reservations now by phone or mail. Seat sale Friday morning.

There are but few contented people who do not occupy space in cemeteries.

DECLINE IN STOCK PRICES

NEW YORK, May 19—(AP)—Speculators for the decline continued in control of the price movement in today's stock market. With the industrial average down to within 2 points of the low levels established in the March and April declines stronger resistance to selling pressure as apparently, particularly in the motor group which is believed to harbor a large short interest. Total sales today were 937,000 shares, or 64,000 below those of yesterday.

The day's business news was largely conservative in character the weekly steel trade reviews reported that the demand for steel in the first half of May was better than the corresponding period last month. Freight car loading for the week ended May 8 were nearly 13,500 above those of the corresponding week last year. The Sinclair Oil company reported net earnings for the first four months of $9,310,000, compared with $5,168,000 in the same period last year.

One of the most interesting financial developments of the day was the announcement of an issue of $134,000 additional common stock of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, making it the first "Billion dollar corporation" in the country.

The attacks of bear traders today centered largely on high priced industrial specialties. American Brake Shoe and Foundry broke over 8 points to 110 and then rallied to 113 3-4. Several established new low records for the year.

Oils displayed a firm undertone despite some selling inspired by reports of increased crude production. Panhandle producers and refiners and Lago again touched new highs. Rumors that Hudson directors would declare a special dividend distribution tomorrow brought about active short covering in that stock, which closed over two points higher at 89 1-4, and in the other issues in the automotive group.

Rails were sluggish despite the continuance of heavy freight traffic and predictions of unusually favorable April earnings, particularly by the hard coal carriers. Up to April 1, 1926, class one railroads authorized the expenditure of $822,000,000 for new rolling stock and other improvements according to statistics made public at the spring meeting of the American Railway association.

Commodity markets showed an irregular price trend. Active wheat futures were 1 cents a bushel higher to 1 cent a bushel lower. Cotton trading was dull with final quotations 4 to 10 points higher Raw sugar was unchanged. Coffee ruled 5 to 15 points a pound net lower.

Banks called about $10,000,000 in loans during the day, but there were plenty of funds available. Call money held at 3-4 per cent all day, but it was available in the "outside market" at 3 1-2 Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

A moderate recovery in the European paper currencies featured the irregular foreign exchange market. Demand sterling was slightly easier just below $4.86. French francs rallied over 10 points from yesterday's low to 3.85 cents and Belgian francs sold above 3.90 cents. Italian lire also made further recovery of about 13 points to 3.90 cents. The Scandinavian currencies were easy.

TAFTVILLE

At the service last Sunday morning in the Taftville Congregational church in connection with Girls' week a part of the service was taken by two girls of the church school. The responsive worship was led by Miss Mildred Dunlop and the scripture lesson was read by Miss Elizabeth Houston. Two anthems, A Clean Heart, by James M. Black, and Sing Unto the Lord, a new ones by John B. Creswell, were rendered by the girls choir. In keeping with the day Rev. Edwin G. Crowdis preached from the text, How Beautiful Upon the Mountain are the Feet of Him Who Bringeth Glad Tidings.

Lionel Bellale has resigned his position with the spinning department of the Ponemah company.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rondeau and family moved this week from North Third avenue to a house on Providence street.

ITALIAN SEWING CLASSES END TERM WITH MAY PARTY

The 80 little Italian Catholic girls who have been in the sewing classes taught each Wednesday and Thursday afternoon in the rooms of the Diocesan Bureau of Social Service, 120 Main street, Norwich, finished their season with a May party from 4 to 5 Wednesday. Their work is in charge of Miss Mary F. McKay.

The two classes united for the closing session, when there were games and songs, also an exhibition of the work done by the little girls, who felt very happy when carrying home their completed tasks—petticoats, bags, aprons and holders. Miss Delia Maroney, secretary for the state bureau, was up from the New London office to attend the party and commend the children for their faithfulness.

Prizes of books were awarded Anna Angiese and Natalie DeLucia for perfect attendance during the term, which began in October. Cake and ice cream were served, by a committee in charge of Mrs. Roderick F. Sullivan and Mrs. John J. O'Rourke. The children were permitted to take home their material to continue practice in sewing during the vacation.

The Modern Laxative

ANNUAL CITY MEETING TO VOTE ON POLICE AND FIREMEN SALARY RAISE

Included in the "extras" in the city budget which the finance committee will place before the court of common council at its adjourned meeting in the council chamber this (Thursday) evening will be an item to provide for a salary increase of fifty cents a day for the members of the police force and fire department. Tuesday evening Mayor Milo R. Waters and members of the police committee were in conference with a committee representing the police department at police headquarters with the result that it was decided to place an item in the budget to provide for the increase.

Mayor Waters stated Wednesday evening that the budget will include the item for the police increase and in accordance with an agreement with the fire department made six months ago a like increase will be included for the firemen.

In addition to the ordinary appropriations for various city departments there will be a number of "extras" asked for by petition to the court of common council. It is understood that the "extras" most of which are for street improvements in various sections of the city will total in the neighborhood of $150,000.

After the budget has been acted upon by the court of common council it will be placed before the annual city meeting in June for action by the voters of the city. Tonight's meeting of the council will be the final meeting of the fiscal year.

Last year the common council took similar action in regard to a wage raise for the policemen and firemen, putting an item of $6,000 in the "extras" to cover the amount needed for the policemen and $7,500 for the firemen.

Both items were voted down in the annual city meeting, there being no one to appear there in support of them.

SALVATION ARMY REPORTS ON WORK OF PAST YEAR

Below is a report which the Salvation Army of Norwich is mailing to all citizens who have contributed to the maintenance of the Salvation Army in 1925, also a letter of comment by Earl G. Taggart, chairman of the 1925 appeal, who has also undertaken to lead this year's campaign. His connection with the 1925 drive, has given Mr. Taggart an insight into what those who are leading in a good cause have to offer for the welfare of the Norwich community. When the call came this year he has enlisted with a new enthusiasm based upon experience and self-confidence. He also has the assurance of the wholehearted support from many citizens, who volunteered to raise the $4,500 needed by the Salvation Army for its charitable efforts during 1926.

The campaign will begin Monday May 24th, with a supper at the Central Baptist church given by the courtesy and kindness of the ladies of the church. At the supper all captains and team-workers of the ladies and men's divisions will gather for an hour of inspiration and receive instruction in the conduct of the campaign. The present organization consists of a larger number of volunteer workers than in any previous Salvation Army drive, and the success of the personnel in such as to carry the largest amount of weight. There is an unanimous feeling among the captains and team workers that the drive will go over the top in a very few days. The report is as follows:

To Mr. Earl G. Taggart, chairman of 1925 appeal committee; all members of committee, contributors, and friends of the Salvation Army in Norwich:

During the past year 249 religious services have been held on the street corner and 364 services in the hall besides 129 services for the young people, which included the Sunday school. This makes a total of 743 services during the year, or an average of about two per day throughout the year. There were 13,275 people attended these services. You will remember that many of the people that attend meetings in the Salvation Army hall do not and will not attend a service in a church. We are trying to reach the man that is down but not out. There have been 79 families helped with groceries, 6 families with coal, 6 families with wood, 7 families with furniture, 20 families with shoes, 49 families with clothing which represents 250 pieces of clothing, a nice makes a total of 68 families given material aid. In addition to the family relief work we are being called upon continually by the transient men and sometimes women for various kinds of help. We have been able to help 140 people with meals, 54 people with lodgings, 32 transient people with shoes, 52 people with clothing and 2 with transportation. We had the pleasure of supplying 42 families with a complete Christmas dinner last year which means that 250 of Norwich's poor had a good dinner in their own home on Christmas day and a Christmas tree party to 130 poor boys and girls. I am sure you will be interested to know about our visiting work, which I feel is one that affords us the greatest opportunity of bringing cheer and help, and we are glad to do a service which is of great value to our city of Norwich. We have visited 76 families where there has been various kinds of sickness, and although we did not need to bring groceries or clothing in some cases we were able to help by giving a little cheer. We also visited 1,390 other families where there was not sickness, which makes a total of 1,466 families visited in Norwich during the past twelve months. We have spent over 700 hours at this work alone, besides carrying on our many other branches of activities.

This makes a total of 21,925 persons that have been reached or have been benefited by the services rendered in Norwich by the Salvation Army in the past year.

Trusting this covers the matter thoroughly and satisfactory, and assuring you that we will be glad to do even more during the coming year if the needs are made known to us and we have the support of the people of Norwich as we have had in the past.

Yours truly,

CAPTAIN AND MRS. CASHMAN,
Officers in charge of local work.

To the Citizens of Norwich, Conn.:

My dear friends:

During the first week of June, 1925, when the Salvation Army made the annual appeal for funds, through the committee of which I had the pleasure of being chairman, the citizens of Norwich responded generously.

I am very proud to be able to report to you at the end of the budget year of the Salvation Army, and say that I consider that the work that has been done by the representatives of the organization has been one of great value and help to the community. When I look over the "Report of Activities" of the Salvation Army for the year which has just closed, I feel justified in having made the appeal last June for the local organization. I am confident that you as a subscriber toward the support of the work of the Salvation Army will also feel proud that you had the opportunity of helping to carry on this very important work in our community.

Trusting you will feel repaid for the contribution you made toward the support, after reading the accompanying report, I remain,

Yours respectfully,

EARL G. TAGGART,
Chairman of 1925 appeal committee.

The Saturday Evening Post contained Dr. Penniman's review of "They Knew the Washingtons," the letters from a French soldier with Lafayette and from his family in Virginia as translated by the Princess Radziwill.

NORWICH TOWN

Tuesday afternoon each of the four shut-ins of the Johnson Home family was presented a dainty May basket filled with oranges, candy, fancy wafers, flowers, etc, by Ever Ready Circle of the King's Daughters, comprising members of the First Congregational church. The much appreciated gifts, so attractively arranged, were presented Mrs. Mary Webb, Mrs. Elizabeth Geer, Mrs. Fanny Abel and Miss Mary Witter. A fifth May basket was presented Mrs. Agnes Blackburn, occupant of Ever Ready Circle's room at the home.

The top floor at the Johnson Home, originally used as a ball room many years ago, has been converted into four pleasant sleeping rooms, all neatly furnished and ready for occupancy. One room has already been taken by Mrs. Ida Connell, for 7 years the faithful assistant matron at Rock Nook Children's Home. Having retired from active duties, Mrs. Connell has enrolled as a member of the home family.

Another applicant is to come next week, and thereby make use of one of these new rooms. About two weeks ago, Miss Phoebe Barber, a former resident of Central Village, joined the home family.

Mr. Teitsche carries with him the best of wishes of Norwich Town friends. He has been a very successful gardener at the fine residence of Mrs. William H. Palmer, "Elm Hill," Washington street.

HIGHER THAN WOOLWORTH BUILDING

Year's Sales of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

MRS. ED. DAUGHERTY
1308 ORCHARD AVENUE MUSCATINE, IOWA

The Woolworth Building in New York City, which towers 792 feet above the street, is the highest building in the United States.

If all the bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound sold in 1925 could be placed end to end, they would make a column as high as the Woolworth Building with enough left over to extend from Lynn, Massachusetts to Cleveland, Ohio.

In many little villages as in many thriving cities along the route, who are glad to tell others about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In a recent letter, Mrs. Daugherty says, "I was ill for four months before I took your medicine. I found one of your books at my front door and read it. It seemed to fit my case, so I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and after I took the third bottle, I found relief. I am on my eleventh bottle and I don't have that trouble any more, and feel like a different woman. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to every one I see who has trouble like mine. I am willing to answer any letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Ed. Daugherty, 1308 Orchard Avenue, Muscatine, Iowa.

Mrs. Carr Also Helped

Muncie, Indiana.—"I could not get around to do my work. I took treatments and they did me no good. I had always heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine and I thought it would be like all the others, but I found out after I took half a bottle, as I have proved it wonderful. I am taking it yet and I can do all my work. I am feeling fine now, and it is your good medicines that have done it. I tell every woman of the good I get from taking the Vegetable Compound and from using the Sanative Wash."—Mrs. P. W. Carr, 721 West Powers St., Muncie, Indiana.

FRANCE TO FIGHT FURTHER DEPRECIATION OF THE FRANC

Government Has Decided to Use Every Possible Resource and Credit at Its Command—Finance Minister Peret is to Confer Immediately With All Financial Institutions For a Transfer of All Available Assets to an Organization Designed to Regulate Exports and Imports—Parisians Angered by "Offensive From New York Against the Franc."

PARIS, May 20—(AP)—The French government's expressed decision to "use every possible resource and public credit at its command" in its fight against further depreciation of the franc had the effect today of improving the financial situation materially, the dollar dropping from 25.15 to 23.26 francs, and sterling from 170.80 to 162.15.

Confidence appears to have been restored on the part of French bondholders and demands for reimbursement of short term notes due today fell more than a billion francs short of what the treasury expected.

The decision of the council of ministers to adopt stern measures, such as the use of the Morgan loan, which has been feared by speculators since it was floated in March 1924, and the threat to employ even the gold reserve as protection against further attack on the franc had the desired result.

M. Peret, finance minister, is to confer immediately with representatives of all the banking and financial institutions with a view to transferring available assets now existing in the Bank of France from foreign commerce to an organization designed to regulate all exports and imports.

Meanwhile, political circles have become alarmed over the continued depreciation of the franc. Premier Briand today received a delegation from the radical-socialist group of the chamber —one of the most important numerically—headed by Louis Malvy, former minister of the interior, which demanded that parliament be convoked at once to ratify the ministerial measures in defense of the franc.

This M. Briand refused, saying that the convocation of parliament before the scheduled date, May 27, would cause unnecessary alarm. He is reported to have told the delegation: "The franc will take care of itself without the assistance of parliament."

Among the rank and file on the street "the offensive from New York against the franc" is held responsible for the present collapse of the French standard. This was reflected in derogatory remarks openly made in the boulevards and streets of Paris while the Connecticut Footguards and Richmond Blues were parading.

"Long live the dollar at thirty-five!" was the cry that greeted the Americans as they passed down the Champs Elysees.

A bitter feeling against Italy for buying francs at sixty days and then selling them for cash in stemming the adverse tide against the lira, financial circles aver, is also evident.

REVIEW OF THE CRIMINAL LIFE OF WHITTEMORE

BALTIMORE, May 20.—(AP)—Fifteen years of conflict with the law passed in review before Richard Reese Whittemore today.

Juvenile court, Parental school, Maryland school for boys, Portsmouth naval prison, Elmira workhouse in New York state, Maryland penitentiary—truancy, disorderly conduct, incorrigibility, absence without leave and breaking arrest, burglary, robbery —taking of human life.

Debonairly the alleged organizer of New York's "million dollar crime trust," admitted it all to 12 men beyond a jury box, rolling in criminal pay.

Whittemore slew Holtman because "if he had got his pistol out, I wouldn't be here today," he told the jury—in defense.

Whittemore slew Holtman in order to escape from prison, the state has told the jury—first degree murder.

Whether prison doors or the gallows trap will yawn for him, Whittemore will know tomorrow. Prosecution and defense rested their cases today. Summing up, preliminary to giving the case to the jury is scheduled for tomorrow morning.

Whittemore struck Holtman down with an iron bar on February 20, 1925, took his keys, left the guard unconscious and walked from the prison. Holtman died two days later but the authorities, although Whittemore's name was connected with every major crime over the period of a year, never had another glimpse of him until he was arrested early on the morning of March 19, last, in New York, during a wholesale crime round-up.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY AMERICAN PRINTING CO.

Dow of the American Printing company, Fall River, was re-elected president of the Cotton Piece Goods Traffic association at the annual meeting of that organization this afternoon in the Agawam Hunt. David Duncan of the Lonsdale company, the vice president, and E. F. Walker, secretary-treasurer, were also re-elected.

Freight service in New England improved during the past year and the railroads give assurances that changes will be made this summer and in the fall which will further increase their efficiency," declared Traffic Manager Henry M. Tarr in his report on the transportation situation as it affects the members of the association.

TROLLEYMEN VOTE 600 TO 500 TO ACCEPT WAGE INCREASE

NEW HAVEN, May 20—(AP)—By a vote of 600 to 500, the conductors, motormen and shopmen throughout the state have accepted the two cents an hour wage increase offer of the Connecticut company as well as the working conditions suggested.

In the referendum taken throughout the state a total of 1,100 votes were cast. Practically all unions of trolleymen voted in favor of accepting the increase. The Hartford division, however, by 64 votes recorded itself against the proposal.

The vote practically adjusts the wage and hour controversy between the men and the company, which has been the subject of negotiations during the past two weeks. The wage increase and the changes in the working conditions will be embodied in a yearly contract, which is to be made operative June 1.

OPPOSED TO MORRIS PLAN BANK IN TORRINGTON

HARTFORD, May 20—(AP)—Opposition to the establishment of a Morris plan bank in Torrington, was led by former State Senator John N. Brooks, president of the Torrington Savings bank, at a hearing on the application of nine residents of the city for a charter before the state banking commission at the capitol today.

An unusual factor of the opposition was that it included that of a Morris plan bank in another city. Representatives of the Waterbury Morris plan bank were present to present claims to charter rights of the Torrington territory issued by the Industrial Finance corporation, which controls the Morris plan ideas.

The incorporators of the proposed bank declared that if these charter rights interfered with the use of the Morris plan name, they would be willing to establish an industrial bank with another name, under the sanction of the banking commission. The matter, as regards the Morris plan name, was further complicated by the fact that the incorporators of the proposed Torrington institution have a certificate from the Industrial Finance corporation allowing the use of the name in that city.

TROUBLE IN NEW HAVEN OVER PARKING ORDINANCE

NEW HAVEN, May 20—(AP)—Mayor John E. Tower has called a special meeting of the board of aldermen for tomorrow night to act upon a petition of merchants on Chapel, Church and State streets, asking that the ban on automobile parking in sections of those streets between 8:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. be rescinded.

More than 170 merchants signed the petition which was presented to the mayor today by a committee.

An effort will be made at the meeting to obtain unanimous consent for the rescinding of the parking ordinance. More than 100 of the merchants appeared at city hall today in an effort to see the mayor. The city's chief executive consented to receive a committee of the merchants and while this conference was in session, the rest of the merchants held a business session in the aldermanic chambers. It was then that the petition was decided upon and a committee was named to draft it.

PORTRAIT OF PRESIDENT IN MASS. SENATE CHAMBER

BOSTON, May 20.—(AP)—A full length portrait of President Coolidge, painted by Edmund C. Tarbell, Boston artist, was unveiled today in the Massachusetts senate chamber in which Mr. Coolidge presided in 1914 and 1915.

The presentation was made by Senator Charles B. Frothingham of Lynn, author of the resolve providing for the placing of the portrait, and Wellington Wells, president of the senate, accepted for the name of the commonwealth.

Governor Fuller and members of his council were present, as were seven of the 11 former presidents of the state senate now living, Speaker Hull of the house of representatives, and a large number of members of both branches of the legislature.

NEW HAVEN, May 20—(AP)—Transactions have been completed whereby the Derby Gas and Electric company will be taken over by the Citizens Utilities, Inc., of New York, a subsidiary of the Utilities Power and Light company of Chicago. It is expected that within a few days notice will be sent to the stockholders and, their approval of the transaction will be asked.

A few months ago the Wallingford Gas company was purchased by the same company now negotiating for the Derby concern. No other public utility plants are owned in the east by the New York and Chicago concerns, but they possess several plants in the middle west.

FOOT GUARD RECEIVED BY PRESIDENT DOUMERGUE

SAILL PLAYERS NARROWLY ESCAPED DROWNING

STAMFORD, May 20.—(AP)—Three members of the baseball team of the Massey school of Stamford, which is scheduled to play the Fordham freshman team tomorrow, had a narrow escape late today, when the rowboat they were in was blown three miles out in Long Island sound. Two other boats attempted to rescue them, one of which was capsized by rough water on the way back to shore.

The three were Joseph Strobelites, of Waterbury, Conn.; Peter Augustine, Springfield, Mass., and Robert Brennan, Pawtucket, R. I. They started out for a short paddle in a rowboat with one paddle and two broomsticks. The paddle was lost and the sticks were useless in the wind which started to carry them out into the sound. Their plight was noticed by other students at the school and Edward Thorne, of Bridgeport, and John Redfield of New York, in another rowboat went to their assistance, but were soon pulled to give up the chase.

Frank Silva, coach of the baseball team, and Raymond Murphy, of New Haven, a student, manned a third rowboat while others prepared to launch a powerboat. Silva and Murphy managed to reach the boat with the other three and hailed a fisherman's motorboat. Lines were cast out to both rowboats and the trip to the shore was started. When within about a half mile of the coast, rough seas caused the boat in which Silva and Murphy sat, to capsize, but they managed to swim to the other rowboat and finally all five were landed safely.

HARTFORD, May 20.—(AP)—An answer to the state's petition requesting appraisal of about six acres of land on the McCook estate in East Lyme, sought for expansion of the Seaside sanatorium property, will be filed in a few days by counsel for the McCook heirs, Charles Walker Cross said tonight. Judge Christopher L. Avery, in superior court at Norwich, recently denied a motion to quash proceedings and over-ruled a demurrer, ruling the condemnation act of the 125 legislature to be valid.

Mr. Cross has not yet received a copy of Judge Avery's decision. Brown, of New London county, is special counsel for the state.

Mining Dispute in Britain Deadlocked

Both Miners and Owners Refuse to Accept the Government Proposal.

LONDON, May 20.—(AP)—The mining dispute reached a new deadlock today with the refusal of either the miners or mine owners to accept the government plans for a solution of the difficulty. The national conference of miners' delegates, in rejecting the government plan for a solution of the olution which declared: "We are unable to recommend that the mine workers accept Premier Baldwin's proposals for a reduction of wages."

The mine owners will not deliver their reply to the government until tomorrow, but it is known to be non-acceptable. The difficulty, therefore, is again where it was when the general strike was called, and it was reported tonight that the miners were making all preparations for a longer stoppage, failing some new move on the part of the government.

A cabinet council was held this evening to consider the question, and further conferences between the ministers and interested parties are expected tomorrow, which may put a new aspect on the problem. But the prospect is that the government will be obliged to proceed with parliamentary action in order to force some kind of settlement upon the contending parties.

Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian, indicted on a similar charge, was not in court. Attorneys said he was confined to his home in Wilmington, Del., by blood poisoning. The cases will be argued in three weeks.

Daugherty and Miller were indicted following an investigation of the sale, to an alleged German owned Swiss company, of $7,000,000 worth of alien property seized during the war under the enemy trading act. Federal Judge Goddard, after entering the plea, recommended the arguments be made before Judge Augustine N. Hand. He said he was appointed judge while Daugherty was attorney general.

Champagne Taste In Bathtub Liquid

NEW YORK, May 20—(AP)—A "person" sat in a bathtub full of liquid that "tasted like champagne" at a party in the Earl Carroll theatre, it was testified when the producer went on trial today for perjury in connection with grand jury investigation of the festivity.

Arthur Irwin, a reporter for the "Daily Mirror" testified for the government that he was present at the party from early in the evening of February 22 last until five o'clock the next morning and that he had two drinks from the bathtub.

Minutes of the grand jury hearing at which Carroll testified that there had been no liquor served at the party and that no person had gone into, fallen into or been pushed into a bathtub, were read in court.

"After the curtain went up on the stage there was a table in front and, on the right, elevated on a platform, a bathtub."

"Was there any liquid in the bathtub?" he was asked.

"Yes."

"Did you drink any of it?"

"I did. I filled my glass twice."

"What did it taste like?"

After objection by counsel for Carroll had been overruled, the witness testified that he was "positive it tasted like champagne."

"Did you see any person, man or woman in the tub when there was liquid in it?" the questioning continued.

"I did," the reporter replied, and at this point the case was adjourned until tomorrow.

The "bathtub party" was given in honor of William Ebdrington, who had "staked" Carroll when he was in need of money to finance his theatrical operations.

There were only two women in the crowded court one of them Mrs. Carroll, who sat at the defense counsel table. Joyce Hawley, showgirl who has been mentioned as the person who displayed drinks from the bathtub while sitting in it, was not in the courtroom but she stayed in an adjoining room for witnesses until adjournment.

When the grand jury minutes were read it was revealed that one of the matters on which Carroll has been questioned was the guests who attended the party. Asked to name some he mentioned the Countess of Cathcart, who at that time had just been released from Ellis Island, where she had been held on a charge of moral turpitude.

"Is that all you can remember?" he was asked by the grand jury room.

"That is all."

Grand jurors then asked him if Conde Nast and Harry K. Thaw were present and he replied that they were. He also agreed when their names were mentioned the some half dozen other persons were there.

"Where there any literary men there?" he was asked.

"No sir."

"Wasn't Irwin Cobb there?"

"Oh yes, he was there."

He also told the grand jury that he didn't know whether Miss Hawley was present or not.

"I really don't know her," he was recorded as saying. "I have so many girls that I don't know some of them in my own companies, and she wasn't in any of them. She was in a pageant at the Astor and we invited 60 or 70 girls in the pageant to the party."

PRESIDENT HAS SIGNED RAILWAY LABOR BILL

WASHINGTON, May 20—(AP)—The Watson-Parker bill for settlement of railway labor disputes was signed today by President Coolidge who said in a statement that although he would have preferred "a more definite declaration for the possible protection of the public" he believed there was involved an issue of "first public importance," that of encouraging an industry to adjust relations between employer and employe without the intervention of the government.

With presidential approval of the act, the railroad labor board, in existence for six years, was abolished and a new system provided for by the establishment of conference groups and adjustment boards within the industry, and the creation of a board of mediation whose five members are to be appointed by the president.

If the board, by conciliation fails to effect a settlement of a dispute, provision is made for arbitration, or as a last step for the appointment of an emergency board by the president to investigate and report on the facts involved for the information of the public. The members of the mediation board are expected to be named in time for the senate to confirm them at the present session.

The animal also bit a bull dog that accompanies Mr. Burns and later was seen to attack a group of five dogs on Park street.

About 5 o'clock this evening the dog was seen in the neighborhood of Wolcott hill where it entered a yard at Wells road and bit a wire haired fox terrier, according to reports to Commissioner on Domestic Animals James M. Whittlesey.

WOULD BAR PLANES, POISON GAS AND TANKS IN WARFARE

Proposal Made by Count Von Bernstorff, Former German Ambassador to the United States—The Smaller European Countries Persist in Their Demand For Security Before Disarmament—Pleasure Expressed at the Helpful Attitude of the American Delegation at the Disarmament Discussions in Geneva.

GENEVA, May 20.—(AP)—Quick concrete results in European land disarmament were deemed to be further removed today, when additional states, including Rumania, Poland and Finland, following the leadership of France, verified their conviction that disarmament can come only after the achievement of greater security than now prevails. But many of the delegates found hope in Paul Boncour's admission that the Locarno pact and the league covenant had created new security and that "relative security permitted relative disarmament."

Another distinct feature of the day's proceedings of the preparatory disarmament commission was the proposal of Count Von Bernstorff, former German ambassador to the United States, to abolish air warfare by forbidding the use of airplanes, as well as poison gas, heavy artillery and tanks.

At the same time, Count Von Bernstorff, answering allusions that Germany's industrial strength would have to be taken into account when Germany's neighbors were asked to disarm, declared:

"I do not want to evoke memories of the past, but history has demonstrated the impossibility of transforming our industrial equipment into implements of war, primarily because our factories are so near the frontier that they can be destroyed at the very outset of a war."

A naval conference between Great Britain, the United States and Japan for the discussion of naval disarmament is among the possibilities. The Japanese have announced their intention to advocate such a conference if it is found that France and Italy would not attend a naval conference apart from a general disarmament conference.

Disarmament circles seem to be pleased at the helpful attitude of the American delegation in the disarmament discussions.

A questionnaire before the disarmament commission has been referred to the drafting committee for simplification, and the commission will probably adjourn soon to await the reports of experts to whom all questions will be submitted.

JAPANESE MAY PROPOSE NEW NAVAL CONFERENCE

GENEVA, May 20—(AP)—Japanese delegates are considering the possibility of a three cornered naval conference between Great Britain, the United States and Japan.

The Japanese delegates, who are attending the sessions of the preparatory commission on disarmament here, today told a correspondent for "The Associated Press" that they would advocate such a conference provided it were found that France and Italy would not attend a separate naval conference.

The Japanese spokesman expressed themselves as in favor of a security Washington naval conference. They explained that Japan had abandoned its position taken at Geneva that naval and land armaments could not be disassociated. They are now convinced that naval matters can be handled separately.

They declared that even if France and Italy should hold to the theory that naval and land armaments should be discussed at the same time the United States, Great Britain and Japan could frame a supplementary Washington agreement by themselves. This agreement would cover cruisers, submarines and seaplanes.

Deep interest was displayed today in the probable attitude of the United States and Great Britain on the Japanese viewpoint, which is described as incorporating the idea advanced by some delegates to the present disarmament conference. The American delegates declined to comment on Japan's suggestion.

OPPOSITION TO PILSUDSKI DEVELOPING IN POLAND

POSEN, May 20—(AP)—The smouldering fires of discontent with Marshal Pilsudski's regime are assuming international importance, while the leaders of the right parties pour into Posen for conferences. It is learned that secret agents are being despatched to Paris to confer with the French government.

The secretary of M. Thompcynski, president of the senate, returned from Paris this afternoon. He refused to discuss his mission, although admitting having gone there. The province of Posen is virtually a state within a state, running affairs without orders from Warsaw.

The military garrison is being strengthened, although the officials in this conservative stronghold deny that a counter revolution is being planned.

Patriotic societies and veterans' and students' organizations are feverishly preparing for any emergency.

The nationalists' demands that the garrison commander General Hauser, and the provincial governor, Count Bninski, be given dictatorial powers have been effectively discouraged by M. Trompcynski, who has proclaimed that the normal functions of these men are sufficient for the present crisis.

The demands of the five right parties are as follows: The national assembly electing the president must be held outside of Warsaw; the new president must enjoy the confidence of the whole nation and must not be actively identified with politics; the cabinet appointed must not include revolutionaries like Marshal Pilsudski, but non-political personalities.

The conservatives declare that a dictatorship by Pilsudski means civil war, exposing Poland to aggression.

COLLEGE EDUCATION DOES NOT FIT FOR NEWSPAPER WORK

MIDDLETOWN, May 20.—(AP)—That a college education does not prepare a man for work on a big city newspaper was the opinion given by Don C. Seitz, co-editor of "The Outlook" and former business manager of the New York World in a vocational talk given here tonight to students of Wesleyan university. He advised the man who wanted to enter the field of journalism to go to a small town paper first and learn the fundamentals instead of wasting time in college.

Mr. Seitz also cautioned his audience not to try to obtain employment with a large metropolitan daily unless he was sure he had the stuff in him. He said that advance in the field of journalism was more rapid than in many others for those who could produce.

Speaking of the editorial pages of modern newspapers, Mr. Seitz declared that the public was reading them in increasing numbers, although this page is still read by but a small percentage of persons. He declared himself strongly in favor of ably written editorials.

The American consul has made strong representations to Governor Tang Chi-Yao of Yunnan, demanding that immediate measures be taken to obtain Captain Bette's release.

NEW CONFIDENCE GAME TO SWINDLE BANKERS

NEW YORK, May 20—(AP)—The district attorney's office today claimed to have nipped in the bud "an entirely new kind" of confidence game planned to swindle bankers of $5,000,000, through the arrest of Paul Sarazen.

A statement issued by the prevention of fraud bureau of the district attorney's office told of the tracing of Sarazan and Jacob Madiaw through their operations in New York, Jersey City, and Buffalo and said that the pair had already succeeded in inducing stockholders of several corporations of over $200,000. The statement said that Sarazan, following his arrest in a local hotel, confessed that $5,000,000 was their goal.

The scheme, according to the prevention of fraud bureau, was to induce financially solid institution to permit the swindlers listing their stock on the Boston curb exchange, to get them to supply a list of stockholders, and then to persuade the stockholders to advance their holdings, together with cash to support a "cooling operation, under the promise that this procedure would raise the quotations of the stock on the exchange. In some cases the borrowed stock was returned, but the cash advanced for the pool was kept by the swindlers.

Sarazan and Radiaw, organized the Home Deposit Co., with luxurious offices in Wall street, but fled to Jersey City, after a raid on their offices by the district attorney's investigators, the statement said.

SESSION OF NEW ENGLAND HOSPITAL ASSOCIATION

HARTFORD, May 20—(AP)—Patent medicine addicts, who are so able to discover in themselves every symptom described by the facile pen of the patent medicine advertiser, need psychiatric treatment, according to Dr. C. Macfie Campbell, director of the Boston Psychopathic hospital. Dr. Campbell addressed members of the New England Hospital association, whose fifth annual meeting opened today at the Hartford hospital.

Diplomacy in presenting bills to dismissed patients was held up by Charles Lee, superintendent of the Waterbury hospital, as one of the chief difficulties faced by hospitals in the creation of good will and the proper moulding of public opinion.

Mr. Lee, who led a discussion following a talk on "Hospital Courtesy" by Dr. T. Eben Reeks, superintendent of the New Britain general hospital, said that sometimes all the good will created in the hospital is destroyed on the presentation of what to the patient's mind is a staggering bill.

"Get your bills paid in advance," was a solution to this problem advanced by James R. Mayo, director of the Homeopathic hospital at Providence. "And you can get your money while admitting a patient," Mr. Mayo said, "provided you are diplomatic about it."

INTERSTATE BUS CASE WITHDRAWN BY PLAINTIFF

WILLIMANTIC, May 20—Two cases deferred from earlier in the week were disposed of and one started this Wednesday afternoon was concluded at today's session of the Windham county superior court, after which Judge Christopher L. Avery ordered court adjourned until next Tuesday at 9 a. m., standard time. For that date the assignment includes the cases of Walter Rewell et al vs. George F. Taylor and George Spaulding vs. C. L. Okkerd, both to jury. Tuesday will also be motion day for restoring cases to the docket and there will be a short calendar session in connection.

The first case disposed of at today's session was the Interstate Busses Corporation vs. Richard T. Higgins, C. E. Elwell and J. W. Alsop, comprising the Public Utilities Commission. Attorney Kelley of Norwich and Judge Alexander Croedon of Hartford, for the plaintiff and defendants respectively, appeared before Judge Avery, the former announcing that the plaintiff corporation had withdrawn their case. The action resulted from the petition of the Interstate Busses Corporation, who operate a bus line from Providence to Hartford, via Putnam, Quinebaug and this city. The company sought to obtain a Connecticut franchise to do business between Putnam and Quinebaug which is now held by George J. Gary of Stafford Springs and is said to be giving patrons between the two points good service. The Interstate Busses Corporation was of the opinion that they could improve the service.

The other case disposed of was that of Jeremiah Downing of Plainfield vs. John Borgesson of Canterbury, a foreclosure suit. Attorney Arthur M. Brown for the plaintiff and Attorney John H. Barnes for the defendant informed the court that an agreement had been reached regarding the matter. Attorney Brown read the items to the court. Judge Avery then rendered a decision in favor of the plaintiff to recover the amount of foreclosure, $2,-152.88 with cost of $45.66. The defendant was given until the fourth Monday in August to recover.

The balance of the testimony in the case of Jackson & Sumner, local automobile dealers vs. Frank Brown of Mansfield, which was started late on Wednesday afternoon, was then heard. The plaintiffs seek to recover damages of $500 for a collision between one of their automobiles and a car owned and operated by Brown on March 3rd last at 5 p. m. at the intersection of Valley and Windham streets. Stanley J. Sumner, the first witness, testified that he was riding in the car owned by the plaintiff firm, which was being used on the date in question for demonstration purposes and sat in the rear seat. The car was driven by Roger Lescoe with the latter's wife sitting on the seat beside him. The machine was descending Windham street at a speed of about ten miles an hour and upon reaching the intersection of the streets, had passed by the center when the one driven by Brown, approaching from the right on Valley street and going in an easterly direction, crashed into the rear right side of the plaintiff's car, damaging a fender and door to the amount of $86. In addition to this the automobile had to be sold at a reduction of $150. There was also the inconvenience and expense of using another car while the damaged one was being repaired as it could not be used for demonstration purposes. Sumner claimed that Brown was driving his car at a rate of speed of 30 miles an hour. He said he was looking most of the time but did not see Brown until he was only a short distance away on a high stone wall on the right obscured his vision in that direction. The force of the collision was such that the rear of the plaintiffs car, a Studebaker, was pushed more than two feet out of line.

Roger Lescoe, driver of the damaged car, said that he had driven a car for some time. He was driving the car in an easy manner down Windham street and had tried the brakes at the top of the hill and they worked to perfection. He was taking every precaution and at the bottom of the hill was moving slowly. As the car he was driving was more than half way over the south side of Valley street with plenty of room for the Brown car to pass, he testified. Lescoe was cross-examined at some length by Attorney Samuel R. Harvey. The defendant, Brown, stated that he had driven a car for nine years, was a resident of Mansfield and had been in the wholesale and retail ice business for a number of years. On the day in question he said that he was driving his car east on Valley street. When about fifty feet from the west corner of Windham street he saw the other machine. He slowed up and the other car came to a stop in the center of Valley street. He came up close and the other machine started up again but came to a sudden stop. He then started to go by but owing to the position of the other vehicle he did not have room enough and the collision followed.

Lescoe, recalled to the witness stand and denied that he had stopped his car twice as related by Brown. Both sides then rested their cases. Judge Avery said that he would accept the briefs in the case on Tuesday of next week. After court Judge Avery with the attorneys interested, went to the location of the accident and looked the ground over.

Miss Alice Kretschmar gave a talk on Glass at the meeting of the Willimantic Woman's club Tuesday afternoon. A history of its development was told, beginning with the origin somewhere in the valley of the Nile about 3,000 B. C. up to the present time. The progress was followed into Italy, Spain, Bohemia, Germany, Belgium, France, England and America as each country's glass-makers attained perfection in some particular line of the industry. Many beautiful articles were shown, illustrating different kinds of glass, such as blown, molded, pressed, cut, etched, engraved, enameled, etc. Members of the club loaned a varied collection of glassware made an interesting display.

Miss Madeline A. Holmes, a teacher in the primary department of the Oak school, was tendered a delightful miscellaneous shower in honor of her approaching marriage, at the Windham street school kindergarten Wednesday evening by the teachers of the model school. Miss Holmes was the recipient of many beautiful presents, artistically arranged in a large May basket. A color scheme of yellow was used with daffodils. Following games a luncheon was served by a committee in charge and music and dancing were enjoyed. The Misses Margaret Robshaw and Hazel Haire rendered pleasing vocal solos. Mrs. F. J. Just the flavor texture and keeping qualities that women like—

No one knows better than they the kind of bread that particular housewives everywhere have wanted!

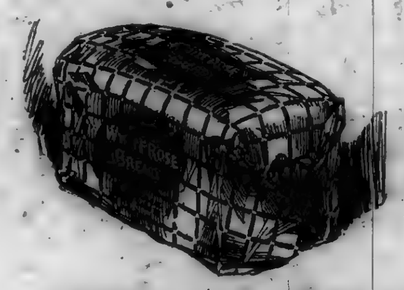
That is one reason why White Rose Bread has the satisfying flavor—the firm, even grain—and, above all, the "keeping quality" women like.

A domestic science teacher who has made careful tests of dozens of different brands of bread says of White Rose, "I have never known a loaf to stay fresh so long."

Try White Rose Bread yourself. Notice the difference. Notice its texture—firm and even, like the moist fresh loaves you remember in your childhood. See how much its full, rich flavor adds to each meal.

Your own grocer has White Rose Bread. It comes to you in a blue and white checked wrapper like a fresh tea towel.

It is baked not once but twice each day and rushed to your grocer—to be fragrantly fresh whenever you buy it. Massachusetts Baking Co.



Wrapped with Every Loaf of White Rose Bread, Friday, will be a recipe of the delicious Apple Charlotte, as made by the Chef of Sherry's famous restaurant in New York. This is one of the series of recipes of the most famous chefs in America, which you will find each Friday with your loaf of White Rose Bread.

USE BULL RING TACTICS IN TEACHING NEW DANCE

LONDON, May 20 (AP)—West End dancing academies have been turned into bull rings for the purpose of teaching the paso doble.

"Be a toreador" is the favorite expression with teachers. "Imagine you are confronted by a mad bull," say the teachers, in an effort to create the atmosphere of the new Spanish dance. The first movement is a kind of promenade two-step—that's the toreador entering the arena. Then a little fast foot-work from left to right, as if watching and endeavoring to avoid the charge."

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, May 20.—Putnam celebrated its return to the list of convention cities by proving to be a hospitable host to the postmasters of Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island in their 20th annual meeting Wednesday and today. Over 45 heads of various third and fourth class officers of these New England states attended at the B. P. O. E. hall and the Putnam inn.

The appointments to the resolutions committee included the names of Postmaster Frink of Brooklyn, Mrs. Gertrude Tracy, Wauregan, Conn., and Mrs. Everett, Bolton, Mass. In their report the committee stressed the point that a bill is now before congress concerning the civil service requirements. Should this fail of passing, the league should use every effort, they stated, to bring about the adoption of a measure for new examinations.

Throughout the two days, Putnam merchants and citizens co-operated to offer to the temporary guests a spirit of enthusiastic welcome. The sidewalks were lined with flags and across Main street at Union street, a welcome banner was suspended, together with similar greetings through the business section. A curtailment of a part of the program, due to the non-arrival of several expected speakers, was found necessary. The gap was bridged by lively discussions and through considerations of new projects. Postmaster MacDonald and his force of assistants at the Putnam office were visited by the delegates during their stay.

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, May 20.—Elzear Malley, eight year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Malley of Dayville, died at the Day Kimball hospital, this afternoon from injuries received when he was struck Wednesday night, by the automobile driven by Louis Dumas of Goodyear, but formerly of Putnam. The boy was attended at his home shortly after the accident by Dr. F. P. Todd of Danielson, and later removed to the hospital in this city. An X-ray disclosed several fractures of the skull and two fractures of the lower jaw. The boy never regained consciousness after the accident. State policemen from the Danielson barracks investigated the affair. Mr. Dumas was not held and witnesses stated to the police that the lad ran directly in front of the approaching car, and that the driver did everything possible to avoid running into him.

Dr. S. B. Overlock and Dr. Marguerite J. Bullard of Putnam are attending the annual meeting of the Connecticut State Medical society, which is being held in New Haven.

Winthrop C. Sutts of Woodstock, who was seriously injured in the automobile accident at Wilsonville, late Tuesday night, seems to be showing some signs of improvement at the Day Kimball hospital. He is still on the danger list.

The Rev. N. B. Burton, pastor of the M. E. church of this city was recently re-elected president of the Norwich district of the Epworth league.

The Vernon Stiles inn on Thompson hill opens this week for the summer season.

Henry J. Potter of Hartford, but formerly of Woodstock, is visiting with his nephew, Attorney E. C. Morse on Seward street.

At a recent meeting of the Spanish war veterans of Putnam and vicinity held at the chamber of commerce rooms it was voted to re-establish the A. Wilder Merriman camp of the United Spanish War veterans, and the following officers were elected: Commander, William McCoy; senior vice commander, Clarence W. Chase; junior vice commander, Thomas Duffy; adjutant, Henry L. Converse; quartermaster, Harry W. Sharpe; officer of the day, William Jueary; officer of the guard, Charles Lowe; chaplin, Juda Benoit; patriotic instructor, Charles F. Richardson; historian, Henry L. Converse; trustees, A. D. MacIntyre, Charles F. Richardson, Everett M. Carver.

These officers will be installed on May 25, and it is now planned to have a public installation. The A. Wilder Merriam camp was originally formed here shortly after the close of the Spanish war, and for many years was an active patriotic organization. For the last 15 years it has been inactive, but it is believed that the revived camp under its present personnel of officers, will become one of the actively functioning camps of this patriotic order.

At the assembly at the Israel Putnam school this week, Miss Snyder, with the help of four boys, gave a demonstration on first aid. She showed how to correctly apply artificial respiration in case of drowning, gas poisoning, shock from lightning, or in fact most any kind of unconsciousness.

Her second illustration showed how to give first aid to a person with a deep cut or wound and a third illustration showed how to care for a broken limb until care could be given by a physician. The boys under Miss Snyder's direction made the program exceedingly interesting and instructive.

Next week Mr. Battey, the truant officer, will speak on "Model Astronomy."

Past Grand Master Lucius H. Fuller, James F. Gifford, Eldon S. Johnson and Carl E. Weeks were in Hartford Thursday attending the annual meeting of the Grand lodge I. O. O. F. of Connecticut. At noon a banquet was held for the grand lodge officers and representatives by the Hartford Past Noble Grand association.

Invitations have been issued by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Nichols Fisher of School street for the wedding of their daughter, Elnora May Fisher and Earle Sabin Spencer, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Spencer of Woodstock avenue. The ceremony will take place on Tuesday, June 1 at St. Philips Episcopal church.

The men of the Second Congregational church are to serve the women of the church a supper on Friday night, to be followed with an entertainment. A committee from the Men's club has made all of the arrangements for what they call a real meal and will not only serve it in style but will wash the dishes after the supper has been served.

The program will consist of musical selections, a story, a stunt and two films, "Trees of Tomorrow" from the state park and forest commission and "Just Folks" by Edgar A. Guest.

The social and supper held at the town hall last Tuesday evening, May 18, drew a large attendance from our own town and from Stafford. The supper, which seemed to be much enjoyed, was cleared away early. The surprise entertainment, which proved to be a group of boys from Frank's Junior band of Stafford, accompanied by their able leader, Mr. Frank Lasbury, was then in order. The music given by these kind friends was greatly appreciated.

REFERENDUM IS THE WAY

While the Pennsylvania primary is certain to be regarded as an expression of the people of that state against prohibition, it is impossible to overlook the fact that there were more votes cast against the successful candidate than there were for him. There's no questioning the fact that Mr. Vare is an out and out wet and that he stands for the repeal of the Volstead act. It is entirely possible that the people of Pennsylvania look at prohibition in the same light but thus far they have not said so by their votes since more republicans voted against Mr. Vare than voted for him.

But when it comes to getting the sentiment of a state concerning the wet and dry question there is no doubt that Senator Reed of Pennsylvania has the right idea when he urges a state referendum. For the same reason that Mr. Vare's success can be interpreted as meaning that Pennsylvania is wet it can also be said that Senator Pepper lost because of his action regarding the world court or because of his stand in regard to Newberry. Whatever part those matters played in the primary there is no reason to believe that they caused his defeat. Pinchot's candidacy floored Pepper and gave Vare his chance to get the benefit of a divided opposition.

For a correct expression of the sentiment of Pennsylvania a referendum will tell the story. That permits a straight out and out expression upon that question. It would not hinge upon anyone's candidacy. The voters could vote for whatever ticket they desired, or whatever candidate on any of the tickets, without affecting their expression concerning prohibition and it is not by any means certain that Pennsylvania would not be wet. It would be the proper test of the wishes of the people of that commonwealth and as such should serve as the guide for its legislators in dealing with that question. What sentiment is under any other condition is largely obtained through guesswork.

FIRE LOSSES

How many people give consideration to the reports which are made from month to month to the effect that the fire loss for the country for the month was the largest since such records were kept, larger than the previous month or possibly smaller? These figures are printed each month but how many really give consideration to them and what they mean?

It has recently been reported that the fire losses in this country for the month of April was the largest monthly fire loss since October, 1918. The total for April was $50,760,000, an increase of $11,000,000 over the same month a year ago and more than $10,000,000 more than April 1924. The outstanding fact in connection with these increases in the respective years is that they resulted in spite of the extensive efforts in behalf of prevention and the campaigns of education against fire.

During April it is remembered of course that a large part of the loss was due to the fires in the California oil fields where something like $12,000,000 losses were sustained. With such fires attributed to lightning it is apparent that ordinary carelessness was not responsible and yet the lessons from those fires are such that steps have already been taken with a view to preventing such extensive losses in the future.

But aside from the California oil fires the April fire loss would have been only slightly under the April loss of last year and from seven to eight millions more than in the same month in 1924. It indicates a tendency in the wrong direction, especially since it is maintained by those who have made a study of it that at least ten per cent. of the fires are absolutely preventable and probably a much larger percentage of fires would not happen if there was the exercise of a small amount of caution at the right time.

Fires mean waste and when so many of them can be prevented it is unfortunate that from month to month and year to year the losses move upward instead of the other direction. A small amount of individual effort would do much in the way of prevention.

FIREARMS AND THE MAIL

Progress to the extent of being adopted by the lower house of congress and being sent to the senate has been made by the bill which has been presented to congress restricting the use of the mails in sending firearms that can be concealed. Whether the senate will find time in which to take action upon the measure must be awaited.

Legislation of this character has been sought because of the large number of death from weapons which have been obtained in spite of the state laws through their purchase from mail order houses. It is a case where those who are unwilling to conform to law restricting the sale of firearms are able to circumvent the protective measures by ordering their small arms in some other state and get the assistance of the postal service in doing so.

Many persons who should not have firearms have been able to get them and have used them in injuring and killing others until there has been a strong demand for preventing measures. Laws which have been enacted for the purpose of handicapping the criminal have failed because such persons have obtained possession of weapons in other states or through the mail.

Recognition of the need of ending the situation has prevailed to the extent that mail order houses in certain instances on their own initiative have abandoned the sale of small arms.

Under the law which has been favored by the house the postmaster general is authorized to make regulations whereby shipments of firearms to government officials, to manufacturers and dealers would be permitted. Likewise it would be possible to make shipments to manufacturers and dealers for repairs or replacements but the indiscriminate sale of firearms through the mail would be stopped. It would prevent those instances where schoolboys have obtained them and by their use snuffed out the lives of companions in play and it would make it possible to enforce laws concerning their possession through consent of authorities.

DISGRACEFUL JUNK PILES

Property owners in Manchester will have the sympathy of those in other cities when the petition for relief from the objectionable conditions in their neighborhoods due to the manner in which junk, paper and other material are stacked up in certain yards by junk dealers. They represent the situation as a nuisance and seek its abatement.

Residential property should never be employed for a junk yard. It may be unobjectionable to the person owning the property but it is a detriment to the entire neighborhood. It creates an eyesore that cannot fail to have its effect upon property values for not many would be interested in the purchase of homes adjoining a yard which is stacked ten feet high with old iron, piles of paper and a variety of other materials which do not harmonize with well kept lawns and hedges.

It is an unfortunate situation where it becomes necessary for complaints to be made in order to obtain the elimination of such conditions. There should be enough civic pride among those engaged in such business to get their stocks in trade under cover, or have it located at some point where it will neither be a detriment to the property it occupies nor to that adjoining. When property is filled to the street line with the various assortments of junk material it cannot fail to work an injustice.

It is such conditions as these that ought to be restricted under the operation of a zoning law, the good effects of which many a community lacks. Manchester is apparently endeavoring to clean up a bad condition. Other cities might tackle the same problem with good results.

HIGHWAY MARKERS

We are getting to the season of the year when thoughts are turning to vacations and the taking of automobile trips. For the next few months there will be more traffic than ever upon the highways, more visitors from other states and more from distant points looking for friends and relatives. Not all of these will be seeking homes upon city streets which are named and numbered. Many will be looking for them all through the countryside. Some will be on the main lines of travel and others on the side roads. In many instances in order to follow directions the undeveloped and in too many instances the unmarked country roads will be used. But for the convenience and accommodation of this great army of travelers the country roads and the cross roads should be marked. The situation is so different today from what it was a quarter of a century ago that there should be no road, even in the country, which does not have a sign indicating what it leads to and what the distance is.

Motor traffic would be greatly aided if the same convenience was afforded for the driver in the country as prevails in the city which maintains distinctly marked streets and which erects signs indicating the various avenues to be taken to reach other cities.

Many a village or a borough is sensitive because efforts are made to divert traffic therefrom in the construction of new and safer roads, but they fail to take advantage of the opportunity to mark the roads leading thereto for the benefit of those seeking it, or who might be interested in taking a trip off the main road to see it. There's a great opportunity for more complete road markers.

EDITORIAL NOTES

It is too much to expect weather that will permit the return of the open trolley cars?

Everything bids fair now for a big hay crop this year, if we can judge by the clatter of the lawn mowers.

The man in Boston who participated in a holdup for the thrill will probably learn that there are thrills and thrills.

About the only thing that can be definitely said about the date for the adjournment of congress is that it intends to adjourn.

Perhaps the people of England are looking back now and seeing how easily the strike difficulties might have been avoided.

The man on the corner says: Watch your step, you may have your rights But that doesn't relieve the injury if someone disregards them.

In view of the trouble getting over the British strike perhaps they will be reminded that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

Even though you may be headed for church there's no telling where you may land if you do not show the proper respect for danger at the railroad crossings.

FROM LUCILE'S DIARY

On last Sunday I ran in to see the Derings on my way home from church. I explained to Lucy when she opened the door that I wished to call on Miss Ann, the baby.

"I suppose she has grown like a weed since I saw her and is a perfect darling."

"Yes, indeed," Lucy melted into smiles, "but she is asleep."

"May I wait a little while till she wakes?"

"Yes, but I'm busy, Lucile. Herbert has gone down to meet a college friend who is passing through the city and has bringing him up here for a simple lunch. I'm trying to do a lot before the baby wakes."

"I'm going to take my things off and pitch in and help you, Lucy, dear," I said. "What shall I do first?"

"I was just setting the table and then I was going to make the avocado salad."

"Avocado! You said you were having a simple lunch."

"Yes, the salad is my only little extravagance. I'll have French dressing."

"Let me make that for you, Lucy," I said. "I'm really an artist at salads. Will I find everything in the icebox?"

"Yes," she answered, and I went right to work, and I certainly made a luscious-looking salad. Lucy exclaimed when she saw it.

"But, Lucile," she objected, "that water cress was for the cold chicken platter and those almonds for the dessert."

"Oh, weren't they all for the salad? Too bad, but now they're all covered with French dressing. So we shall have to do without the nuts, but we can garnish the chicken with something else," I said in my efficient way. Lucy just sighed, but I decorated the platter with slices of beet and carrot.

"Those vegetables aren't cooked yet," said Lucy when I proudly displayed it to her, "and they're for Ann's supper. She has to have two vegetables every night now."

"Their being raw doesn't spoil the dashing Czechoslovakian effect," I said gayly, "and your can cook them just the same tonight."

"I suppose so," she replied dully.

"Oh," I cried as I happened to look out of the dining-room window, "there comes Herbert and Mr. Willowly."

Lucy gave me a sudden, sharp glance. "How did you know his name was Willowly?" she asked.

"Didn't I mention that I met Herbert downtown yesterday, and when I asked him why he whistled in the street he said it was because his old Brown roommate, Tom Willowly, was coming today?"

"Oh," said Lucy in an odd tone, and just then the men came in. Herbert greeted me most cordially.

"Well, this is jolly," he remarked after the introductions. "You're staying to lunch, Lucile?"

"No, I don't think so," I replied, smiling.

"Of course you'll stay, won't she, Lucy?"

"Yes, of course she'll stay," answered Lucy, with peculiar emphasis, and at that moment the baby cried, so she excused herself, and I felt that it was fortunate I was there as she had to devote quite a time to the baby.

"Heavens what's the matter with this salad?" Lucy cried when at last we did begin to eat luncheon. "Oh, Lucile, you've put Ann's cod liver oil in the dressing."

It was crude and unkind of her to call attention to the fact that it was I who made the salad. Herbert and Mr. Willowly tried to make a joke of the matter, but Lucy's eyes filled with tears, and she murmured something fatuous about "poor delicious avocados" and she looked at me reproachfully. She should have warned me that there was both cod liver and olive oil in the icebox. I certainly could not blame myself for her carelessness.

As I was stepping into the taxi with Mr. Willowly, who was going to drop me at home on his way to the station, Lucy said: "You haven't seen the baby, Lucile, and you came especially to see her."

"What a shame," I answered sweetly, although I thought her remark illnatured, "I'll be over very soon again, Lucy dear."—Chicago News.

From Small Beginnings

John Brough, the Printer's Boy, War Governor of Ohio

In the last days of the Civil war the state of Ohio was the scene of great political activity. A man by the name of Clement L. Vallandingham had been nominated for governor. This Vallandingham had had a stormy career. He was a man of great activity, a leader and a man who threw himself with tremendous energy into any cause that he espoused. He had held hilh political offices. During the Civil war he was what was called a "Copperhead," a northern sympathizer with the southern cause. In 1863 he was arrested, tried by court martial, and sent into the confederate lines. The chivalrous men of the south did not welcome him, and he again fled, this time to Canada. In spite of all this, he had been nominated for the position of governor of Ohio. Against him there ran a man named John Brough, a strong, sterling, patriotic man, a powerful orator and a man of deep feeling. When the election came John Brough was swept into office by a vote that had never been equalled in any state. Ohio had responded nobly to John Brough's appeal for strict adherence to the Union cause.

In this way John Brough became the "War governor" of Ohio. In his position of authority he did everything in his power to exalt the ideal of patriotism and service. He courageously opposed everything that might in any way embarrass the people who were struggling for the cause of the Union. He was so vigorous and so forceful in his speaking that he held the people of Ohio as it were, under his oratory, and is remembered to this day.

John Brough, was a self-made American, drawing his sturdiness of character from years of hard work for self-support. He had been too poor to hope for an education, but he had learned enough in the lower schools to make him ambitious. He looked eagerly ahead to the possibility of going to college. Instead of that he was obliged to go to work in a printing office. He continued to read and to study, and prepared himself for college. Then he worked his way through college, graduated with credit, and entered into a career. The days in which he lived were stormy days, just before the Civil war, and he used his great ability as a speaker to such good advantage that he was given public office. When the time came to nominate a man of absolute loyalty and patriotism, the people of Ohio chose John Brough, the self-made patriot, and elected him by an overwhelming vote.

Stories That Recall Others

"It's a Wise Child—"

The head of the family had taken his wife and six year old daughter to visit a family in another part of the city. The family had just gotten into their new home and there was much to show them. The mother and little girl was being taken around by Mrs. X. there was a radio the mother remarked. As they came to the room where the little girl that that would interest their father, and also called the child's attention to a superhetrodyne set, saying that was the kind of a set her father wanted some day.

When she got a chance the daughter got her mother's attention and whispered in her ear: "Don't tell daddy about that radio set or he won't go home tonight!"

NEW BOOKS

The Double Thirteen. By Anthony Wynne, author of The Sign of Evil. Cloth, 319 pages. Published by the J. B. Lippincott company, Philadelphia. Price $2.

Dr. Eustace Hailey took a pinch of snuff, then considered the situation his agitated young friend, the Honorable Robert Barling, had disclosed. It was while dancing with Olva Varioff, his beautiful Russian fiancee, that Bob saw her face pale with terror. He had turned just quickly enough to see the man in the doorway—a Russian she had recently passed on the street without recognition. After he had taken her home and while on his way to his apartments he caught sight of her in a passing cab. The next morning before he had chance to ask an explanation Countess Varioff sought to know of her daughter. Nor did Olva's letter allay her fears. It simply said she would be safe only so long as she was not sought.

She had been traced as far as a garage at Hammersmith and here the doctor-detective caught the clue. Quickly he worked. From collisions and ciphers, show laces and broken glass, a mysterious lovely lady, a pile of old coins he forged the links in the plot of a fiend of such cunning that only a detective who was more than a detective could outwit it.

As in The Sign of Evil, Dr. Hailey proves himself a criminal investigator with an uncanny power of searching beyond material evidence into the minds of men and laying bare the motives that operate there.

Child of the Wild. By Edison Marshall. Illustrated by Herbert M. Stoops. Cloth, 327 pages. Published by Cosmopolitan Book corporation, New York city. Price $2.

What would happen to a civilized child set alone in a savage environment with no companion but the beasts? That is something of a situation for a novelist, and Edison Marshall in his new book has developed it in a way that is peculiarly his own. In this new novel of Alaska he records not only how such a child's physical needs may be met, but what may happen to his mind and soul.

The author knows the land of which he writes and he makes you to know it too and feel its fascination and its strange charm. You are seldom under a roof in this outdoor story. Caves are your shelter; fires of alder boughs and boiling springs your sources of comfort; the run of the salmon up the stream, the play of wild creatures on the beach your entertainment; the roar of avalanche and of stormy, shiftless seas, the voices of the hostile gods you fear; and the rare break of sun through sullen clouds your own glimpse of a kindlier providence.

In the midst of these things the drama of the lost boy grown to manhood is played to its touching end; and a story of young love driven to reckless measures to fulfill its dream has its setting. This romance of young Sam Moreland who fights for his name, his heritage and his right to win the girl who loves and believes in him makes a most interesting story.

Johnny and Jimmy Meet

When some folks meet,
The way they greet
Is often most effusive.
But when they part
A change of heart
May make them most abusive.
—Old Mother Nature.

Perhaps you have seen people that way. It will happen sometimes. On the other hand, you will sometimes see people who are not at all pleasant to each other when they meet or at least who greet each other in the most matter-of-fact way, as if they were not at all interested in each other. Yet these same people will part the best of friends. You never can tell, from the way two people meet, how they will part.

"I am waiting for you to make me get out of your way," said Jimmy pleasantly

Johnny Chuck remained with his back to a big rock until he was sure that Old Man Coyote didn't intend to bother him. He was a little surprised that Old Man Coyote hadn't attempted to catch him. You see, he didn't know that Old Man Coyote's stomach was already full when he met him. Old Man Coyote deliberately avoided a fight. So when at last Johnny Chuck moved on he felt quite puffed up. The more he thought about it the more puffed up he got.

"Old Man Coyote just simply didn't dare fight me," said Johnny foolishly talking to himself aloud.

"I beg your pardon; what did I understand you to say?" inquired a voice, and Jimmy Skunk poked his head out from the bushes along one side of the path.

Johnny Chuck did his best to try not to appear surprised, but he didn't make much of a success of it. He was not only surprised, but was startled. He had no idea Jimmy was anywhere near until Jimmy spoke. Ordinarily Johnny Chuck has much respect for Jimmy Skunk. But now Jimmy was so puffed up over his meeting with Old Man Coyote that he was lacking in his usual good sense. "I said that Old Man Coyote didn't dare fight me," boasted Johnny, strutting a little.

Jimmy Skunk grinned. "What you mean is," said he, "that Old Man Coyote didn't feel like fighting you."

"That's the same thing," said Johnny Chuck. "He didn't feel like it, because he didn't dare do it."

Jimmy Skunk chuckled right out loud. "My, my," said he, "how brave we are! The first thing I know, you'll be telling me that you're not afraid of me."

"I'm not," retorted Johnny Chuck hotly. "I'm not in the least afraid of you. If you were in my way I'd make you get out of my way."

At this Jimmy Skunk stepped right out of the bushes, right in front of Johnny Chuck. "I'm waiting," said Jimmy.

"I'm waiting for you to make me get out of your way," said Jimmy pleasantly, but he lifted his tail a little.

Johnny saw that tail come up a little, and for the life of him he couldn't keep his eyes away from it. "I haven't any quarrel with you, Jimmy Skunk," said he.

"But I want to see you make me get out of your way," said Jimmy, and that big tail of his went up a little higher.

Johnny Chuck fidgetted from one foot to another in the most nervous way. He wasn't swelled up a bit. Not a single hair was standing on end. Never in his life had he looked more meek. "You're not in my way, Jimmy," said he. "You see, I have come about as far this way as I want to come."

The next story: The Tale of a Tail.

Rev. Lewis A. Walker, pastor of the Calvary church and his wife, will leave Westerly Tuesday next for Washington, D. C., to attend the sessions of the Northern Baptist association.

The Sunday school board of the First Methodist church is to meet Monday evening at the vestry. Basket suppers will be taken and the members will then proceed by automobile, it is hinted to Lantern Hill, where the meeting will be held.

A report was current in Westerly Thursday afternoon that New York authorities, engaged with the mounted police of Rhode Island, some of whom were in Westerly Thursday evening, in the endeavor to locate Lawrence Lucas of Wyoming, R. I., reported to have abducted a 14-year-old Carolina girl, have located the couple. It is stated that they are being held to await the necessary papers to bring them back into Rhode Island. The girl's mother requested the police to locate her daughter, who left Carolina last Friday in automobile for New York.

Thursday was the first night of the annual bazaar of the Immaculette Evangelist church in the new parochial school auditorium. Elaborately decorated were the booths and artistically arranged with the various society colors. The K. of C. booth was in blue and gold, the Daughters of Isabella in red and yellow, Children of Mary, blue and white, Christian Mothers, purple and white, and the Third order, blue and gold. In the musical entertainment there were selections by the Imperial quartet, tenor solos by Martin Spellman and several dance numbers by Miss Mary Driscoll.

TREE ASSOCIATION BACKS EDITORS IN FOREST POLICY

WASHINGTON, May 20 (AP)—Recognising the action of the American Newspaper Publishers association, which at its recent meeting urged continued educational support of a national forest policy program, Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the American Tree association, has written E. H. Baker, publisher of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, that the association's action is one of the great forward steps in the movement.

Mr. Baker is chairman of the forest resource committee of the publishers, which in its report to the association said:

"Your committee asks each and every one of you to discuss this matter thoroughly in your editorial councils with a view to keeping the public fully acquainted with the necessity of rehabilitating our timber supply and preventing, before it is too late, the destruction of our forest legacy."

The paper committee of the association, at the same time, has reported that Canada this year for the first time will produce more news print paper than the United States and may soon be in practical control of the situation. The committee recommended consideration or development of American paper resources in the northwest and Alaska.

In his letter to Mr. Baker, Mr. Pack points out that there are 81,000,000 idle acres in the United States which could be put to work growing trees and that American business now pays approximately $250,000,000 a year in freight to bring lumber from the far west to the manufacturing centers in the east.

GOPHER TAILS IN IMPERIAL VALLEY WORTH A DIME EACH

EL CENTRO, Cal., May 20 (AP)—A new use for gopher tails, in which gophers have no interest, has been found in the Imperial Valley.

The tails are becoming legal tender in many valley towns where a bounty of ten cents a tail is paid by the county horticultural commission.

One man, a storekeeper near High Line, brought in 2380 tails in one bundle. He said he had taken them in trade over the counter. Since the gopher extermination campaign began in the valley last June, more than 250,000 gophers have been killed and the "scalps" presented for cash.

It is estimated that gophers, by riddling the banks of canals and ditches, starting floods that waste much water, and their damage to crops, cause a loss to Imperial Valley farmers of thousands of dollars annually.

MYSTIC CHANT URGES NATIVES TO BITTLE

HANA, Island of Maui, T. H., May 20 (AP)—Fish feasting marked the opening of the akule season when nearly 12,000 fish, caught with the aid of the Hana "lau charmer," filled the nets on the first day.

From Lasiera to Hipahulu—nearly 30 miles—the feasts were celebrated and almost the whole of Hana idolised Old Kiinaha whose mystic incantations, the natives believe, aided them in making their catches.

Just as dawn began to break, faithful old Kiinaha began his chant. Standing at the top of Kaufki hill, his voice drew people out of their abodes to watch him, semi-nude old wizard as he began to race up and down to one corner and another of the famous hill, jumping, waving, dancing. One moment he would be yelling at the top of his voice. Next he would be half kneeling, fluttering his Hah-God chants.

From six until nine o'clock he was on the alert right up to the moment the fishermen, whom he had spurred to activity, brought ashore their catch.

These are the words with which he awoke, summoned, cursed, praised and persuaded the fishermen to man their canoes:

"Ye sons of famous Hana,
Noted for prowess
Of paddling your canoes!
Our fishing duties
Have heard the wailing
Of our beloved wives and offsprings
And have lured a large gathering
Of that fish we so much smack
Our lips to hunger.
And the numberless school
Of akule is at your doors.
Awake! Man your canoes.
Gather and place your nets
So that there is no chance
For these fat edibles of man
To escape and laught at you!
Only the most experienced go aboard
And no child may be permitted.
Oh! How I would like
To come down to the fish
And waylay some of you.
Useless, lazy, and sons of good-for-nothings.
Get down, quick, and be
In the water before
Our forefathers' pet sharks
Devour one and all
And leave us as hungry as ever
For a big pot and fish fried."

TO DECIDE WHERE TAXI METER BEST SERVES THE CUSTOMER

WASHINGTON, May 20 (AP)—Whether a passenger in a skidding taxicab gets his money's worth; the wiles of those who make bottles look larger than they really are; the proper method for selling ice cream and a hundred other things important to the every day citizen will come up for consideration at the National conference on Weight and Measures here May 25.

Weights and measures experts from all parts of the country will engage in the discussions. Particular attention will be given to the automobile and associated subjects.

One thing in particular—whether a taxicab meter should be attached to the front wheel or the transmission—will be gone into. Some say that when the meter is attached to the transmission the customer is the loser when the rear wheels begin to spin on the ice, because he's paying but not getting anywhere.

The Dawn of a Better Cigarette

The landing of the jolly ROGERS and the jolly Williams, Johns & Georges

IT isn't only the Rogers who are jolly these days—since OLD GOLD came to port.

It's the Johns and Georges, the Williams and Freds and every mother's son who relishes a superior cigarette.

For not only has OLD GOLD itself landed in town; it has landed and won the town's most exacting cigarette connoisseurs.

It is COOLER — because made from lighter and finer tobacco leaf, hand selected.

It is MILDER—because a new day method takes out any hidden harshness in the tobacco which ordinary curing may not subdue.

It is MORE FRAGRANT—because it is made from the choicest of all Turkish and domestic tobaccos, chosen and blended by old masters.

But we'd rather you wouldn't take our opinion alone. Buy a package of OLD GOLDS and judge for yourself.

We'll gladly accept your verdict from the evidence you smoke out of that first package.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

CREATE GAS, SOURNESS AND PAIN HOW TO TREAT

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food ferments, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestants are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

COLCHESTER SCHOOL EXPENSES HAVE EXCEEDED BUDGET

Colchester is having troubles of its own in school finances. At the last annual town meeting the school budget submitted called for $26,000. The town school committee already has overdrawn that budget. A few days ago First Selectman Earl McDonald conferred with Father Mooney, pastor of the Catholic church and chairman of the school board. It was the opinion of the chairman that the school committee could totally disregard the budget and draw as much money as it pleased for school purposes.

Mr. McDonald interviewed Attorney Thomas M. Shields of Norwich, town counsel. His opinion was that the school committee had no business to overdraw the budget and that the town treasurer would be liable if he accepted orders over the budget.

Selectman McDonald accordingly has directed the town treasurer, Dr. C. E. Pendleton, to accept no further orders for school expenses. Orders had just been received by the treasurer from Mrs. Sara B. Cutler, to the amount of about $150. These have been returned with explanations.

It will be necessary for the voters in special town meeting to authorize the treasurer to pay the further school bills for this year and to arrange to borrow the necessary funds, according to what Dr. Pendleton is quoted as saying Thursday would have to be done.

SAYS PERSONAL HOLINESS IS ONLY REAL SUCCESS

The three-day retreat in honor of St. Therese, The Little Flower, had a congregation of 1,200 at St. Mary's Memorial church Thursday evening for the final preaching service of the retreat at which an appealing and eloquent sermon was delivered by Rev. Father Lucien of the Passionist Order of Preachers.

Before the sermon, Father Lucien bestowed the papal benediction and then went to speak upon the theme, Success. He called attention to the success in life which the business man or the professional man tries to attain and the success which the mother and father set before them when they make their ideal a happy home. But all of these, even if attained, do not constitute life's real success, an eternal, an immortal success. We are made for eternity; therefore what does it profit us toward this eternal life to have made this success that we have to leave behind. One thing was embodied in the life of "the Little Flower" which made it a complete success. This was personal holiness. Life had everything most desirable to offer her, but she spurned the riches of life and took the vow of poverty, of obedience as a Carmelite nun. She turned her back on the world and today the world is at her feet to honor her. God will not ask what success we have made in business life, but one thing He will ask, what was our personal holiness, what success have we made in our spiritual life? Our first duty is personal holiness. Until all these other things, if this duty is fulfilled, shall be added unto you. Are you living day by day for God and heaven? Ask "the little flower" to give you this abiding sense and let the sweet influence or her life come into and abide in yours and with your loved ones till you shall enter the eternal joy and life that make her one of God's really successful women.

After the sermon 20 new members were received into the Children of Mary by the pastor, Rev. W. A. Keefe, the act of consecration being repeated by them in unison as they stood at the sanctuary rail.

The decoration of the statue of St. Therese with roses was performed by 24 little girls in white, one for each year of the little flower's age. The statue of the Blessed Virgin was crowned by Miss Margaret C. Counihan, president of the Young Ladies sodality, assisted by other officers, as the sodality members sang the crowning hymn, for which Miss Margaret Breanahan was at the organ.

The service closed with benediction of the blessed sacrament, before which Father Lucien addressed the congregation briefly, acknowledging with gratitude the hospitality of Father Keefe while he has been in the city and expressing his thanks to the priests who have assisted in taking confessions during the retreat.

Father Keefe announced that a substantial amount would be taken from the offering of the evening as a donation towards the work of the Passionist Preachers.

There are to be masses this (Friday) morning at 5 and 7 o'clock, immediately after which Father Lucien will leave for his next field of work.

The music for the services of the retreat has been very acceptably rendered by the choir with Joseph B. Downes as organist.

The council adopted the resolutions fixing the above assessments and by another resolution incorporated in the report and adopted by the council the assessments are ordered paid to the city treasurer on or before September 1st next.

In its report the committee says: Your committee have tried to recommend a just and fair assessment, the premises of the various parties have been found to be unequal in their situations, some being rocky and others low. On Orchard street the assessments have been recommended against the Fells, Eppie, Quonto and Vitagliano properties, they all having had adequate sewer connections on other streets or with the prior sewer on Oakridge street.

The annual reports of the fire department, the board of fire commissioners, inventory of the fire department and the annual report of the milk inspector were received and accepted by the council.

$50,000 For Water Rights.

Payments to Nathan Gilman, The Falls company and the American Woolen company totaling $50,000 for water rights for the new Deep River brook reservoir, were then authorized by the adoption of resolutions giving $10,000 to Nathan Gilman, $40,000 to The Falls company and $6,000 to the American Woolen Co. The right is secured to divert "all the waters of Deep River, so-called, above and upstream from a point on Deep River in the town of Colchester, Conn., 2,400 feet southwesterly from the center of Bogue road in the town of Lebanon, Conn., where said Deep River crosses Bogue road, said deed to be free from all incumbrances and satisfactory to the corporation counsel; said payments to be on account of the new water supply from Deep River."

Councilman Frank H. Quinley, who is president of the water board, stated for the benefit of the council the city has been working on water right settlements for the new reservoir for nearly a year. A year ago it was estimated that the settlements would run from $250,000 up. Now the board expects to clear up all the settlements for about $77,000.

Mayor Waters said that the city has been working on the settlements for nearly a year and that the board has managed to settle with the claimants for about one-third of the original estimate. The mayor said that in the opinion of the engineers the city has reached a most satisfactory settlement.

Two Claims Paid.

After disposing of the water right payments the council adopted a resolution authorizing the payment of $50 to Margaret Collins in settlement of her damage claims against the city due to a fall on Union street.

The council also adopted a resolution authorizing the payment of $400 to Brown and Perkins, attorneys for Helen L. Johnson, in full settlement of her claim against the city dated January 29th, 1926, alleging a fall on Court street.

Falls Engine House Dangerous.

City Clerk Weston C. Pullen read to the council a communication from Chief Engineer D. S. Fitzpatrick of the Central Vermont railroad in which the engineer called the attention of the council to the dangerous condition of the side of the old Falls engine house next to the railroad tracks at the rail tunnel at the Falls. The old engine house is situated on top of a ledge which adjoins the tracks. The condition of the brick in the wall is a menace to railroad traffic, the letter alleges. The council is asked to investigate and remedy the situation. The communication was referred to the fire marshal.

Louis C. Jones and William R. Perkins presented, through a communication to the council, waivers of any claims for damages on account of the change of grade on McKinley avenue. Communication was accepted and ordered printed in the journal.

The final report of the city treasurer, the annual report of the finance committee and the annual report of the water commissioners were all received and accepted and the council then accepted an invitation from the Duvell club to attend the club's Memorial Day marathon race and exercises.

Annual City Budget.

The next matter taken up was the city budget which was submitted by the finance committee to take care of the city's expenses during the ensuing twelve months. The budget was accepted as read by Clerk Pullen. It is as follows:

To meet the expenditures called for by the foregoing estimates a tax of twenty-one and one-quarter (21 1-4) mills on the last City list will be required, said list being $16,973,031.00. The increase of the rate of tax suggested from the twenty and three-quarters mills recommended last year is due to the fact that the estimated interest on account of the water department debt is $35,550.00 more than it was last year, due to the borrowing of money for the new Deep River Reservoir, an increase which requires over two mills additional tax of itself.

In addition to the said estimated expenses for the ordinary requirements of the City, the Committee on Finance has been requested by petition and otherwise to submit to the annual City Meeting for its action, estimates for the following purposes, and estimates are hereby presented:

1. Traffic Signs and Signals	$ 1,200.00
2. Increase Pay Police	6,000.00
3. Increase Pay Firemen	6,000.00
4. Concrete between rails and two feet outside on West Thames Street from High Street to City Line	19,000.00
5. Boswell Avenue, Macadam Franklin Street to Hickory Street	25,000.00
6. McKinley Avenue, Macadam Broad Street to Rockwell Street	4,000.00

8. High Street, Macadam West Main Street to Spring Street	7,500.00
9. North Thames Street concrete	5,000.00
10. Concrete on Market Street from Main Street to Water Street	2,550.00
11. Lisgen Parkway, drain	500.00
12. St. Regis Avenue drain	1,400.00
13. Russell Road drain	2,100.00
14. North Cliff Street sewer	350.00
15. Division Street sewer, Oakridge Street easterly	1,200.00
16. Cover of Brook at 23 and 30 Hickory Street	3,000.00
17. Slater Avenue Macadam Broadway to Cedar Street	5,000.00
18. Asylum Street Macadam Newton Street to Sherman Street	24,000.00
19. Hamilton Avenue Macadam Main Street to Corning Road	13,000.00
The total of these estimates is	$142,850.00

Your Committee recommends that the warning for the next annual City Meeting include the last named estimates and a call for action thereon.

After the budget had been disposed of Alderman Patrick F. Sweeney said he would like to say a few words in behalf of the police commissioners. The police department will have an overdraft of about $550 this year, he said. Last fall, in November, the police commissioners began to receive complaints of a man or men looking in windows and attacking women and girls in Thamesville. Little attention was paid at first but as the complaints began to pile up the police commissioners decided, at a meeting with the mayor, that something had to be done about the matter. It was decided to put on a couple more policemen. One plainclothes policeman was sent there in December and is still doing duty there. He has been paid for his work $840. Then there was a case at the Backus hospital where police guards were necessary and this cost $200, making about $1,000 for which there was no appropriation. Alderman Sweeney said there were present several councilmen who had made complaints and he would like to hear from them in regard to the matter.

Councilman Clarence G. Thompson said he was one of those who complained. Protection was needed and "we are very grateful for what the police department has done" he said. He thought the amount expended was very reasonable.

Councilman William G. Aldrich was one of the complainants. He said he saw one man believed to have been looking in a window, but that the man got away. At one time windows blinds were kept down and women and girls wouldn't go out alone. Since the officer has been on duty there has been no more trouble.

Mayor Waters said in his opinion the police commissioners were justified in spending the small overdraft.

Mayor Addresses Council

Gentlemen:

Tonight is the final meeting of the 1925-26 council. The book is closed and we must submit to the judgment of the citizens the results of the work that has been done during the past year. Some very difficult problems have come before the present council, water problems, sewer problems, traffic problems. The problem that is with every city of trying to keep within its appropriations with steadily increasing costs of labor and materials and constant demand from our citizens for more and better lights, better streets, more police protection, better traffic conditions, etc., etc.

The Deep River reservoir undertaking which is now underway is probably the largest and most important improvement that the city of Norwich has ever undertaken. It is expected that it will be completed by Dec. 1, 1926 and that water will be turned into the pipes on or before April 1, 1927, and that the city will have an ample water supply for many years to come.

We have had many petitions for increased police protection in certain parts of the city and the slight addition in that department is due to the fact that an extra policeman was placed in Thamesville since the early part of the winter and the cost of two extra policemen who had charge of a man accused of murder who was in the Backus hospital for several weeks.

I can safely say that our fire department is as efficient as any department in the country.

The morale of these two departments is excellent, in spite of the fact that they are the poorest paid police and firemen in Connecticut. It will be noted that the finance committee have placed in the estimates an amount sufficient to increase their pay from $3.00 to $3.50 per day. $3.50 per day is the lowest pay that any police or fireman in Connecticut is receiving, outside of Norwich.

A long severe winter with heavy snows has tested our street department thoroughly and the results are known to every member of the council.

It will be seen by the budget that the G. & E. department is handing to the city for taxation purposes the sum of $50,000 an increase of $10,000 over last year. The business of this department is steadily increasing and to take care of their gas customers satisfactorily it is evident that a new gas holder must be constructed in the near future.

In closing I wish to extend to the members of this council my heartfelt thanks for the loyalty they have shown, their willingness to cooperate in any way possible and the fact that with an evenly divided council we have passed the entire year without dividing on partisan lines, reflects great credit on the council. I am also greatly indebted to the heads of the various departments, to the street commissioner and the city engineer, and especially to Corporation Counsel William H. Shields, Jr., for his able and wise counsel upon which I have so greatly depended. To every member of the council I extend my thanks and best wishes.

This completed the business of the present administration and at 8.45 o'clock the council adjourned sine die.

FIREMEN'S PENSION FUND NOW TOTALS $17,784.98

The firemen's pension and relief fund now totals $17,784.98, as shown by the annual report on that fund presented to and accepted by the court of common council, Thursday evening. The balance on hand May 15th last year was $16,000.37. There was received from the department pay roll two per cent deducted each year, making a total of $1,353.61. Interest received totaled $745; donations, $480 and there was realized from building permits $309.

LOCAL POLICE PENSION FUND IS $18,352.46

The annual report of Chief of Police George Linton shows that at the close of the city's fiscal year the police pension fund amounted to $18,-853.46. The balance on hand May 15th last year was $16,603.20. There was received from the pay roll, two per cent each month, $1,293.90; donations totaled $248.55; dividends, $486.75 and an appropriation, $1,500, making a total of $14,126.80. Pensions paid during the year amounted to $8,774.34, leaving a total of $18,352.46 at the close of the year.

URGE NEW FIRE STATION FOR THE WEST SIDE

The 24th annual report of the board of fire commissioners received and accepted at the adjourned meeting of the court of common council Thursday evening calls attention to the condition of the West Main street fire station and recommends that a new one be built in some more central location on the West Side. The report says:

Seventeen meetings have been held for the dispatch of business. Three new fire alarm boxes were purchased and installed. A new Olds runabout was purchased for the deputy chief. Also the usual amount of hose was purchased to replace the amount thrown out from age and usage.

The outside of the central station was painted, also some painting was done on the interior. Painting and general repairs were also made at all other stations. The apparatus is all in first class condition except the chief's car now ten years old, which should be replaced by a new one very soon.

Again we desire to call your attention to the West Main street station which remains as reported for the past several years. This station is in need of very extensive repairs if continued. It would be far more economical to sell this station and build a new one in some more central location in the West Side district and with less hazard when responding to alarms, on account of the narrow street at the present location where several near accidents have occurred.

In order to purchase a new car for the chief the regular appropriation will have to be increased. Also slight increases, caused on account of the increase in the price of fuel and other supplies by the department. We would recommend that the mayor place in his estimates under the head of special appropriation a sufficient sum to build a new station on the West Side. The number of fires and alarms appears to be on the increase. A detailed report of the same will be found in the annual report of the chief of the department.

WOULD INCREASE MILK LICENSE FEES IN CITY

The annual report of Dr. Paul F. Gadle as city milk inspector to the court of common council, received and accepted at the council meeting Thursday evening contains a recommendation that the license fee for selling milk be increased from 50 cents to one dollar. The present fee to me, says Dr. Gadle in his report, seems much too small.

According to the report the number of licenses is 243. This includes wholesale and retail dealers and restaurants. Numerous inspections have been made during the year and conditions found to be very satisfactory. Whenever conditions were not so, they were remedied.

The quality of our milk is of the very best, as shown by reports of samples sent to the state laboratory. One essential factor that helps in our milk distribution is, that all milk sold in our city is sold in bottles only. No more milk can be sold from the can. Contamination thus is rendered negligible.

During the year we had a small epidemic of typhoid fever, which was traceable to one milk dealer. Through the cooperation of the health officer and the state department it was checked at once.

ACADEMY AND WESTERLY CLASH IN LEAGUE GAME AT CAMPUS TODAY

This afternoon at the Academy Campus the Academy team will meet Westerly High in a league game. The Academy asked that the game might be played on Thursday but this request was refused by Westerly. The game today should be an easy victory for the Academy if comparative scores mean anything. Westerly lost to Stonington by one run in the first league game, 4 to 3, and on Tuesday, of this week, won a close victory 3 to 2 over Chapman Tech. The Academy defeated Stonington 18 to 2 and Chapman Tech by a score of 8 to 1.

Coach Brigham will use Johnny Greene against the Westerly team as this game will practically clinch the Interscholastic league title for the Academy. Greene has yet to lose a game and in pitching brilliantly and steadily and as he worked Tuesday against Plainfield should be able to hold Westerly in check. Jarvis is slated to pitch the Bulkeley encounter on Saturday.

The Academy team was sent through a stiff practice session on Thursday and more pep and snap was shown in this session than in the past few weeks. The boys looked nice and were meeting the ball on the nose something that was lacking in Saturday's game against Bulkeley. One of the smoothest working players on the team is Ray Yerrington, a lad who does nothing spectacular but plays a nice steady and sure fielding game. Yerrington's work, which has been an important cog in the Academy defense, has not attracted the attention of the majority of fans because it has not bordered on the spectacular. Yerrington is a player who makes hard chances look easy and thus the importance of his work escapes the average fan. Yerrington has been in a batting slump during the season but is a natural hitter and has been hitting well in practice.

The Academy infield is working like a well oiled machine and the local school can boast this year of one of the best infield combinations ever turned out at the school. The outfield is rounding into championship shape. There is talk now that if the Academy beats Bulkeley on Saturday and can finish out the season without being beaten by any state teams that a post season series with Bulkeley may be arranged. That is providing Bulkeley does not lose to any other state team outside the Academy.

GREENEVILLE WINS ITS FIRST LEAGUE VICTORY

Greeneville sprung a surprise over their Taftville rivals on the Academy field yesterday afternoon, when in an interesting ball game, that at first looked quite promising for Taftville, turned out in favor of Greeneville, 15 to 6, the latter showing a few tricks that may yet move them into one of the leading league positions. Taftville without a question has the right to boast of having one of the snappiest catchers in the school league in Lucas, who with Gere, made an interesting pair to watch. The battery for the winners were Osik and Fontaine.

St. Patrick's Team Victorious

The St. Patrick's team pounded out an 8 to 7 victory over St. Joseph club at Duwell field in the second game of the Parochial league this week. The Saints hit hard and timely, scoring their eight runs in the first inning. Bissell pitched his second victory. Markewicz did the catching in his

HOME RUN AGAIN FEATURE YANK'S VICTORY

NEW YORK, May 20.—(AP)—Continuing their home run attack, the New York Americans made it nine straight here today, vanquishing the St. Louis Browns, 5 to 4. This ties the recent record of the Philadelphia Athletics for the longest winning streak of the year. Babe Ruth delivered his 15th circuit blow in the fifth inning off Pitcher Gaston and in the same session Pat Collins drove out a homer with one on base.

Ruth's 15th home run of his record year of 1921 was not made until May 31 in the Yankees' 40th game. Today's game was but the 32nd of the season for the home club.

Sisler returned to his job at first after a brief layoff due to a twisted ankle and hammered a four-bagger and a double. Score:

WHITE SOX HIT FOUR PITCHERS AND BEAT RED SOX

BOSTON, May 20.—(AP)—Chicago fell on four Boston pitchers today to defeat the Red Sox 13 to 4. The White Hose collected eighteen hits nine of them for extra bases. Sheely hammered out three two base hits and Mostil two. A high wind played havoc in the field and considerably bothered the players.

TILDEN TO PLAY EXHIBITION MATCH AT NORWICH GOLF CLUB ON SUNDAY

That the Norwich Golf club is stepping into prominence among the golf clubs of Connecticut is evidenced by the announcement made Thursday afternoon that William T. Tilden, 2nd, the world's best tennis player, is expected to give an exhibition at the club courts on Sunday afternoon Last week Walter Hagen, master golfer, was at the club and this week "Long Bill" Tilden, dean of the world's tennis players, two of the leaders in the sports for which the local club is noted.

William T. Tilden, 2d, America's ranking tennis player.

James A. Roantree, chairman of the tennis committee of the Golf club was in telephone communication with Tilden on Thursday afternoon who said that he would be only too glad to give an exhibition on the Norwich courts. Tilden is playing one of the leading roles in the theatrical production "They All Want Something" which plays an engagement in Norwich Monday evening. Tilden together with his theatrical work does not have much time for his tennis and is always glad of an opportunity to get on to the courts.

In his conversation with Mr. Roantree Tilden said that A. H. Chapin of Springfield, Mass. No. 8 in the American ranking would be a suitable opponent and Mr. Roantree is trying to secure the Springfield player for the match. If Chapin is unable to come to Norwich on Sunday another of the ranking tennis players of the country will be secured to oppose the master tennis star. It is not often that a club like Norwich is fortunate enough to have players as Tilden and Chapin give an exhibition on their courts.

Tilden is a master of tennis as his magnificent record shows and Chapin is one of the rising younger players who has won recognition through his brilliant playing in tournaments in the north and south.

An exhibition by these two players will be of great interest to all tennis players in the state. Tilden has complete mastery of all departments of the game and it is always pleasure to watch this king of tennis players perform on the court. Whether it be in an exhibition match or in tournament play Tilden is sure to give his best tennis.

FRANKIE BUSCH TO JOIN NEW YORK BOXING STABLE

Frankie Busch, local light heavyweight boxer, soon leaves Norwich and the local rings for the squared arenas of the metropolitan city. Frankie will join a boxing stable of S. H. MacDonald who has a number of topnotchers under his care. MacDonald has seen Busch in action several times when the local boy was boxing at Foot Banks and Mechanics hall in Boston. The New York boxing mogul was highly impressed with the boy's work and made him an attractive proposition to join his stable.

Busch will leave Norwich on Monday and go to New York where he expects to put in at least two weeks in intensive training before entering upon his boxing career in the big city. For a number of years Busch has been employed by C. E. Lane and will sever his connections with the Lane Co. on Saturday. In speaking of going to New York Frankie said that if he was ever going to make anything of himself in the ring it was time that he was stepping out. His many friends in Norwich wish him the best of success in the ring.

WARRIORS RALLY IN SIXTH TO BEAT CENTENNIALS

Coming from behind to stage a big sixth inning rally, the Warriors defeated the Centennials at the Academy campus in the second game of the Junior Twilight league season by a score of 7 to 1. Jim Shea, on the mound for the losers had the Warriors completely baffled until the sixth, not a hit being gleaned from his offerings.

However, in the big sixth the Warriors pushed six counters across the plate on three hits and four errors which were coupled with several errors of judgment.

Couture twirling for the winners performed creditably. He allowed but two scattered hits and fanned ten men. Shea for the losers allowed four hits and struck out six.

This evening's contest in the league will bring together the Federals and the Rubes. Both clubs have some very good players in their rosters and the game should be a hummer.

CARPENTIER CONFIDENT OF BEATING HUFFMAN TONIGHT

NEW YORK, May 20.—(AP)—Georges Carpentier of France tonight rested on the eve of his return to the ring at the crossroads of a long pugilistic journey.

Unshaken in the confidence that began regain the light-heavyweight peak, the Deauville veteran accepts his ten round test tomorrow night at Madison Square Garden with Eddie Huffman of California as a final stand against tides of misfortune which have been steadily enveloping him. He must win decisively to go on. He admits that. He likewise concedes that a title rout at the hands of Huffman probably will mark the termination of a colorful athletic career of 18 years.

"But I have got to win," says Georges. "I have got to knock out Huffman to prove my claims as a challenger, and I feel I am favored by his open style of fighting. The fight will never go the ten round limit."

Putnam vs. Plainfield Today

The Putnam high school baseball team will play Plainfield high school on the Putnam grounds Friday afternoon.

So far this season, the local team has been making a good record, not having lost a single game. The game which was to have been played last week with the Killingly high was postponed because of rain.

A NEW and BETTER GASOLINE

The New Low 400 End Point

A low end point, assured through the most accurate fractionating control of the gasoline runs, checked frequently by the volatility tests, leaving no heavy ends, promotes complete vaporization and burning of each cylinder charge.

Less Crankcase Dilution

The Low Initial Boiling Point

With the low boiling point, due to regulation of the still operations to retain the lighter fractions of the crude oil in the gasoline runs, the new Texaco provides a "high test" gasoline of greater volatility.

Easier Starting

Anti-Knock Qualities

Successfully producing certain desirable aromatic and naphthene hydrocarbons in the final new Texaco, the Holmes-Manley Process produces an exceptional gasoline with combustion characteristics in the finished product which give it exceptional non-detonating qualities.

Smooth Engine Operation

—and more power, better hill work without retarded spark, and a quicker pick-up.

A Balanced Distillation Range

The distillation range, controlled by the Holmes-Manley proportioning of intermediate boiling fractions, provides a volatile fuel with a combustion rate balanced to engine requirements. The new Texaco works best on a lean mixture.

Maximum Acceleration

The New Volatile Range

By shortening the distillation range, the new Texaco Gasoline provides a higher volatility, which gives the maximum acceleration with a leaner mixture while the engine is warming up.

Greater Mileage

—no unburned heavy ends, greater gasoline economy (more air, less gas), and lower cost per mile.

THE TEXAS COMPANY, always active and aggressive in the development of high grade petroleum products, now offers the American motoring public a new gasoline with a combination of qualities never before attained in a motor fuel.

It is a product of perfectly balanced distillation range, more volatile, and vaporizes to a dry gas.

The new gasoline is made possible through the Holmes-Manley Gasoline Process, owned and controlled by The Texas Company, representing an investment of millions of dollars and many years' efforts of refinery experts.

The new and better Texaco Gasoline has all the good qualities of any gasoline or motor fuel, regardless of price. It contains no chemicals. It needs none. Over two million barrels of this new product are now on hand.

Stop at the first Texaco pump you see. All tanks and pumps now supplied with the new product. Fill with Texaco Gasoline, and Texaco Motor Oil, the clean, clear, golden oil, known everywhere for its quality, full body and purity. You will note with pleasure the improved operation and condition of your engine.

ADVICE

When others complain it's easy enough
To tell them just what to do;
The only times when you're really perplexed
Is when trouble comes to you.
And it's not surprising that you're depressed,
Bowed down by a weight of cares,
For the trials and sorrows Fate brings to you
Are so very much worse than theirs!

They fuss and fret about little things
Of but trifling consequence;
But the troubles that come to you are real—
There's a wonderful difference!
And then your friends come blithering round,
All telling you what to do;
And how foolish and fultile and senseless are
The suggestions they make to you!

Complaints of Arizona radio listeners that the howls of dogs had broken in on programs were investigated by a radio inspector. He found that the howls emanated from an electric sausage machine in Phoenix, but this did not prove a popular theory about the composition of sausages. The motor that furnished power for the grinder was leaking electricity which furnished the terrifying sounds.

FISHER LEADS FOR GOVERNOR IN THE PENNSYLVANIA REPUBLICAN PRIMARY

PHILADELPHIA, May 20—(AP)—Interest in the results of the Pennsylvania primary, shifted today to the republican contest for governor as John S. Fisher, candidate of the forces led by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, jumped into the lead over Edward E. Beidleman, backed by Congressman William S. Vare.

While Congressman Vare maintained a safe plurality over Senator George Wharton Pepper for the United States senate nomination, his gubernatorial candidate dropped steadily behind as districts in western Pennsylvania and the interior counties reported.

Fisher was more than 10,000 votes ahead tonight with all but 92 districts of the 8,281 heard from. Of these 61 were in Allegheny county, in territory regarded as favorable to Fisher. The other 31 were scattered through a half-dozen interior counties. The vote in the 8,189 districts reporting was: Fisher 636,158; Beidleman 626,131.

Districts which returned pluralities for Fisher in many cases gave a lead for Pepper and the combined figures cut somewhat into the Vare lead. With 276 districts out, Vare had a plurality over Pepper of 80,566. Governor Pinchot, who ran on a bone-dry platform as against the modification issue put forward by Vare, was in third place, 268,306 behind Pepper. Totals for the 7,903 districts reporting were: Vare 684,905; Pepper 484,240; Pinchot 326,-254.

The race for the democratic gubernatorial nomination developed into as close a contest as that in the republican ranks. In returns from 5,071 of the 8,281 districts in the state, Judge Eugene C. Bonniwell, who conducted an independent candidacy on a modification platform, led Judge Samuel E. Shull, supported by the forces of Joseph E. Guffey, democratic national committeeman from Pennsylvania by 699 votes. Former Judge William E. Porter, backed by Vance C. McCormick, former chairman of the democratic national committee was 11,071 behind Shull.

THE FARMER'S WORST PEST.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

He was a travelling man as "drummers" nowadays prefer to call themselves. He was coaching through the Ozark country, and had pre-empted a seat by the stage-driver, to whom he had confided without much reserve his total disapproval of all things connected with that region. In fact, he had been so out-spoken that he had finally worn out the patience of the old stage-driver, who tells the conclusion of the story as follows:

"'Why air you a republican?' he says to me.

"'My paw was republican,' I says.

"'Quite so,' says he. 'An' if yere paw had been a jackass?' says he.

"'In that thar case,' says I, 'I'd a-been a travelin' man.'"

There is nothing further to be said, beyond a more or less vociferous "Haw-haw!"

But hold your horses a minute. Are we quite sure there is nothing more to be said? Whether or no we approve of the stage-driver's politics and his ideas of the effects of heredity, was his stated reason a good one? Should a man be either republican or democrat, salesman or stage-driver because his "paw" was? Should he do and think and say and believe as "paw" did in every case and under all conditions?

Really, you know, when you come to think of it, that question is almost equivalent to asking whether he should be a parrot instead of a man.

Lowell once remarked that "new occasions teach new duties: Time makes ancient good uncouth." "Paw" used a scythe to mow his grass, a fork to spread it, and a hand-rake to make it into windrows. Should his son and his grandson and all the rest of his descendants therefore forever continue to use scythe and hand-rake and refuse the aid of mowing-machine and horse-rake?

I don't think even Old Uncle Peleg of Wayback would argue that way.

Because grandma, with waste grease and wood ashes and a leachtub made "soft soap" for all cleansing uses, should her daughters and granddaughters to the last generations refuse the ministrations of Ivory and Palm-olive?

Because "paw" believed that "General Jackson" was the greatest man that ever lived, should his children keep right on voting for Jackson,—as they say some of the mountaineers of the southern Alleghanies still do?

Because, to come down to a real rural problem,—because "paw" shot all the owls and hawks and skunks he could, and killed every snake he stirred up, assuming them to be vermin and wanton destroyers of his crops or chickens, should we continue the same blamed foolishness?

Consider the matter in a common sensible way. Probably the most destructive pest in the animal line on the farm is the common rat or mouse. Rats destroy more eggs and chickens than all other mammals combined. Rats and mice also invade the farmer's fields and granaries. So long ago as 1918, government experts estimated that the farmers lost, that year, from rodent depredations, more than $167,000,000 worth of grain. Once in a while "paw" saw a hawk or an owl seize a chicken. Then, hey! for the old gun and a declaration of war against all hawks and owls everywhere.

Yet, if the contents of their stomachs tell true tales,—and why shouldn't they?—owls and hawks and snakes and skunks are as bitter enemies of the rodent gang as cats or dogs, and a vast deal more efficient. They aren't fed on the back steps; if they fail to get enough game to fill them up. They must catch their dinners or starve to death. Hence, they're always on the job.

A recent writer, who has been looking into some alleged farm evils,—actual as distinguished from these magnified out of nothing by fakers and pettifoggers for political effect,—says:

"Barring insect pests, the rat is the farmer's greatest menace. It invades his fields, his granary and his poultry house. Working in the dark and in hidden places the extent of its depredations is never fully realized. Being so common its operations are taken too much as a matter of course. The farmer and the poultry raiser are not the only ones who suffer from the rat menace. The loathsome rodents invade stores, destroying food, silks, carpets, laces, and flowers; in markets they eat fruit, vegetables and meat; in buildings they gnaw floors and lead pipes and damage doors, foundations and furniture; they burrow into embankments and the dams of artificial lakes, weakening them; they overrun piers, wharves and seagoing vessels.

Being extremely filthy rats pollute more food and merchandise than they destroy. They are carriers of disease and spread the plague, both bubonic and pneumonic. They are susceptible to epidemic catarrhal jaundice, trichinosis and leprosy. They harbor parasites and it is said that they may drag typhoid germs from cesspools to food prepared for human consumption."

All this, in spite of such warfare with traps and poisons as we are able to wage against them. Cats and dogs help us, somewhat, and we eagerly avail ourselves of all the assistance they give. And then we shoot every hawk or owl or skunk we can, and kill all the snakes which can't get away from us, because "paw" thought such fool stunts were protective!

Of course, it's impossible to get complete figures about the diet of all wild animals. But examination of the contents of the stomachs of several thousand hawks and owls which have been shot,—examinations made by hundreds of different observers in numerous localities,—proves that, so far as these victims went, they had eaten more than a hundred mice or rats for every chicken they had stolen. In other words, they had been 99 per cent friends of the farmers. That isn't such a bad showing. It hardly seems to warrant their indiscriminate destruction.

One morning, some years ago, I went to feed a brood of two-weeks-old chickies, shut up o' nights with their mother in a coop. When I opened the door and called, not a chick responded. Investigation showed that, during the night, a rat had gnawed his way up through the bottom of the coop and killed every one of the 15 birdies. There they lay on the floor, not one eaten, but every one killed apparently for the mere lust of slaughter. Using one of the bodies as bait, I caught the marauder, next night, when he returned to see if there weren't more chickens for him to kill.

Now, according to such evidence as we can gather and such averages as we can draw, all the hawks and all the owls and all the skunks in my township wouldn't have caught as many chickens in my yard, during my life-time, as this one pesky rat killed in a single night.

I took the executed robber out to a tree, where an old owl used frequently to perch and put him where the owl couldn't help seeing him. But Mr. Owl declined the gift. Whether he was suspicious of it, or whether he preferred to catch his own meat and know it to be fresh, I don't know. But he left it untouched, till, one day, Mr. Skunk strolled along and disposed of the carrion in his own way.

In all my farming experience, I've never had a hawk or owl take a single chicken. Once a common crow swooped down, picked up a small peeper and disappeared with it. Twice a mink or weasel,—never captured and therefore somewhat uncertain,—has taken some of the chickens. Twice, also, I've had to shoot the house-cat for scaling the fence of the poultry-yard and gobbling up a fledgeling. But hardly a year has passed in my memory when some rat has not levied toll on my broods.

Experience has taught me that I'd better have a dozen hawks and owls nesting in the woods right back of my buildings, than to have a single rat colony hiding in some foul den or retreat under a barn or a manure-heap.

How about skunks? I've never yet had a skunk raid my poultry-house, though some of my neighbors, testify they've been mulcted by the striped varmint. Yet all over my gardens and fields, I've been accustomed to finding little holes where that same skunk had dug down from two to six inches after a white grub which was living off the roots of my crops. While hunting his preferred food, he had been acting as a vigilant and sharp-nosed assistant to me, digging out pests that I shouldn't know where to look for, and which I haven't time to unearth.

Same with snakes. We have neither rattlesnakes nor copperheads here. All the varieties we have,—milk-snakes, striped snakes, black snakes, brown snakes and green snakes, are harmless and are daily engaged in getting their living off the insect pests which would ruin our crops if they were not kept down by these other scavengers.

When I was actively gardening and visitors used to be dropping in frequently with a desire to be shown around, I always made a point of warning them that I wouldn't stand for their killing any snake or toad they might chance to meet. "Kill the hired man if you've got to kill something." I used to tell them. "He isn't any better friend or more useful helper than my volunteer snake and toad assistant. But, personally, I hope you won't feel it necessary to kill anything or anybody." Putting it that way seemed to impress them. Probably the chief impression was that I was a first-class crank. But that didn't worry me, so long as it saved my unsalaried bug-destroyers.

One reason why we have to fight so constant and seemingly ineffective a war against rodents and bugs is that we have let hunters kill off so many of our wild friends,—too often helping them and joining in the battles.

Our game laws,—such as they are,—are drawn, not to protect interests of farmers, but solely for the benefit of "pleasure," of so-called "sportsmen." The crow isn't protected because there's no special "fun" killing him, and he isn't good to eat when killed. But many states protect the rabbit, which is an unmitigated pest to gardeners, fruit and berry growers, because hunting cottontails is "sport," and rabbit-pies are succulent.

As the old Swedish statesman said to his modest son who felt he wasn't intellectually fitted for diplomacy: "My son, you fail to appreciate with how little wisdom this world is governed."

NEW LONDON'S 200 DELINQUENTS WILL BE MADE PAY OVERDUE TAXES

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 20—The city of New London has started the collection of back taxes by means of civil action. Today, the director of law, Attorney Troland caused suits to be brought against two property owners who owe a considerable amount of taxes. The suits are returnable before the next term of the superior court, but it is not believed the actions will ever reach court as it is probable the suits will be withdrawn by the payment of the taxes. Additional suits, it is intended, will be brought for Tax Collector Allen C. Richards has caused a list of about 50 delinquents to be handed to Director of Law Troland that suit can be instituted against. There are about 300 delinquents on the city books and the aggregate amount of the unpaid taxes is close to $500,000.

BLOOM SILK MILL STARTS WHILE STRIKERS JEER

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 20—Edward Bloom, president of the Bloom Silk company, Garfield avenue, attempted to bring about the end of the strike at the plant this morning when he started employing all hands who desired to be given work there. He was not successful for only about a dozen applied for work, although it is probable that additional hands will be hired tomorrow. President Bloom kept the fact that the mill was to be started in operation a secret and the first that was known outside the working force and those who had been assured of employment, was when the police were requested to send officers to the mill this morning. Two officers were dispatched there. Some of the strikers who had learned of the plan to resume operations were there and jeered the men and women going to the mill. In a short time the greater part of the strikers were in the vicinity of the mill for the news of the mill startup spread quickly among their number. President Bloom had declared that he would suspend operations here and that he would cause the machinery to be sent to his mills in Putnam and New Jersey.

PLANS THAT BANK STREET BE ONE-WAY PASSAGE

NEW LONDON, May 20—City Manager Holt, with the aid of the police, is preparing for the inauguration of a system of traffic that will relieve Bank street of congestion. It is the plan now to move all traffic in one direction whether north or south, and the street railway company has expressed its desire to aid in any way it can with that idea in view. The policemen who have been doing traffic duty declare that the making of Bank street a one-way passage will relieve the congestion in great degree. It was proposed to place double tracks in the street, but that plan did not appeal to the management and the police, so it has been decided to give the one-way plan a trial. That will be done as soon as arrangements are made for it.

Edward J. Hickey made his thirty-fourth appearance in the police court this morning. He was charged with intoxication and with vagrancy, although one charge was the result of the other offense. He claimed he came from Norwich, where he had been employed on the steamer Cape Cod, which ran on the river and on to New York, but which has been laid up recently. He came to New London a few days ago and since then he has been indulging in drink freely. Drink is the fault of Hickey, and when he drinks he generally goes further. Once he held up a young man near the Montauk avenue bridge and then was prosecuted for attempting to rob him. Hickey went to trial in the superior court and there was sent to prison. Yesterday he was about the streets and was found begging. He admitted both offenses. He went to jail on the intoxication count for a term of thirty days and to the workhouse for vagrancy for sixty days.

George Ross, a negro, who runs a questionable place on Douglas street was supposed with the aid of a street woman, to have robbed Morris Roe of Putnam, but there was no evidence that Ross took the money although Roe declared that he was relieved of it. Ross was drunk and for that offense he went to jail for thirty days.

Councilor James A. May, who has been touring New York state and the west is expected home Saturday.

Two circuses are to visit New London this summer, the Floto show and the Sparks companies. They are good sized companies, but nothing of the size of the Barnum show, which had arranged to exhibit here, but has since then cancelled and will not come to this state.

What the city council will do with the petition for a permit to erect a business structure on Fitch avenue by M. G. Black is uncertain. That avenue is becoming a strictly residential section and for that reason the property owners there do not want business to be established there that will retard the growth of the avenue for residences. The application of the zoning system plan to this matter is understood to be the purpose of the council, if the city is ever to inaugurate the setting aside of residential districts. Fitch avenue would appear to be the spot at which a beginning should be made. There is no business located there now. Instead land owners are establishing a good class of residences there and they declare that a business that will create an odor and disturb the quiet of the place is objectionable. The Black concern is engaged in preparing peanut butter, potato chips and associate products. There are many sites along the river adapted to business purposes, but the representation is that Fitch avenue is not such a place. There are good roads now by which all sites along the river can be approached and departed from, and the automobile has made it possible to reach any of them in a few minutes. Thus the city may spread out and land that has been without any yield in income may be put on the market for business purposes.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles R. E. Stoeckel today ordered the operators' licenses of Edward Sheldon, 77 Howard street; Noble Bundy and Edward Antell, submarine base to be suspended. The trio of victims were guilty recently of violation of the automobile laws.

Edward Geary, Montville, was before Justice of the Peace Oscar Church at Montville this morning on a charge of intoxication. He pleaded guilty and was fined $5 and costs. Geary was taken into custody at 1.30 o'clock this morning by State Police Officer Fred Caron and made a prisoner at the New London station house until his hearing this forenoon.

Patrolman Timothy Sullivan reported this morning the existence of a danger spot on Garfield avenue, near Jefferson avenue. A hole had been made in the sidewalk recently by the Connecticut Power company and the filling has settled to such an extent that a depression of several inches exists.

When the Nameaug school, Montauk avenue, opened for sessions this morning, a stone weighing 10 pounds was found in one of the rooms of the first floor where it had been thrown by some unknown person last night. The rock had crashed through a large window on the southerly side of the structure. City Manager William A. Holt brought the rock to the police station and issued orders that in the future the patrolman on that beat keep the school yard clear of young men. The throwing of the stone through the window, it is believed, was done by one of the young men who have used the school grounds for a ball field, but who have been denied that privilege because the school children need their playground.

City Manager William A. Holt and Captain of Police Charles A. Finney held a two hour conference this forenoon for the purpose of attempting to formulate plans whereby, when put into operation, traffic congestions at several points in the center of the city will have been relieved.

Hezekiah Wilcox, 77, of Noank, died this morning at Lawrence hospital from apoplexy. He had been under treatment at the institution three weeks. Mr. Wilcox is survived by a sister, Mrs. Lillian A. Slocum of Westerly. Mr. Wilcox was for many years crossing tender in the employ of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad at Main street crossing, Noank and prior to that time was a fisherman. He was a native of Noank, the son of the late William E. and Mary A. Wilcox.

Gerald Ludwig, 36 Starr street, was arrested this afternoon by Traffic Officer Cavanaugh when detected operating an automobile without having a license. He was ordered to appear in the police court tomorrow morning.

William H. Lockhart, Jr., of Pawtucket, R. I., son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Lockhart, 526 Main street, this city, and Miss Almira Lee, daughter of Mrs. George Capwell, 15 Warren street, were married yesterday afternoon at the First Congregational church, Pawtucket, the ceremony being performed by Rev. David Beach, pastor of the church. J. William Leonard, of Providence, was best man, and Miss Mildred Lockhart, sister of the bridegroom, attended the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Lockhart will reside in Pawtucket.

Attorney Frank L. McGuire and family have closed their residence, Vauxhall street, and have gone to their summer home at Neptune park.

The borough of Groton officials are determined that delinquent personal taxpayers shall pay the fee prescribed by law and to obtain the collection of 90, a drive is to be made the coming two weeks by Personal Tax Collector J. Morgan Adams. Collector Adams will make a personal visit to all the delinquents and make a demand for the payment of the tax. If payment is not made the delinquents will be hailed into court where it is probable that a fine will be imposed besides the payment of the tax ordered. There are about 2,000 liable to pay the tax in the second district and all but about 200 have made payment. When the time expired last February for the payment of the tax, there were about 600 delinquents but this number has been reduced 400 through prosecutions in the Groton town court and demands by the collector upon those whose tax has remained unpaid.

Hugh Burns, of 35 Evergreen avenue; Miss Ida Erickson, Gales Ferry; Miss Marjorie Hortob, Waterford and the Misses Jeanette and May Kenyon, 395 Pequot avenue, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were dismissed today.

Fred Stone, the actor, with his family, arrived in New London from New York yesterday afternoon and went to Star Ranch, East Lyme, formerly a part of the Morton Plant estate, where they will remain throughout the summer.

Flags on all steamers of the New England Steamship company, including the New London line craft, are flying at half mast as a tribute of respect to Commander Stevenson Taylor, 77, retired naval architect and president of the American Bureau of Shipping, as well as consulting engineer for the New England Steamship company, whose death occurred at his home in New York, yesterday. The flags will remain at half mast until after Commander Taylor's funeral.

Malcolm Brown, well know Quaker Hill farmer, was painfully injured this morning when he was thrown from his team by an automobile colliding with it. He sustained injuries to his arm and numerous bruises about the body and legs. Brown was driving his team from the yard of his farm and as the outfit was entering the highway the automobile came along at a fast rate of speed. Before Brown observed the machine and before the driver of the car could bring the machine to a stop the wagon was struck.

THREE PONTOONS PLACED UNDER SUBMARINE S1

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 20.—The forces of wreckers continued to attempt to salvage the submarine S1, off Block Island where the craft went to the bottom of Block Island sound on the night of Sept. 25 last, after being rammed by the Savannah liner, City of Rome, and with a loss of 33 sailors and officers. The salvage work is progressing, but slowly. The naval wreckers have had three pontoons placed under the undersea craft, but as many more will have to be placed in position before the attempt will be made to bring the S-51 to the water's surface. This will require several weeks to perform. If the submarine is finally floated, the craft will be taken to Brooklyn navy yard, it is planned. There the bodies will be removed and turned over to relatives for final disposition.

COLUMBIA MAN FOUND GUILTY ON THREE COUNTS

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, May 20.—William Micheals of Columbia was arrested in that town tonight by State Policeman Clifford Willis of the Stafford Springs barracks for violation of the automobile laws. He was fined $5 on each count, plus the costs, making a total of $26. As he had no money he was given 24 hours in which to pay. Grand Juror Joseph N. Clarke prosecuted.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theater

I am her Husband. There are many like me. I regret that our purely domestic affairs have had to be subjected to public notice and discussion. I am not ashamed because my wife was a mill-town working girl. I knew that when I married her. But I do ask you whether a wife by carelessness and indiscretions has a right to ruin her husband's position, or his business and social standing? Should marriage give a woman a miserable and unfair advantage over a man?

I ask society to concede me no advantage over my wife in the way of public opinion, but I also deny that ours is a story with only one side to it. Many may say or think that what my wife has done to me is simply what thousands of women do to men, but I say publicly that her nobility and sacrifice in the great crisis of her life is one of the biggest, finest things a woman ever did.

STEPHEN DALLAS.

You get both sides of this remarkable drama when you see the motion picture Stella Dallas. A half million persons paid $3 each to see it in New York city. An opportunity to see it at popular prices will soon be offered you at the Broadway theater. Watch for the date.

Broadway Theater

Another exceptionally fine offering of Keith Albee vaudeville was presented at the Broadway theater yesterday to the delight of a large sized audience.

Harry Watkins presented ten minutes of Grotesque Conversation. You can rest assured that his offering is laugh provoking throughout.

Frank Griffiths and Mae Louse offered a comedy concoction entitled, Ain't Love Grand, in which much amusement and fun is presented.

McDermott and Wallace two clever entertainers kept up a highly entertaining repartee of comedy patter that is good and new.

Marks Bros., two eccentric comedians are not only fun makers but singers and dancers to boot.

Bernice Rita and The Foley Boys in Dance Creations closed with a distinctive and most original offering.

The photoplay Midnight Thieves boasts an all star cast and the whole is good entertainment.

Broadway Theater

William T. Tilden 2nd who is being featured in They All Want Something the new Courtenay Savage play which Herman Gantvoort the New York producer is sending to Norwich for one night next Monday at the Broadway is known as the "iron man" in the world of sport.

Even though he has won the national championship for six consecutive years beginning with the match in 1920 at Philadelphia, he has found time for more or less feverish activities in many other lines of endeavor; he has been an actor, on stage and screen, having played Clarence at the Hudson theater, New York and starred in the Highbinders a photoplay in which Marjorie Daw was featured. Then between times he found time to write a standard volume on tennis entitled The Art of Lawn Tennis to be followed by a companion work, The Match Play and the Spin of the Ball.

The tennis star will be seen in a splendid role here Monday and will doubtless add new laurels to his already famous collection. Seats are now on sale at the box office.

New Type of Gasoline Not a Discovery

The new Texaco gasoline advertised today is not a "discovery," says R. C. Holmes, president of the Texaco Co., but rather a result of a gradual and important development in refinery processes and practices which enables the company to produce a product more nearly meeting the ideal requirements of a motor gasoline without too great a sacrifice in yield or production. Mr. Holmes states that the Holmes-Manley process, while revolutionizing certain phases of gasoline production, is merely the direct result of long and painstaking efforts to produce economically an improved grade of gasoline of better volatility. Such a gasoline must necessarily have, and does have, a pronounced improvement in distillation range. The initial boiling point is between 90 and 100 degrees Fahrenheit and the end point under 400, or between 30 and 40 degrees better than government specification.

The ability to produce high yields of this product, practically the same as heretofore produced of the government specification, has been due entirely to the processes employed, the care in refining, and accurate control made possible through the new method of production. The new gas contains no chemicals, "and needs none." It has marked anti-knock qualities and is in every way superior to motor gasoline heretofore on the market.

Bread Theater

The Breed theater's next attraction will give photoplay-goers what is predicted as the biggest surprise of the year. Screendom's most famous dramatic actress has turned comedienne and will open a four day's engagement starting Sunday.

Norma Talmadge is the star, and her latest picture is Kiki, an elaborate cinema version of the David Belasco stage success. Entirely different from any role she ever portrayed on the screen during her long career, Kiki is said to afford Miss Talmadge an ideal vehicle.

The Princess Yetive of Graustark has changed into a Paris street gamin—a ragged, short skirted miss who lives by her wits and bewitching ways. Her adventures carry her into theatrical life and into the homes of the rich. She winds up by—well, she finally realizes her ambition to be a "great lady."

Palace Theatre

Five great acts make up a perfect vaudeville program at the Palace for the last half of this week which is headed by Crusoe Isle a novelty quintette of harmony singers. Raymond and Platt are the laugh getters with their night and day act. Miles Oliver opens the show with some very clever musical imitations. Joe and Art Hundy are a pair of fast steppers also doing a couple of instrumental numbers just to make it tasty. The Blumm Trio close the show with a beautiful hand to hand and posing act.

Coming Sunday for a four day run. Husbands are all right in their place but they don't amount to a tinker's something-or-other, on the Navajo Indian reservation in Arizona.

The wife there is the whole show and when friend husband fails to behave as his better half thinks he should, she throws him right out of the house. She rules the roost exactly as she sees fit and when there is marital trouble and the husband is given his walking orders his only recourse is to get friends to intercede for him with his wife.

MILTON TOPS WINNERS IN MEMORIAL DAY AUTO RACE

INDIANAPOLIS, May 21 (AP)—Nearly a third of a million dollars has been paid to winners of 500-mile automobile races over the Indianapolis Motor Speedway course in the last ten years.

Tommy Milton only living driver who ever piloted two winners in the automatic classic, tops the winners, his victories being worth approximately $71,800. Winning the event in 1921, he collected $20,000 for first place, $6,300 in lap prizes and approximately $8,500 from companies whose accessories were used in his car. In 1923 he won $20,000 for first place, $8,500 of the lap money and approximately $8,500 in accessory prizes.

The lap prize plan was instituted in 1930, when automobile firms, manufacturers and citizens donated $20,000 to provide for the payment of $100 to the driver leading at the end of each circuit of the 2 1-2 mile course. Ralph DePalma in 1912 was unable to complete the 500-miles but had a profitable ride, winning more than $10,000 of the lap money.

The Indianapolis Motor Speedway is the only racing organization in the world to give racing prizes to every starter, regardless of where he finishes. The first ten to finish divide $50,000 prize money. The others divide $10,000 the money being apportioned in the manner in which they finish or by the length of time they stayed in the contest.

NEW TYPE OF WOMEN IN SPAIN TO SEEK RIGHTS

MADRID, May 20 (AP)—Nobility of birth and character is wide-spread among the women of Spain, but notability is scarce. There is, however, a class of women coming to the front who are likely to be heard about on account of their achievements.

One of these new women of renascent Spain who has, in spite of her youth and humble origin, acquired nation-wide fame is Clara Campoamor the woman lawyer.

After fighting against all the prejudices of Spain where the woman is still subordinate to the man, Madame Campoamor succeeded in gaining recognition for her sex before the courts of law. She met opposition from her father until her majority had been reached or had married the man she sen for her; then from her husband without whose consent she could do nothing. By her ability, good judgment, learning and powers of oratory she now promises to go far in the struggle for the emancipation of Spanish women.

This Spanish Portia was left an orphan at the age of ten, with several brothers and sisters, and without a vestige of fortune. At 12 she left the primary school and started work in a factory, where the work was so hard she decided to seek more congenial occupation.

Although much of her energy was sapped by her long day's labor, she spent her few free hours in learning the typewriter and, having acquired skill, obtained employment as office clerk. Then she took up telegraphy and was soon able to enter the government service, being assigned first to San Sebastian and afterward to Zaragoza.

Her occupation did not prevent a continuance of her studies. She acquired shorthand and became so expert that she was offered and accepted an engagement as teacher of stenography in the national schools of Madrid. As an additional outlet for her indomitable energy she took up newspaper work and soon was recognized as a valuable contributor. At the same time she studied law, and later was admitted to the Spanish Bar. Her first case was the successful defense of a young girl who had wounded a would-be lover while defending her honor.

CHEAPER TO MOVE RAILROAD THAN PARTY OF MOVIE ACTORS

CULVER CITY, Cal., May 20 (AP)—If Mahomet is ever represented in motion pictures the mountain may be brought to him.

A somewhat similar task was accomplished on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer motion picture lot here when an efficiency expert discovered that it was cheaper to bring a railway track and trains to the company of actors than to take the actors to the train. As a result, a quarter mile spur track was built to the studio and a string of box cars and a locomotive shunted in. They will be a part of the Cabbage Patch in the filming of "Love Mary."

Cost of transportation of the company to the railroad, loss of time in making the numerous trips and delays en waits at the railroad would have cost more than the track and rental of the train, the studio officials found.

A woman who, the police believe, was walking in her sleep, plunged 70 feet from a fourth story window in Boston, but escaped almost certain death when she landed on top of an automobile.

HURLEY READY TO CONFER ON NORWICH EXAMINATION PROTEST

The protest made to Robert T. Hurley, superintendent of the state police department, by the Norwich chamber of commerce over the withdrawal from Norwich of examination days for motor vehicle operators' licenses, has brought the response from Superintendent Hurley that he does not wish to inconvenience the citizens of Norwich and vicinity and he is willing to come here to talk the matter over any day next week.

Supt. Hurley is to be the speaker before the Norwich Rotary meeting next Wednesday. It is possible that a time may be arranged then for him to meet the representatives of the chamber of commerce.

John J. O'Rourke, secretary,
Chamber of Commerce,
Norwich, Conn.

My Dear Mr. O'Rourke:

Acknowledging your communication of the 13th inst. relative to the change made in the examinations of new motor vehicle operators.

The change from Norwich to New London was brought about, first, because the motor vehicle department wanted a full-time man at the station in New London. Second, our investigations show that when a person has been examined at any point in New London county, he immediately drives to New London to get his license, which indicates that we could give more efficient service at the New London station, because of the fact that he could come there and have his examination, and then immediately get his license, and be from there fully equipped.

I certainly have no desire to do anything which will inconvenience those who desire to be examined for new motor vehicle operators' licenses in Norwich, and if you feel that it will cause an inconvenience to the people of Norwich and vicinity, I will be pleased to go over the matter with you and adjust the matter in so far as possible.

I will be glad to have a conference with you at any day next week which meets with your convenience.

Yours very truly,
ROBERT T. HURLEY,
Supt. Dept. State Police

SAYS ANTIQUATED LAW PRACTICE HELPS CRIMINALS

One of the most interesting talks in many weeks was given by State Attorney Arthur M. Brown, who spoke on Crime and Its Punishment, at the weekly meeting of the Norwich Rotary club held Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel. Attorney Brown was the principal speaker of the day and his talk was well worth hearing, containing many facts that are undisputable.

Statistics on crime are hard to get, said Mr. Brown in opening his talk, but from those he have we find that less than one-half of one per cent of our population are criminals and that only about one-third of one per cent make crime their profession. The criminal costs the United States about three billion dollars a year to foster annually, a sum far exceeding the salaries of all the lawyers and educators in the country combined and also exceeding the incomes of all the millionaires combined. It would be better to pay the criminal a salary of $20,000 a year to let up on his profession and not bother us as we would save money.

What is the cause of so much crime? It is the antiquated system of procedure in criminal jurisprudence which was adopted some 200 years ago and has been little changed to meet existing conditions. We read of murders and hold-ups and promptly blame the police and the courts. Some of this blame may be deserved in some cases when the criminal suspect is freed but we forget the handicap under which the courts operate. When our system of jurisprudence was adopted it was meant so that no innocent man would be convicted of crime. This today gives the breaks of the case to the criminal and throws the burden of proof on the state. Now, when we have in our larger cities organized crime rings, things are so worked that the criminal is freed because the courts must first prove the man guilty.

When a suspect of crime is arrested and presented before the court the criminal must be taken to be an innocent man until he is proven beyond a reasonable doubt to be guilty. The state must conclusively prove that the man is guilty and in doing this the state runs into innumerable snags. The criminal can sit back and refuse to go upon the stand and it is not permissable for the prosecuting attorney to comment on the refusal of the accused to testify. It is wholly up to the state to produce witnesses who can corroborate statements made by an accomplice or the statement made does not hold.

Even when the state has a bona fide confession, gotten from the accused in a perfectly legitimate way it cannot always be used. This happened not so long ago in an arson case. A man had been accused of arson which he freely confessed but in his confession he named a certain party had offered him a sum of money to burn the building. When put on the stand the accused repudiated the confession, saying it was all bunk. The man was convicted of arson but the court was powerless to prosecute the man who had held out the temptation to the accused. This is only an example of the many ways the courts are handicapped by the antiquated procedure. Another example where a statement cannot be used is the following case: Two men had a brawl in which one of them was shot by the other. The man who was shot was taken to the hospital but was not considered to be in a serious condition. While at the hospital he made a statement telling who shot him, the circumstances surrounding the shooting and everything. A day or two later the man's condition suddenly became worse and he died before another statement could be obtained. The first statement of the dead man could not be used in court as evidence or testimony because it was not a death-bed statement.

There are many other examples where such antiquated technicalities hamper the cause of justice. There should be a revision to meet the present day situation and congress might well spend some of its time considering these things.

The other speaker of the luncheon was Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, who was supposed to talk on a current topic. Rev. Mr. Abbott talked in a humorous vein on the trans-polar flight of the dirigible Norge. He presented what purported to be telegrams received from the commander of the ship to friends in Norwich. The telegrams contained many "wise-cracks" on local celebrities and conditions. The telegrams were very mirth provoking and were greeted with laughter.

President Edwin A. Harris presided at the meeting and Charles K. Wells was the energetic song-leader. Charlie inaugurated the novel method of introducing the songs by pictured. Among the musical features of the meeting were two delightfully rendered solos by George W. Stanton. There was a short talk by Charles Stearns of Albany Rotary club who was a guest at the meeting. There were several announcements relative to club matters. The meeting closed with singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

HUDSON FEATURED MARKET

NEW YORK, May 20.—(AP)—An enormous turnover in Hudson Motors, which closed four points higher at 63 1-4 on total transactions of 304,160 shares or nearly one fourth of the day's total business overshadowed all other developments in today's stock market. The general list rallied in sympathy with Hudson, final quotations disclosing a long list of net gains ranging from one to 6 points.

Wild fluctuations took place in Hudson as a result of the publication on financial news tickers of an erroneous report that the directors had declared only the regular dividend which was warranted 30 minutes later by the announcement that the regular quarterly cash dividend had been raised from 75 to 87 1-2 cents and that in addition a stock dividend of 20 per cent had been authorized. The stock, which was selling just above 60 when the directors were in session quickly tumbled to 57 on the publication of the erroneous report but rallied to 63 3-4 after the correct announcement.

Other motors, particularly those believed to harbor a large short interest moved in sympathy with Hudson but within a much narrower range. Moon, Packard and Stewart-Warner all closed a point or so higher.

Rails also gave an impressive demonstration of strength in response to the publication of excellent traffic and earning reports. Buying was spread over a broad list, among the score or so issues to show net advances of 1 to nearly 3 1-2 points being Atchison, New York Central, Lackawanna, Canadian Pacific, Chicago and Northwestern, Erie first prefered, Missouri Pacific, Texas and Pacific, Northern Pacific, Union Pacific and New Haven.

The first April railroad earnings report to make its appearance, that of the Kansas City Southern, showed net operating income of $388,031, a gain of $191,023 over the same month last year.

The day's news was again largely constructive in character. Directors of the Ingersoll-Rand company declared a special dividend of $1 on the common stock, the General Outdoor Advertising company authorized an initial payment of 50 cents a share and the Virginia-Carolina Chemical corporation announced the payment of $7 back dividends on the prior preferred stock. Sales of ordinary life insurance in the United States in April total $748,625,000 an increase of $27,567,000 above the same month last year, and the third largest monthly total in history.

Trading in the oil shares was enlivened by a jump of 5 1-4 points in Atlantic Refining to 123 1-4, a new high for the year. Local tractions also gave an impressive demonstration of group strength. American Telephone rallied 3 points to 147 1-4, and the "rights" to subscribe to new stock, trading in which was transferred from the New York curb market to the "big board" totaled as high as $8 each.

United States Cast Iron Pipe rallied six points to 157 and American Radiator, California Packing, General Electric, Postum Cereal, Sloss-Sheffield Steel, United Fruit and Woolworth, all closed with net gains of two points or more.

A sharp rally of 1 3-4 to nearly four cents a bushel in active wheat futures, based on reports of an increased export demand, featured the commodity markets. Cotton moved within a narrow range, the July option advancing 3 points and the others closing 2 to 8 points net lower. Raw sugar advanced 3-16 of a cent a pound, with a firmer market noted for the futures. Coffee moved within narrow and irregular limits.

Call money renewed at 3 3-4 but advanced to 4 when banks called about $30,000,000 in loans, presumably to strengthen their reserve position. Times money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Sharp rallies to around the three cent level in French and Belgian francs, following the announcement that the French government would use every resource at its command to support its currency, featured the foreign exchange market. Demand sterling held steady around $4.85.

VERDICT FOR $300 IN SUIT FOR DOG

A verdict for the plaintiff in the amount of $336 was returned by a jury in the court of common pleas at New London Thursday morning in favor of Joseph D. Harrigan, of New London, against Mary and Ralph Kelly, of Waterburg. The verdict was for the full amount, $300, plus expenses of a veterinary surgeon, $36, rendered following an accident which resulted in the death of the plaintiff's dog. Judge Charles Seidler accepted the verdict. Atty. Arthur T. Keefe represented the plaintiff and Atty. C. V. James the defendant.

Harrigan sued for damages which he claimed were due him when his coon dog, valued at $300, was struck by an automobile owned by Mary Kelly and driven by Ralph Kelly in [illegible]. The dog died as the result of the injuries.

On the witness stand the defendant, Ralph Kelly, admitted that he was traveling between 35 and 40 miles an hour but claimed the dog came out into the path of the machine. The accident occurred at night.

MACHINES CRASH HEAD-ON, TWO MEN TAKEN TO HOSPITAL WITH INJURIES

Frank Krupinski of 714 Boswell avenue and John Wall of 94 Heath street, a taxi driver, are in the Backus hospital with severe cuts and lacerations received Thursday night in an automobile accident on the Military highway near the state hospital grounds. Wall was riding with Krupinski in the latter's Ford roadster when it was in collision with the Cadillac sedan of Abraham J. Agranovitch, of 14 Sturtevant avenue, who is one of the firm of Preston Bros. Co., hardware merchants.

Krupinski has three bad scalp wounds and Wall has a bad scalp wound as well as a badly lacerated right knee. Both men had their injuries attended to by Dr. Paul F. Gadle who was summoned to the hospital.

A little girl in the sedan, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Agranovitch, received minor cuts.

The accident happened shortly before 10 o'clock in the middle of the road opposite the Jewish cemetery several hundred feet south of the Norwich State hospital buildings. The sedan was headed towards this city and the roadster was headed in the opposite direction. The roadster, it is said, was traveling at fast rate of speed.

The two machines came together headon with a terrific crash. It is said that the Ford crowded the sedan as the drivers, without slackening speed, endeavored to pass the sedan. The roadster was completely wrecked. It was turned over and thrown around, so that it was headed back towards the city. The front was demolished, the axle being torn from the body, the hood was torn off, the top demolished and the rear was badly damaged. Glass from the windshields of both cars was scattered over the road for some distance.

The sedan was quite badly damaged about the front end, both mudguards being twisted and bent up in a tangled mass. One tire on the sedan was blown out.

The driver of the roadster and his companion were thrown from the machine. Word of the accident was telephoned to Norwich police headquarters and the ambulance was hurriedly called out by phone. The injured men were rushed to the W. W. Backus hospital. The state police barracks was notified of the crash and a state police officer was detailed from the barracks to conduct an investigation.

Traffic was virtually blocked for some time as the two machines were in the middle of the road with the roadster canting over at a sharp angle.

NEED ADEQUATE COURTS FOR CRIMINAL DRIVERS

Citing the fact that out of 13,524 motor vehicle cases disposed of by Connecticut courts last year "a large number 3,971 were nolled, either absolutely or for a small fine," and a conclusion that there are in the state at present perhaps 3,500 "wilfully vicious operators" for whom the courts must be made a terror if results are to be obtained, the current issue of the motor vehicle department bulletin points out that the court system needs to be made more adequate to meet the situation, whether it be by the establishment of more courts or the strengthening of the present system.

Connecticut's problem, involves the management of 350,000 registered cars and 375,000 operators, out of which, if even an approximate quarter, or 75,000 travel each day and 5% per cent of the operators are capable (as suggested by statistics) "it still leaves 11,000 potential trouble-makers over whom police power is the only practical form of direction." At least two-thirds of these it is figured, are directed by moral suasion, in the form of traffic police. "The residue are in the criminal motor vehicle class against which only arrest and prosecution avail. To meet this situation there are in round numbers only 1,600 policemen in the state."

Traffic signals are regarded as a tremendous advance in traffic direction and aids to the police, but "there are locations," it is pointed out, "where human direction is needed and where no signal can suffice. Human nature is such that if a signal seems to a certain type of man to be the cause of unreasonable delay, under certain circumstances of traffic, he will deliberately disregard it. Therefore signals have to be watched; otherwise they might prove an added danger rather than a safeguard."

Every person convicted of operating while intoxicated or for evasion of responsibility ought to be imprisoned, in the opinion of the department which feels that only in this way can the maximum disciplinary effect be produced.

"In connection with the many cases nolled, the bulletin says, 'in each such case, the police authority which has prepared the evidence may feel a lack of support, for according to its tenets an arrest ought not to be made unless an offense serious enough to secure conviction has been committed. In each case brought the judge who is responsible for imposing the penalty, either originally or upon appeal, evidence must be provided with enough of a description so that the penalty will be proper.

"In the Connecticut system traffic offenses have usually had to be handled as secondary. The courts were not originally constituted for their management and each court has been adapted to handle them."

Approximately a quarter million dollars is taken in annually by state authorities in fines, it is suggested by the bulletin that this money which is now turned over to the state highway department for highway improvements, might be put back into a court system adequate to handle motor vehicle cases, whereby the prosecutor and the judge of each court could be adequately paid to be specialists in traffic.

The motor vehicle department is cooperating in the disciplinary work by the use of its power of suspension and revocation of operator's licenses. Suspensions for definite terms are ordered by statute in certain principal offenses.

It is announced that up to May 1, under the new financial responsibility act, the state required qualification as to financial responsibility of 1,483 registrants. The law is considered by the department to be exerting a good moral effect in the campaign for safer driving.

WILLIMANTIC MAN'S GIFT TO HISTORICAL SOCIETY

President Morgan B. Brainard and Secretary Albert C. Bates, at the annual meeting of the Connecticut Historical society in Hartford this week expressed their regret that the project of a new building had not been advanced materially last year.

Mr. Brainard congratulated the society on the election of Dr. George C. F. Williams of Hartford as president, and enumerated the bequests during the year, which included: George H. Pitts, Willimantic, $10,000; Silas Chapman, Jr., Hartford, one-fifth of the residue of his estate, which it is estimated, will realize $50,000; James Shepherd, New Britain, $2,000. These bequests when received should result in a more than 50 per cent increase in the present income available for general purposes, it was said.

Gifts received by the society include one from the estate of Frederick Jabez Huntington of Norwich; a large number of pamphlets from Newton C. Brainard; genealogies from various individuals and the Hubbard family Bible printed in Denmark before 1,640.

Thirty-six new members have been admitted one for life and two ex-officio, and there are now 521 members of various grades. Twenty-six members died last year.

The report of Treasurer John O. Enders showed that receipts for the year including $2,357.69 on hand, a year ago, was $45,854.40, and the disbursements were $7,074.32, leaving $4,950.13 in the general fund.

Clarence W. Bowen of Woodstock and George R. Palmer of New London were among the vice presidents elected.

BRINGS FORECLOSURE ON PRESTON FARM MORTGAGE

Suit for foreclosure of a mortgage for $3,050, on which there is a balance of $500 remaining unpaid, with interest, is brought by Carl Brown, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Oscar Reitman of New York in a suit brought in the superior court here against Dr. A. M. Litvak, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Nathan Nussie of Preston. The mortgage was given on Dec. 6, 1923, on a farm of 175 acres in Preston by Rose Burson, who subsequently conveyed the farm to Dr. Litvak. The defendant Nussie is now in possession of the premises.

Charles H. Benjamin of Preston claims a $2,500 mortgage and Antonio Geroso of Plainfield claims a $1,600 mortgage. The suit is returnable in June.

M. C. B. TRIED OUT ITS UKELELE ORCHESTRA

The weekly meeting of the M. B. club took place in Uncasville on Wednesday at the home of Theresa Perlinger. The club has formed a baseball team and plans have been made for the summer outing.

After refreshments were served the club tried out its ukelele orchestra and it is safe to say that it is "coming along" very nicely.

This is the last of the "house-to-house" meetings as the club house which has been previously undergoing repairs is now ready for use. Hereafter, meetings are to be held on Thursdays.

CONGREGATIONALISTS HAVE OVER 100,000 COMMUNICANTS

Reporting for the committee on evangelism before the New London association of Congregational churches and ministers, held this week at New London, Rev. Henry W. Hulbert of Groton gave a number of interesting facts regarding church growth and membership, nationally and locally.

In part his report was as follows:

"Recent reports of our Congregational churches throughout the country for the year of 1925 bring much encouragement. For the first time we are able to report over 900,000 communicants and we now swing on toward a million. There are plenty of things to keep us humble, but a little stimulus now and then can do no great hurt.

"The denomination has had the courage to drop 116 churches, many of them in the cause of inter-denominational comity, and yet we have increased in total membership. The 46,723 received on confession of their faith is the largest number ever received into our churches in any one year except 1921 when only 153 more than that were received. But the total gain, when deaths and dismissions are counted in, is only 32,065, which is about 62 1-2 per cent. The Sunday schools swing 10,423 over their previous highest mark in enrollment.

"Of the 5,626 Congregational churches in America 323 are in Connecticut, .05 and 5-7ths per cent, though our gross membership in the state of 81,190 is .09 per cent. Still, the 11,871 absentees cuts down our active membership in Connecticut to 69,319. With this force of workers we received in the year 1925 into membership 5,054, a splendid .07 per cent of active workers. But loss by death and dismission of 3,199 leaves only 1,867 of actual gain, being .02 and 7-10ths per cent, as in contrast to .02 and 5-10ths per cent of the whole denominational increase.

"This New London Association of Churches and Ministers has 36 of these 323 Connecticut Congregational churches, with an active membership of 4,566. In 1925 we added 309 members to these 36 churches, this being .06 1-3 per cent of our active workers, coming 1-3 of a per cent under the state percentage. Yet 179 deaths and dismissions totals us only 130 actual increase, or .02 and 5-10ths per cent, just a little ahead of the state per cent of .02 and 7-10ths and the national per cent of .02 1-2 in the church at large.

"The Greeneville church comes next with a 13 per cent net growth, having received 41 persons, 37 of them on confession. Mystic reports a 12 per cent net advance during a year of changing pastorates, receiving 39 by letter. Jewett City comes forward with Groton with a net gain of 10 per cent. Norwich Town continues its remarkable growth of 1924 with a total gain of .05 and 6-10ths per cent in 1925.

"But all this appeal to figures on the part of your committee on evangelism is to call your attention to the vital spiritual conditions that prevail in our churches and to urge a renewed consecration of ourselves and our churches to the demands our Master lays upon us to do faithfully our tasks in our day and generation. The churches in our centers of population are well equipped to face their peculiar problems, but they need the sympathy and prayers of what are sometimes called the less favored churches.

"The main object of this report is to extend the hand of co-operation to the struggling rural churches, which are facing the problem of a shifting and often a lessening population, and of adaptation to altogether new racial and credal conditions. New London county has 115,000 people and is increasing at the rate of 1,000 a year or at a percentage a little less than 1-10ths of one per cent. Our churches keep well ahead of this growth, but still come far short of accomplishing the task set us of winning, with our sister-denominations, this corner of Connecticut for the Kingdom of God.

"To this end your committee stands ready to assist in any way practicable to pass. It feels sure it can offer the occasional service of any minister or other worker in our group in making this year of 1926 productive of spiritual harvests.

LIONS HEAR WORK OF AMERICAN LEGION DESCRIBED

The usual large attendance was present at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Norwich Lions club held Thursday noon at the Wauregan hotel. President William A. Anderson was in the chair and Kopeland Markoff was the song leader with Pete Ethier presiding at the piano. There were club and group song numbers and a vocal solo by Tyler Stanton. The attendance contest prize, a box of cigars, donated by Abe Agranovitch, went to William R. Frisbie.

As the speaker of the day, President Anderson presented Rev. E. C. Dunbar, who gave a splendid talk on the American Legion. He told of the ideals and aims of the organization. A rising vote of thanks was extended Rev. Mr. Dunbar who is commander of Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion, of this city. President Anderson announced that next week's meeting will be strictly a business session. The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner followed by the salute to the flag.

Beware of the chronic hand-shaker, he may have something up his sleeve.

WHITTEMORE FOUND GUILTY OF MURDER IN FIRST DEGREE

Death By Hanging or Life Imprisonment Rests With Judge O'Dunne—As He Heard the Verdict the Convicted Man Spat in the Face of State's Attorney O'Connor—Mrs. Whittemore Fainted When the Jury Foreman Pronounced the Verdict.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 21.—(AP)—Richard Reese Whittemore was found guilty of murder in the first degree late today by a jury that deliberated one hour and five minutes. The penalty, death by hanging or life imprisonment, rests with Criminal Court Judge Eugene O'Dunne.

The "Candy Kid" turned suddenly savage as he heard his life turned over to the discretion of Judge O'Dunne. As he was led from the room he spat viciously in the face of State's Attorney Herbert R. O'Connor. O'Connor is only two years older than the convicted slayer.

Mrs. Margaret Whittemore fainted when the jury foreman, J. H. Bauer, pronounced the verdict without adding the words "without capital punishment" which would definitely have saved her husband from the rope. Earlier she had for the first time broken into tears as O'Connor demanded her man's life.

Judge O'Dunne announced he would impose sentence next week.

Before court adjourned Mrs. Whittemore, who had fallen into the arms of her father-in-law, John Rawlings Whittemore, regained consciousness. Her moaning disrupted the formal court procedure and Judge O'Dunne ordered her taken from the room.

Whittemore killed Robert H. Voltman, a guard, when he escaped from Maryland penitentiary on February 20, 1925. He made no attempt to deny the slaying but pleaded self defense. The state contended the murder of the guard was a deliberate part of a plan to escape.

"It is a complete vindication of justice," State's Attorney O'Connor said of the verdict, "and a definite indication that law and order in Baltimore still has the upper hand." The 29-year-old state's attorney has yet to lose his first murder case.

The jury had heard from Whittemore's own lips how he had struck Holtman down with an iron bar, taken his keys, and let himself out into the street. It had to decide whether, in the bandit-convict's mind, the plan to escape preceded the blow which felled the guard.

They filed out with the last words of the youthful O'Connor and the veteran Poe ringing in their ears. O'Connor demanded a life for a life, addressing judge and jury alike.

"Whittemore is only a pawn," Poe pleaded. His voice rose until it was discernible in the street: "The state of Maryland is asking that this man be hanged for the moral effect it will have on the community."

FRANCE IS FORCING THE APPRECIATION OF THE FRANC

PARIS, May 21.—(AP)—In the 48 hours which have elapsed since the government's intention was announced of taking stern measures to prevent further depreciation of the French exchange unit, the franc has shown an improvement of nearly five points to the dollar and 25 points to the pound.

When the bourse opened this morning and the franc was quoted at 33.25 to the dollar and 161.75 to the pound, and after the closing of the bourse tonight the quotations were 30.30 to the dollar and 150 to the pound.

It was affirmed by the ministry of finance tonight that the Morgan loan, floated in March, 1924, has not been touched in any effort to aid the franc, but that the franc's recovery is due primarily to buying in New York and was entirely independent of the measures to which the government proposed to resort to protect French exchange.

These measures were the subject of earnest discussion between the government and the regents of the banks of France today and there were indications that some difficulty might be encountered for the regents hesitated about pledging any part of the bank's gold until, they explained, guarantees were given that factional, partisan quarrels in parliament were eliminated and a government formed that would command the confidence of the whole people.

But after another conference tonight between Premier Briand, M. Robineau, governor of the bank of France, Finance Minister Peret and the regents it was announced by M. Peret that an accord had been reached.

SEES FAVORABLE BUSINESS AND LABOR CONDITIONS

NEW YORK, May 21.—(AP)—A bright picture of business and labor conditions in the United States was drawn today by Elbert H. Gary before 2,000 members of the American Iron and Steel institute in annual convention.

Mr. Gary, president of the institute and for the past quarter century head of the United States Steel corporation, expressed the opinion that business conditions here were as good as any ever had been and perhaps better.

Contrasting labor conditions here with those in England which gave rise to the general strike, he declared that labor in this country is well treated and appreciative. Wages he believed fair on the whole though in "certain [illegible] high." The law of supply and demand, he thought, would take care of inequalities in wages and "will sooner or later bring these matters to a just and proper regulation."

Mr. Gary's address was followed by the reading of numerous technical papers prior to the annual banquet which was the closing feature of the convention, the 29th since the institute was founded.

MAD DOG RAN THROUGH HARTFORD AND WETHERSFIELD

HARTFORD, May 21.—(AP)—After biting about 15 dogs and several other animals while running wild through Hartford and Wethersfield, a mad dog was killed in Wethersfield today. The dog was owned in West Hartford and has been missing since Wednesday night. Four dogs, which were bitten in Wethersfield were killed today by the state domestic animals department and about 12 others, known to have been in contact with the animal, will be killed in order to prevent spread of the infection. A general quarantine on dogs in Wethersfield is likely to be declared as a result, while a close watch will be kept on Hartford to see that there is no outbreak of the rabies in this city.

SENATE AROUSED BY NEW "DRY" ENFORCEMENT ORDER

WASHINGTON, May 21.—(AP)— An order by President Coolidge authorizing the appointment of state, county and municipal police as federal prohibition officers was made public today at the treasury. It aroused immediate and bitter opposition in the senate.

Its constitutionality was attacked by both republicn and democratic senators and the order itself was made the subject of a fiery assault on the president by Senator Bruce, democrat, Maryland.

The order was dated at the white house on May 8 and was issued in the absence of Assistant Secretary Andrews, in charge of prohibition enforcement, upon whose recommendation it was drawn.

While ready to take prompt advantage of the order, prohibition officers were not prepared to announce to what extent they would avail themselves of the authority to almost quadruple the strength of the enforcement army. It was indicated that this would be left in large measure to local administrators.

States which have laws prohibiting their officers from serving the government would be exempt from the order and it was explained that in the others local officers would be employed only by mutual consent and that the "nominal compensation" provided probably would be only $1 a year, a government salary which came into vogue with the war.

Commissioner Jones explained that one purpose of the order would be to permit local officers to ignore city, county and state lines in pursuing dry law violators. Another, he said was to bring about a partnership between the federal and local forces.

Almost immediately after the order was published, its constitutionality came under attack from Senators Goff, republican, West Virginia, a former assistant attorney general; King, democrat, Utah, a member of the senate judiciary committee, and others.

On the other hand, Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, another member of the judiciary committee, declared it was constitutional and asserted that the regulations promulgated by President Wilson in carrying out the draft act formed a precedent for the utilization of state and municipal officers by the federal government.

NEWSPAPERMEN WITNESSES IN THE BATHTUB CASE

NEW YORK, May 21.—(AP)—The intimate details of Earl Carroll's bathtub party went into official court records today and with them went comment by attorneys and witnesses which drew several rebukes from Federal Judge Goddard.

The two witnesses today were newspapermen, both of whom attended the party as guests and reported it for their paper, the Daily Mirror. One was Philip A. Payne, managing editor; the other Arthur F. Irwin, reporter and assistant night city editor.

Heated remarks arose from questioning by Herbert C. Smyth, chief counsel for the defense, as to whether they considered it the gentlemanly thing to expose the party after having accepted Carroll's courtesy.

Payne said Carroll wanted publicity and told him to "go as far as you like." Payne then had painted a word picture of the party in his paper.

"Did you talk to Carroll about publicity after the party?" Smith asked him.

"Yes, sir," replied Payne. "I called him on the phone the morning after the party and asked him why he was denying the "Mirror's" story. He said it was because it was making trouble for him. I told him I objected to his telling newspapermen that I had violated his confidence when I was a guest, when the truth was that I had published the story at his request."

"My Payne," Smyth asked later, "You published this story, did you not in order to increase circulation?"

"Every story I print is for the purpose of increasing circulation." The witness added he considered the story unimportant, although interesting.

Irwin had testified at the morning session that a bath tub was placed in the center of the stage containing champagne. He said he had two drinks before Joyce Hawley, a show girl, stepped into it entirely unclothed, after which about 30 men drank from the tub.

"Didn't you get word from Mr. Hearst to stop printing the stuff after Mr. Carroll had wired your boss about the stories you were running?" Smyth asked Payne.

"I did not."

The lawyer and witness were shouting at each other. The former handed Payne what purported to be a copy of Carroll's telegram to Mr. Hearst and Payne began looking at other papers attached to it.

"What are you doing now?" Smyth asked.

"I am reading some of the reports Mr. Carroll seems to have obtained about me. I've got some reports about him I could show you."

When Smyth then asked Payne if he had controlling interest in a show competing with Carroll's Vanities Payne answered in the negative and Smyth then raised the point as to a guest's privileges.

"Weren't you there as a guest?"

"I was there as a reporter."

"Do you always go where you are invited as a reporter?"

"Wherever I go I am a reporter first of all."

"Then you are a dangerous man to invite anywhere, are you not, Mr. Payne?"

"Not to everyone," replied Payne, "although perhaps for you, Mr. Carroll wanted the publicity. Most places I am invited to, my hosts having nothing to fear."

Irwin also was submitted to severe criticism by Smyth for his willingness to testify as to the party and his writing of the stories of the party.

"You're not very reluctant about testifying, are you?" Smyth asked him.

"Naturally I am."

"Do you call your testimony in this case reluctant?"

"Well, Mr. Smyth, do you want me to lie?"

When Irwin testified that the tub, with Joyce Hawley in it, was full, counsel told him that would be about 140 gallons of liquid.

"Have you ever seen that much champagne at one time?" he was asked.

"No sir," he replied.

When he testified to seeing other bottles labeled whiskey, Judge Goddard cautioned the jury that a label might be evidence but that it was not conclusive about what was in the bottle.

Because the case was adjourned until Monday afternoon two other writers for the Daily Mirror were examined. They were Paul F. Lubbe, reporter, and Robert S. Coleman, Jr., dramatic editor. Their testimony was substantially the same as that of the previous witnesses.

The American consul, Lester Maynard, and members of the American colony were at the pier to wave farewell to the militiamen.

Judick was pronounced dead two and a half minutes after the gas was turned on.

Colonel Williams Loses Four Numbers

Court-Martial Sentence Approved by Secretary Wilbur —Restored to Duty.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—The hectic case of Colonel Alexander Williams, Marine corps, convicted by a navy courtmartial at San Diego of charges of drunkenness, became a closed incident today when Secretary Wilbur approved the findings of the court and the sentence of loss of four numbers on the promotion list.

Colonel Williams will drop from No. 18 on the list of 25 marine corps colonels to No. 22. The sentence carries with it no other penalty, but in view of the fact that the marine corps selections board will meet here next month to prepare a list of colonels eligibls for promotion to the rank of brigadier generals as vacancies occur, the effect of the sentence may prove severe.

Conclusion of the incident came with a terse statement by the secretary that he had approved the conviction of Colonel Williams on the following specifications.

"In that Alexander S. Williams, now a colonel, U. S. Marine corps, while so serving in command of the Fourth Regiment, U. S. Marine corps, Marine Corps base, Naval Operating base, San Diego, Calif., was, on or about March 6, 1926, in the public rooms of the Hotel Del Coronado, Coronado Beach, Calif. under the influence of intoxicating liquor and thereby incapacitated for the proper performance of duty."

The charges against Colonel Williams were made personally by Brigadier General Smedley D. Butler, commandant of the Marine base, who recently returned to duty with the corps after having served two years as public safety director of Philadelphia. Just before Colonel Williams went to the hotel on the night involved, he was host to General Butler and others at his home and it was developed at the court martial that cocktails were served at that time. The charge preferred by General Butler, however, made no mention of this circumstance but were confined to the action of Colonel Williams in the public rooms of the hotel.

Neither Secretary Wilbur nor Major General Lejeune, commandant of the Marine corps, would comment on the case. Both Rear Admiral Campbell, judge advocate general of the navy and General Lejeune recommended that the secretary approve the sentence.

The trial at San Diego was of unusual length, producing voluminous testimony, which was under review by the judge advocate general for more than three weeks before it reached the secretary.

It developed today that while numerous questions to legality of certain points of evidence dealt with by the court arose during the legal review, none of these involved more than a minor consideration and that none of the evidence which might have been affected would have influenced the outcome of the trial.

In view of his conviction and sentence, it was generally regarded as certain that Colonel Williams' name would not appear upon the list of colonels eligible for promotion to the grade of brigadier general. The courtmartial's result, however, does not constitute any binding requirement on the election board, composed entirely of general officers of the Marine corps, to pass him over.

House Kills Haugen Farm Relief Bill

Vote Was 167 to 212—Was Designed to Stabilize Agricultural Prices.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—(AP)—Farm relief legislation received a setback in the house today with the defeat, 212 to 167, of the Haugen price stabilization bill.

This action cleared the calendar of all farm proposals, as the two other bills, the Tincher credit plan and the Curtis-Aswell commodity marketing measure, were withdrawn by their authors.

After the adverse vote on the Haugen bill, Representative Tilson, the republican leader, announced the next move was up to the agriculture committee.

Representative Aswell, of Louisiana, ranking democrat on the committee and coauthor of the Curtis-Aswell proposal, said he would attempt to obtain a favorable report on a compromise measure containing the principal provisions of his and Tincher bills.

The vote on the Haugen bill, which embraces the relief plan of farm organizations from the corn belt was not in accord with recommendations of Secretary Jardine came after a series of motions that tied the house in a parliamentary knot and kept it in an uproar.

Party lines were split wide open on the vote, 98 republicans 68 democrats and three others supporting the bill while 211 republicans 89 democrats and two others opposed it.

The Haugen bill would have authorized an appropriation of $175,000,000 for advances to farmers, with a view particularly of stabilizing prices in seasons of surplus. An equalization fee would have been levied on the first sales of wheat, corn, cattle, hogs, and butter and after two years on cotton.

$15,000 NOT SUFFICIENT FOR FOREST PROTECTION

HARTFORD, May 21.—(AP)—The destructiveness of forest fires this season has proved conclusively that fires in Connecticut cannot be controlled for $15,000 a year, the amount allotted by the legislature, State Forester Austin F. Hewes says in letters sent to state wardens today. He has called a meeting of wardens and rural property owners for Thursday, June 24, at the capitol to consider the questions of a large appropriation and needed legislation.

"We need more fire fighting equipment, more lookout stations and more patrolmen," Mr. Hawes says. "Besides these things trained crews of experienced fire fighters, who should receive adequate pay for their services, instead of a mob of inexperienced men without equipment."

"Three years ago the agricultural committee advocated an appropriation of $50,000 a year for protection of rural propery. That is what the forest fire problem is. Many buildings, as well as woods are saved by the fire wardens each year.

"Forest owners are invited to attend the meeting. They are taxed from ten to 25 cents an acre a year, but receive only one cent an acre for protection. If they want protection they must say so."

AGAINST PROPOSAL FOR NAVAL CONFERENCE

GENEVA, May 21.—(AP)—Englishmen in Geneva who are not connected with the British delegation of the preparatory commission on disarmament, in session here, think it would be exceedingly difficult for Great Britain to participate in a naval conference between Great Britain, Japan and the United States unless France and Italy also took part.

The three-cornered naval conference is the unofficial suggestion of the Japanese delegates. Such a conference, it is pointed out by the Englishmen, necessarily would be concerned with smaller warcraft, in which France and Italy are particularly interested. These observers declare also that the United States and Japan having a special geographical position remote from possible enemies, can afford to give relatively little importance to the smaller warcraft, whereas Great Britain geographically is close to great powers having strength as regards non-capital ships.

CHARGED WITH STEALING MACHINE GUN FROM GOV'T.

NEW YORK, May 21.—(AP)—Five men, four giving New Jersey addresses, were held without bail in Coney Island court today charged with stealing a machine gun from the government, after the weapon had been found on a converted submarine chaser manned by them.

The boat was known to the police as a former rum runner.

The gun was said by government agents to be one stolen from a United States picket boat stolen last year from Staten Island. The boat was recovered the next day, but the gun was missing.

BRITISH COAL MINE OWNERS OPPOSE GOV'T INTERFERENCE

Have Submitted Their Reply to Premier Baldwin's Proposals For Settling the Dispute Over Wages and Hours of Work—They Demand the Same Freedom From Political Interference as is Accorded Other Industries.

LONDON, May 21.—(AP)—The deadlock in the mining industry was completed today when the coal mine owners submitted their reply to Premier Baldwin's proposals for settling the dispute that caused the miners to leave the pits three weeks ago.

The owners' reply is a long argumentative document which strongly opposes any government interference with industry and insists that the only real remedy is the adoption of an eight-hour day. They contend that Mr. Baldwin's proposals, like the recommendations of the royal coal commission, are calculated to limit freedom of administration, and therefore, would not be helpful in obtaining increased efficiency of the industry. They state emphatically it will be impossible to continue to conduct the industry under private enterprise unless it is accorded the same freedom from political interference as is enjoyed by other industries.

Freedom from industrial unrest and political interference, the owners point out, would restore confidence and enable unhampered progress in the industry.

The government tomorrow will send its replies to both the miners, who yesterday rejected Mr. Baldwin's proposals, and the owners but there is no indication as to their nature.

The stoppage of work in the mines is already affecting other industries seriously. The railways today announced further cuts in train service owing to a shortage of coal.

With the rejection of the Baldwin plan by both parties, the promise of a government subsidy of £2,000,000 naturally will drop, and, failing some new government move, a long suspension of work is indicated. The miners federation is appealing to all the railways unions to help the miners by refusing to handle coal.

MINERS ARE PREPARING FOR PROLONGED STRIKE

CARDIFF, Wales, May 21.—(AP)—The miners in the South Wales coal fields are tightening their belts for a long period of short rations as they enter the fourth week of the coal tie-up. As yet, however, there is no apparent disposition anywhere to accept reduced wages.

Soup kitchens for strikers as well as children are now in operation in towns where the suffering is most acute. The unions are maintaining strikers' kitchens at which bread, cheese and coffee is the usual ration, but the committees handling them admit funds are not available for a protracted service.

At Merdy, which the British press has called a "Little Moscow," the strike committee yesterday was trying to negotiate a mortgage on union property in order to continue their soup kitchen.

Passing through a score of villages in the Merthyr and the Big and Little Rhondda districts, a correspondent for the Associated Press saw thousands of ragged children trudging along the roads to soup kitchens cup in hand, or lined up in front of schools and village chapels.

Mothers with babies in arms were awaiting milk distribution at welfare clinics where milk is given to delicate children and expectant mothers.

The strikers in many places declare that they prefer their children to starve before being fed at kitchens, nevertheless thousands of children are being added daily to the soup lines.

Schoolmasters tell of cases of children whose parents do not allow them to visit kitchens although it is known that the family ratio is only margerine, bread and tea.

HELD ON SUSPICION OF ASSAULTING GIRL

TRENTON, N. J., May 21.—(AP)—Frank Litchz, a 24-year-old farm hand, was arrested today by a posse composed of state troopers and county detectives seeking the assailant of Rose Tarabash, a 13-year-old school girl.

Litchz was found in a shack near Perrineville. The officers found two black masks inside the shack and a third outside, similar to the one the girl said her attacker wore. A long raincoat was also found in the building. The girl had described her assailant as wearing such a garment when he attacked her yesterday.

The suspect at first professed ignorance of the English language, but after he was taken to the county jail at Freehold he used that language in denying he attacked the girl.

Detectives said Litchz's shoes fitted footprints discovered near the scene of the attack.

Litchz was not armed and offered no resistance.

WORK OF SALVAGING THE S-51 MOVING SATISFACTORY

NEW LONDON, May 21.—(AP)—Captain E. J. King, commandant of the submarine base, and officer in charge of the salvaging operation of the submarine S-51, rammed and sunken off Block Island last fall, declared upon his return from the scene of operations tonight that the work of preparing the ill-fated vessel to be re-floated was progressing satisfactorily.

"Not tomorrow, nor the next day, nor for two or three weeks will we be ready to make the attempt to bring her to the surface," he said. Captain King explained that the men of the salvaging fleet were working hard and accomplishing a great deal, but that much of the work was too technical to be explained except by experts. Already four of the huge pontoons have been lowered and permanently attached to the hull and divers are now working on the fifth.

FURTHER REVELATION OF THE MACKINAC DISASTER

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 21.—(AP)—Further revelation of the horrors of the Mackinac disaster in Newport harbor, August 11, last, when 68 lives were lost as the result of a boiler explosion, was made by witnesses for the state at the trial today in superior court of Captain George W. McVay and Chief Engineer Grant, of the vessel for manslaughter, and Agent George J. Kelley as accessory before the fact.

Mrs. Annie Garceau, of Pawtucket told how she had asked Kelley during the delay before the vessel sailed if it was "perfectly safe to sail," and that he had replied, "yes, perfectly safe t osail." She said that another officer said that an ammonia tank had exploded.

William P. McCarthy, of Pawtucket, a fireman, coal passer and oiler in the English Merchant Marine service for nine years, said that he made the trip with his family and saw water on the boiler room floor and in the engine room saw steam leaking from a pipe line and from pistons and cylinders. He said that later he saw the oiler at the boiler gauge glass, which showed no water, and that in reply to his statement, 'that don't look very good." the oiler replied, "Oh, hell, I'll get water there in a minute."

When the explosion came he said he left his family on the upper deck and tried to lower lifeboats, he said he touched a girl who he was afraid was going to jump overboard because of burns and that her flesh came off in his hand. He said a necklace of beads she wore was imbedded in her neck.

A VICIOUS POLICE DOG ATTACKED BRIDGEPORT BOY

BRIDGEPORT, May 21.—(AP)—Savagely attacked by a vicious police dog which although muzzled managed to work himself free from it, Chester Zukowski, 12, of 391 Main street, is in a serious condition from the injuries received when the dog attacked him and badly mangled one leg. The dog is owned by Mrs. John W. Askew, negress, of the Waters Catering company.

Knocking the boy to the ground the dog managed to free himself from the muzzle which was over his mouth and grabbing a hold of the calf of one leg, tore a piece of flesh from the leg covering an area of about four inches clear to the bone. The cries of the lad who was rapidly weakening from trying to fight off the dog, attracted a crowd of persons who managed to beat off the dog.

The emergency hospital ambulance was summoned and the injured lad taken to St. Vincent's hospital.

I've found a new soap that washes out stains

I just soak my week's wash in the rich, mild Rinso suds. Rinso soaks out the dirt and stains. They float right off by themselves, and I haven't a bit of washboard rubbing to do.

Rinso is a different kind of laundry soap—granulated. It's so economical. It's all I need on washday. No bar soaps, chips or harsh chemicals.

It's so easy on my hands, too. They don't get red now, as they did when I used old-fashioned soaps and powders. Ask your grocer for Ashland club has added a batting cage to the baseball outfit.

The following fish story appears in the Acco Smile, Ashland club's paper and is said to be an honest-to-goodness yarn. It must be, for "Mountain Izzery" is Cluey Watson's habitat. Here it is:

Last month we bewailed the fact that it was necessary to go to press without a good fish story. In order that our readers be not further disappointed in this direction, Tom Grenier tells the following true fish story. It happened at Mountain Izzery brook. Something pulled at the line, reeling in. Tom thought he had hooked into an old boot as it came pretty hard but did not show much fight. On landing the catch it was found to be an old earthen jug, but the hook was inside the jug and could not be extricated. Breaking the jug, Tom found a trout and a big one at that. He explains that when small the trout had entered the jug and stayed there; as he grew larger it was impossible for it to get out, and as it continued to grow it gradually grew in the shape of the jug, even to having a handle on its back. Grabbin the trout by the handle he hurried home, but no one has seen this fish.

The Most Thrilling Story in Gasoline History

THE fall of 1925 found New York City flooded with "bootleg gasoline." This was cheap, third-rate stuff which dishonest distributors unloaded on the public through pumps which bore the trademarks of well-known, high quality gasolines. Car owners never knew—until too late—whether or not they actually got the gasoline they paid for at the pump.

Honest dealers were hard bitten by this malicious competition. Motorists became cynical about all gasolines and doubted the merits of any.

Then Tide Water decided on a drastic step, a step that took infinite courage in the face of the circumstances.

How bootleg gasoline was defeated

It was decided, with the cooperation of the Tydol dealers, to seal all Tydol pumps in Metropolitan New York—seal them in such a way that Tydol and Tydol alone could be run through the pumps. Then the sealed Tydol pump and the reasons for it were advertised to the public.

Contents—

1. Bootleg gasoline in New York
2. Conquered by sealed pump
3. Far-reaching effects of victory
4. The sealed pump now here
5. What it means to you

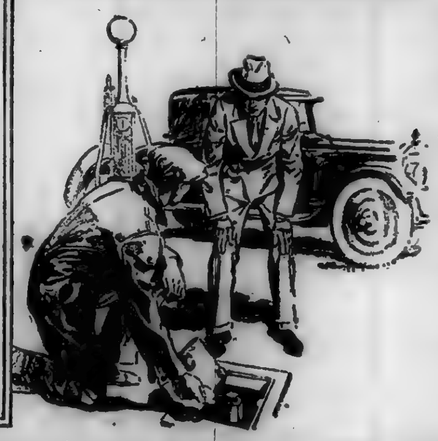
The result was electric. Car owners flocked to the Tydol pumps. Newspapers commended the move editorially. The Tydol advertising won a coveted advertising prize. The gasoline bootleggers were first resentful, then dismayed, finally defeated. Today, New York City gets clean, genuine high quality Tydol and knows it.

Dealers demand sealed pumps

The effects of the sealed pump campaign were far reaching. From other cities where there was not even a suspicion of gasoline substitution, came the demand of dealers and car owners for the sealed pump. They wanted Tydol quality given the additional protection of the sealed pump. They wanted to be sure that substitution never could affect Tydol.

Ask to see the seal

The dealer who sells Tydol will gladly show you how his Tydol pump is sealed. The unbroken seal assures you that nothing but genuine Tydol can flow from a Tydol pump into the gasoline tank of your car.



And so the sealed Tydol pump is being introduced in this locality. It is, we believe, the most effective step ever taken to protect the motorist by safeguarding the high quality of any gasoline.

The sealed pump now introduced in this section

The Tydol dealers in this vicinity have united in sealing every single Tydol pump. They want to protect the high quality of the Tydol they sell you.

These dealers are doing their share in this great step to improve the marketing of quality gasoline. They deserve your patronage. Stop at any Tydol pump and ask to see the seal.

You will see upon the intake pipe of the underground tank that feeds the Tydol pump that a seal has been placed. Immediately after the dealer's tank has been filled with Tydol, the intake pipe is sealed. And it remains sealed until the next time the tank needs to be refilled with Tydol. Nothing but Tydol can go into the tank. Nothing but Tydol can flow from the pump.

What the sealed pump means to you

The sealed pump is proof that the Tydol dealer is a progressive and a conscientious business man who wants to supply you with gasoline of the highest quality and wants that quality protected. And the sealed pump is proof that you are getting genuine Tydol.

If you believe that the Tydol dealers of this city have made a real step to improve the marketing of gasoline, please show your approval by patronizing the Tydol dealer nearest your home.

Fill up with Tydol

Stop, today, at any Tydol pump. You will find it sealed. Fill up with Tydol. Then as you drive away you'll quickly discover why car-owners demand that Tydol quality be given extra protection. You'll notice the split-second start, the rushing pick-up, the wealth of sustained power

DANIELSON

AUXILIARY'S POPPY DAY A DATE OF GENERAL INTEREST

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, May 21.—Saturday is Poppy day in Danielson. The American legion auxiliary is undertaking a good work in the interest of disabled veterans of the World war and poppies will be offered on every hand. It is not likely that the public has so soon forgotten the great sacrifices of the men who fought "over there" nor the more compelling fact that thousands of them paid such a price that they are still and will continue throughout life to pay in pain for the sacrifices they made for their country. It will be a mark of honor to display a poppy Saturday. These flowers, reminiscent of the fields of Flanders bathed in the blood of thousands of Americans are the handiwork of disabled veterans.

HOT PARKING ARGUMENTS AT WILLIMANTIC HEARING

WILLIMANTIC, May 21—Accusations and counter accusations flowed freely at a public hearing on the local parking problem at the common council chamber at the town building tonight. Mayor John C. Tracey presided. Attending councilmen were William E. Jackson, Charles H. Beebe and A. J. Martineau, and Corporation Counsel William A. King. There were about 30 citizens in the gallery. Property owners and business men located on the north side of Main street between Church and North streets where the parking of the public service cars has been a prevailing custom were represented by Attorney Harvey. Sydney Alling, owner of the Alling block having two stores and offices, said that the presence of the jitneys accounted for at least a ten per cent depreciation to the property. He said that an average of five public service cars were parked in front of or near his place. Others to protest were Samuel Chesebro, First Selectman Ernest P. Chesbro. Mr. Wade, manager of a chair store and Gus Giraca, who conducts a fruit store in the Alling block. The last two were strongly in favor of removing the taxies to another location. At the request of Attorney King, City Clerk James S. Donohue read the last ordinance adopted in regard to the parking of taxies. This ordinance was passed in December, 1925, and called for 15 minute parking limit between Church and North street, north of Main. It was enforced but a short time. Attorney Harvey stated that the continual parking of taxies in front of the same store had become a severe encroachment and unfair to the merchant who had been forced to lose trade by it for the past six or seven years. Like the men he represented he did not want to put the taxi drivers out of business but he did feel that something could be done to relieve the situation.

Walter Griggs, spokesman for the 11 public service men doing business on the street, said that they were willing to be split up to allotted spaces somewhere in the vicinity of Railroad street. He said that the jitney men could not conveniently leave the central business section but were willing to do what they could not to encroach on any one group of business houses. About this time the argument waxed warm. Ernest Bellevance, a taxi-man, said that if a fruit dealer could crowd out on the sidewalk with baskets which tore women's skirts as they went by and otherwise hinder pedestrian traffic he did not see why taximen should be driven off the street. He called attention to the fact that public service drivers pay $225 a year on their bond. One man from the back remarked that the baskets must be real high that could tear a woman's skirt as they are worn today. Giraca, the fruit man in question, retorted with remarks that he was not telling all he knew about the taxi drivers. For one thing he accused them of brushing out their cars on the sidewalk and he in turn was accused of sweeping rotten fruit and peels into the gutter. Griggs then got into the verbal mixup. Giraca was of the opinion that he was not required to follow his customers around to see where they threw their peels. Stanley Allbosek asked for the designated space system. Parking under the foot bridge on Railroad street, which was forbidden a few years ago, was prominently mentioned as part of the solution to the present problems. Attorney King said that the council would carefully consider the results of the hearing and in making a decision try to serve in the best interests of all concerned. Action is expected at the next monthly meeting.

Rev. F. C. Williams asked that measures be taken to remedy the hazard at the blind corner of Walnut and Valley streets where hundreds of fenders are demolished each year. Alderman Eaton responded and made one of the best recommendations yet heard on the matter when he proposed that the wooden fence which causes the blind be substituted with a wire one so as to make the approach of another vehicle visible. Louis Rabinowitz complained that proposed parking regulations in front of his store on Lower Main street would take trade away and his grievance was taken under advisement. Elmer Young, who conducts a store on Church street, accompanied by Benjamin Eisenberg, another store owner, complained of unlimited parking on that street. Their request for a type hour limit will be duly taken up by the council. Fritz Kirkpatrick the final speaker, made several humorous remarks relative to the parking situation.

BANNING WAR IMPLEMENTS

Of particular interest because advanced by Germany and through Count von Bernstorff as its spokesman was the proposition placed before the preparatory disarmament conference at Geneva for the prohibition of airplanes and poison gas in warfare and the supression of heavy artillery and tanks.

The advocacy of any particular action by any of the nations does not mean that it will be taken but in this direction Germany is basing its proposition upon its experience and upon the handicaps under which it stands at the present time.

The use of poison gas was supposed to have been prohibited by the rules of war before the World war broke out, but when the time came for trying to get an advantage there was no hesitancy in using it and once it was employed by one nation it came into general use with such results as the world fully understands. It was known before that poison gas should not be so employed and it is known now with much added experience to back it up.

As for airplanes Germany is not the only country that would like to see restrictions placed upon their use for war purposes, but Germany is concerned now because it is forbidden to organize a defense against attack by airplane.

Heavy artillery and tanks are but the development of former methods of warfare. In behalf of the idea of restricting the former it is to be said that the heavy artillery can be and has been employed for attacks upon non-combatants and the destruction of cities, and that efforts to check such are thoroughly justified.

Germany has indicated where it stands in respect to these war weapons. Its influence just now may not be as great as that of some other countries. It of course has itself in mind as the beneficiary but in the same way there would be a benefit accruing to other nations at the same time. The desirability of eliminating some of the horrible features of war is not confined to Germany, however. It all tends to the elimination of war but that is a goal to which progress must be made gradually and it is through steady advancement of disarmament ideas that it may ultimately be obtained.

THE BRITISH STRIKE

The coal situation in England wasn't helped at all by the general strike but no great amount of progress has been made since that was called off in the efforts to settle the differences between the coal miners and owners.

The British coal industry is in need of an adjustment. There are mines where the production of coal is too costly and there is need of abandoning such and opening new mines. It has also been pointed out that there should be a pooling of the mining interests whereby the losses sustained in the expensive mines could be made up by the profits made elsewhere. But it has to be realized that there is no agreement as to what should be done. It remains to be worked out and it isn't to be xpected that the owners are going to enter into any agreement unless it is made evident that the miners are going to do their part and meet the situation half ways especially when it is maintained that the British coal industry is greatly overmanned.

Thus there is no encouragement given in the situation by the rejection of the offer by Premier Baldwin. The executive committee of the coal miners has refused to accept what would amount to about a ten per cent. reduction in wages for all miners who are not now receiving the minimum wage. That reduction was sought by the premier's plan preliminary to the reorganization of the coal industry, but soon acceptance leaved the situation as it was with conditions getting worse instead of better since other industry and transportation are handicapped because of the lack of fuel, while the many who are ordinarily engaged in the transportation of fuel are likewise out of employment.

Considering the large number engaged in mining coal, an equally large number who were out of employment before the strike and those who have been thrown out of work because of the strike, unemployment is bound to be bothersome. There is now no indication what the solution is going to be or when it will be reached. Whether efforts in behalf of a compromise will get anywhere will depend upon what they are and what conditions prompt them.

AN EXCELLENT PLAN

Quarrels that have extended over long periods of years are not easily settled and so it is proving in connection with the treaties between Chile and Peru over the Tacna-Arica provinces. It was suggested for the case to be taken to Washington for settlement by President Coolidge but the suggestion was not favorably received by either country. Now it is proposed that the matter be referred to the League of Nations. Chile has already accepted the proposal and Peru is considering it. Both countries are members of the League and it is the hope of this country in endeavoring to have these nations come to an agreement.

Efforts to carry out the plebiscite plan met with most discouraging results. Even there animosity which had existed between the two countries could not be suppressed and the indications were that no matter what the outcome of the plebiscite, regardless of promises, it would probably fail to adjust the matter.

It is because of that situation that efforts have been directed toward bringing the countries together under some sort of a settlement. The idea of having Bolivia acquire the territory and thereby gain its desired outlet to the sea has been regarded in a most favorable light by disinterested circles but it has failed to get approval from the countries directly interested, with the result that a new plan is under test whereby there would be a section of the disputed territory adjoining Chile and Peru awarded to each of those countries and a section through the center would be secured by Bolivia.

By such an arrangement there would be established a buffer state and the separation of boundaries between the nations which have been so bitter toward each other for decades. Each would get something out of it and Bolivia would be greatly aided. Inasmuch as the territory in dispute involves nothing of any great value it would seem to be a solution which all concerned would be anxious to accept if for no other purpose than the ending of a disturbing situation.

The efforts of this country have not met with very encouraging results up to now and it is probably unwise to expect too much until agreements have actually been reached. The excellence of such an arrangement cannot, however, fail to impress.

POPPY DAY

Throughout the country the poppy is recognized as the American Legion flower and each year great numbers of them are sold by the American Legion auxiliary members for the raising of funds to administer the relief work among the service men and women and their families.

Such work as is done is in addition to the aid that is being rendered by the government for the soldiers, and it is a cause in which general interest is bound to be displayed. That interest is certain to be accompanied by a generous response in the poppy sales for though the price is small the many who can participate in the acquisition of the artificial flowers should mean the rolling up of a handsome total. Where there is a good object, one in which all should be anxious to have a hand, there should be a common desire to see that it is attained.

Each and every one is conscious of the service that was rendered by the boys who went into the service in the late war. There are those who never returned, there are those who came back permanently disabled and there are others ranging from impaired to good health. That those who require it are getting assistance through government agencies does not eliminate the desire of a grateful people to show their appreciation in various ways as frequently as conditions warrant.

Memories of those who have gone or of the services of all will be kept green in other ways but it is only natural that there should be a widespread desire to participate in the wearing of the poppy and the swelling of the fund which is obtained through its sale. Today is Poppy day.

THE WILLIAMS CASE

The action of the court martial following the trial of Colonel Alexander Williams of the marine corps in failing to discharged the accused indicated a verdict of guilt. That has been substantiated by the upholding of the verdict and the imposition of a penalty by Secretary Wilbur of the war department which reduced Colonel Williams four points, but returned him to duty at some point to be announced.

The whole affair was most unfortunate and should have been avoided. When Colonel Williams gave a reception for General Butler on his return to the marine corps he fully understood that he was just coming from two years spent in trying to clean up Philadelphia. In view of that situation and the criticism which it could be expected would be offered of the general in so quickly changing his views, Colonel Williams should have taken care to see that it was not a "wet" party instead of making it one.

General Butler might have been disposed to shut his eyes to conditions which prevailed, and apparently he did until the situation became too public, when he found it necessary to act because of the very position in which he had been placed. To have ignored it would have subjected a person in his position to even greater censure. If his position in the marine corps was not enough the job which he had just left placed General Butler in a situation which a host should have recognized in advance and avoided. Thus he has no one to blame but himself for the developments which have taken place, and will probably give heed thereto as well as avoid entertaining General Butler in the future.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Yes, why not a "mother and daughter banquet," just as much as a "father and son?" With the advent of the latter, the people generally said "all hail," and there was every reason why it should be enthusiastically received. It seems to put a beautiful co-emphasis on fatherhood and sonhood than any other public function had done. Of course nothing can ever supercede the home in bringing out the real divinity of being father and son. A public banquet, however, seems to broadcast the beautiful relationship better than anything else. If a son's career seems to justify what a father has done for him, a public recognition of the fact must be a proud event for the father and remunerates him for all he has done. One who has attended such a function, and has taken in the joy that is manifested by all concerned feels that the end fully justifies the means.

By parity of reasoning precisely the same can be said of the mother and daughter banquet. Because of the greater native tenderness of her spirit, the average mother will be more watchful, more sympathetic, more tenderly patient with the daughter than the father will be with his son. One cannot truthfully say that a mother's love for her daughter is any stronger than a father's for his son, but the mother with her stronger intuitive sense of right and wrong will take the matter of training more seriously, and with that fine sensitiveness will work for larger visible results. And when the product of this jealous care is one of which any mother may be justly proud, why not the public banquet in which the community may join in congratulating such efficient parenthood as seen in glorious girlhood?

This coming together of mothers and daughters to celebrate this beautiful relationship brings in the larger sphere of woman's life in recent years. In one sense it is the age of woman's emancipation. In altogether too many ways in the past her life was but little removed from serfdom. She was almost universally regarded as inferior to her male companion. Is not exactly his plaything, she was in all things expected to bow down before his inexorable will. He was able to keep up this lord and master business for many centuries because strongly supported by public sentiment. In the earlier ages woman did all the drudgery outside as well as inside the home. But Christian civilization has changed all this. It had to die like all forms of slavery. Christian democracy has brought about the emancipation of woman. She has at length come to her own.

When the opportunity arrived she was able to display a mental caliber every bit as great as man's, but not in the same channels. If less virile and robust her ability was keener and more refined. The intuitive element was far superior to that of her male companion. As a teacher of the young she has far outdistanced man. When man was forced down from his false pedestal of superiority, his eyes were opened to the amazing fact that his daughters were as capable of a liberal education as he himself or his sons and if they were capable society, sooner or later would demand their education. At length this demand was answered in the founding of educational institutions of the same high grade for women as for men. Mount Holyoke was a pioneer in this direction, but in recent years colleges for women have had a phenominal growth. They simply had to come because woman had come to her own.

It is well on Mother's day to show sentiment, but we ought not to let sentiment run riot. While we throw bouquets to motherhood we ought also to throw a challenge. We have a right to challenge mothers—at least some mothers—to a closer oversight of their daughters. The following will illustrate this point: The writer of this paragraph the other evening saw a young, attractive girl on the street with a fellow whose face if translated into language would spell the word "meanness." His repulsive face told plainly what he was. A poor helpless bird was being charmed by a rattlesnake and it meant sooner or later disaster to the bird. I am far from saying that this fellow was a type of fellows generally, but it is common enough to constitute a serious menace to society. But where was the girl's mother? It is nothing less than criminal for a mother not to know where, and with whom, her girl is at night.

The following is another type of mother who comes in for criticism. Little Mary comes from school with chin quivering, eyes brimful of tears and she bursts out brokenly: "I won't go to school any more, the teacher is a mean old thing" and then she sobs as though her heart would break. In the meantime the mother flares up, and shows as much emotion as the child. "Look here, young lady," she says, "if you talk like that to me about the teacher, you'll get all you want and more too!" It may be that the child was wrong, and it is just within the realm of possibility that the teacher was not over angelic—they have been known to lapse from sainthood in the northern part of Maine. Why didn't the mother take the little one up in her arms, fondle her and say: "Now dear, tell mamma all about it?" Why not do a little investigation rather than making a snap judgment?

There is, of course, another side to this youthful equation that needs treatment equally vigorous. The little female hopeful comes home with a long tale of woes suffered at the hands of the teacher. "What," exclaims the irate mother, "did she dare to talk to you like that? And did she really whip you? I'll just give her a piece of my mind." And off the furious Amazon goes to the school house "breathing forth threatenings and slaughter." She disturbs the whole school, makes enemies in the community, simply because she failed to be diplomatic. In other words she made trouble because she allowed herself "to fly off on a tangent." Why didn't she investigate the child's report before she made a display of herself? She ought to have found out just where the trouble lay before she sailed into the teacher. On Mother's day it is well to show up this side and not spend all the time in saying fine platitudes and throwing bouquets.

No one is able even to correctly forecast the possibilities of the daughters of tomorrow. This progressive country with magnificent courage has given the elective franchise to the mothers. It is not at all strange that they—for the most part—have taken hold of it with timorous hands. It was something so new, so unexpected, that they hardly knew what to do with it. Not so with their daughters. With the blood of modernism tingling in their veins, and with a knowledge of economics and politics learned in the schools, the American woman is going to be a power in the political world beyond anything we surmise at present. With her strength, her boldness, her self-consciousness of power, together with an innate love of justice, and correct intuitions she will mark a new and better era of democracy.

CONNECTICUT'S LAW AGAINST RECKLESS MOTORISTS.

The American public is beginning to demand a new responsibility of the motorist. A sentiment is sweeping the country that every motorist should be compelled to assume the financial liability which he may incur as a motorist through an accident. As a result of the recent growth of this idea, a new type of automobile legislation is on the eve of making its appearance throughout the country writes Clark Belden acting secretary of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce in Motor Life. This legislation would require adequate financial responsibility of motorists.

Such developments as the fact that 630,000 persons were killed and disabled by automobile accidents in 1924 and the fact that automobile accidents have become the leading cause of accidental fatalities have helped bring this proposed legislation to the front.

Thus far, Connecticut is the first and only state to place in operation this new type of automobile legislation. Bills introduced into the legislatures of many states in the last several years indicate that other states will probably enact "financial responsibility" legislation within the next year or two. Many of these bills called for "compulsory insurance."

The general subject of financial responsibility legislation is of interest to every motorist because he or she is exposed to the hazard of being injured, either while operating a car or as a pedestrian, by an irresponsible motorist who lacks even a small fraction of the funds necessary to repay an injured person his hospital, surgical and doctors bills or the amount of the damage done his car, or to compensate a family if the victim is killed.

This legislation is also of interest because if it happens to be passed in the form of compulsory automobile insurance in the motorist's own state it will affect his pocketbook.

The new law in Connecticut is of especial interest to automobile owners because it has avoided the pitfalls of compulsory automobile insurance. The new law went into effect on January 1st of this year. A compulsory insurance law is scheduled to go into effect in Massachusetts the first of next year. It is possible that a referendum there later this year may nullify this law.

Substance of Law

The substance of the new Connecticut law follows: Holders of motor vehicle registration certificates who are convicted of reckless driving, including speeding, operating while drunk or evading responsibility, or who cause the death of, or injury to any person, or cause damage to property of at least $100 will be required to produce evidence satisfactory to the motor vehicle commissioner of ability to pay for damage which his or her car might do, up to $11,000. Penalty for failure to furnish satisfactory evidence of financial responsibility will be loss of registration.

In effect, this law protects the general public from automobile owners who are financially irresponsible and whose operating records indicate them to be reckless. This law is the first attempt anywhere to restrict the issuance of motor vehicle registrations to financial responsible people.

Since the Connecticut law is not compulsory insurance, what is it? Compulsory insurance legislation offers but one method for a motorist to achieve financial qualification. The Connecticut law offers four distinct methods.

The first method is by insurance. If the motor vehicle commissioner compels a certain automobile owner to furnish financial qualification and if this person selects the insurance method, the insurance company issuing a policy to this person will certify to the commissioner that a policy covering the liability under the statute has been issued. The insurance must be for at least $10,000 to cover personal injury to or the death of any person and $1,000 to cover property damage.

The second method of qualifying under the new Connecticut law is by that of filing a bond with the motor vehicle commissioner. If this is a real estate bond, it may be made a lien on property. The department will pass on the security and make a slight charge for searching the title.

The third method of indicating financial qualification will be to deposit a sum of money with the state treasurer who may pay interest on the deposit.

The fourth plan calls for the deposit of collateral with the state treasurer. The commissioner of motor vehicles is the determining authority for the state as to the amount and kind of collateral that will be accepted.

Start With Clean Slates

All Connecticut automobile owners started with clean slates when the law went into effect the first of this year. After that date serious accidents will call forth evidence of financial responsibility by one of the four methods just outlined. This responsibility must continue as long as the motor vehicle commissioner wishes under penalty of a refusal by the state to renew the registration. No person once compelled to qualify will be released from under the act in less than three years and at that time only in the event that his record during the three years has been satisfactory to the commissioner.

If motorists from outside the state refuse to qualify themselves when asked to do so, they will be refused the right to operate automobiles in Connecticut.

Not all Connecticut motorists will be affected by the new law. Since it is not a compulsory insurance measure and therefore does not apply to all persons alike, to what portion does it apply? It applies to between five and eight per cent of Connecticut motorists—approximately 15,000 persons—who are concerned each year in serious accidents and who come before the commissioner for discipline.

The greater portion of Connecticut motorists—from 92 to 95 per cent—will be untouched by the new law because its basic purpose is to distinguish those whose acts indicate them to be dangerous to others and those whose operating records are clean. The new law sets a premium on the motorist who keeps out of trouble. No person will be compelled to take out insurance, post a bond, nor deposit money or collateral in Connecticut unless by his own act he is convicted of a serious motor vehicle violation.

There is no way of predicting who will come under the provisions of the new act. The only basis of forecasting this is to state that the law itself simply draws a line between those who behave themselves, so to speak, and those who rub the motor vehicle laws the wrong way. The Connecticut law applies largely to "repeaters"—those whose record shows them to be dangerous to their fellows.

Commissioner's Statement

The successful operation of the new law is made possible by virtue of the fact that Connecticut requires the licensing of motor vehicle operators and also the prompt reporting to the motor vehicle department of all accidents. This system affords an elaborate list of the records of automobile owners and constitutes a working basis for the new law.

Commissioner Stoeckel intends to enforce the new law. He states: "To require financial responsibility is no hardship, consequently the policy of the state will be to require qualification as invariably as possible."

The insurance companies maintain that the danger of compulsory insurance is that by forcing people of an irresponsible nature to insurance, it would induce them to throw aside reasonable caution and take chances on the road, feeling that they did not fear accidents as long as their insurance was back of them. Such a widespread attitude would increase the number of accidents with the result that it might become necessary to raise the automobile insurance rates. This would work an injustice on careful motorists with a clean record by forcing them to absorb an undue share of the general cost of automobile accidents. At present the insurance companies are free to select their prospective policyholders with the result that persons who would be apt to have frequent accidents are not accepted. The result of this procedure is that it tends to keep the general loss ratio low and thus also the cost of the insurance to the public.

It is probable that the new Connecticut law will tend to make motorists more cautious as to whom they loan their cars because under the act the owner will be held accountable to the motor vehicle commissioner if the driver who has borrowed the car is convicted of a violation of the law.

Since the Connecticut act does not apply to every motorist in the state, there will be some instances where persons will be injured and yet find themselves unable to secure adequate financial recompense simply because the records of certain operators will remain clean up to the time they have their first accident. Then, of course, they will be compelled to qualify and thereafter the public will be protected against such motorists. There will be a small number of motorists continually being brought under the provisions of the new financial responsibility act—people who are having their accident for "the first time." This is inevitable. The greatest danger however, comes from "repeaters" and these will largely be placed under the act during the first few months of its administration.

Connecticut Act an Experiment

It is a question whether the various states will follow the lead of Connecticut or whether they will strike out along the lines of compulsory insurance. The Connecticut act is in an experiment stage. If it seems to meet the growing demand for financial responsibility in the manner satisfactory to most people and if it causes the minimum of hardship to motorists in general—in short if it seems to protect the "poor pedestrian" without making a monkey out of the motorist in the act of doing so—it is probable that a number of other states will pass a similar law.

Commissioner Stoekel states that the Connecticut law works no hardship on anybody because it leaves in the hands of each motorist himself in the decision as to whether he will be forced to comply with the requirements. On the other hand, compulsory insurance leaves nothing to the motorist but compels all—good and bad, careless and reckless, bold and cautious—to take out insurance so that the general public may be protected against a small percentage of operators who habitually cause accidents and who constitute the real menace to the potential victim of an automobile accident.

Sunday Morning Talk

FAITH

Faith without work is vain; faith without trust is impossible. The long day tires the sweetest patience, Strains the strongest nerves. Then come the hours of quiet and rest, when men may look up to God and renew their strength. The sunshine may tempt a vigorous worker to selfreliance. Even though under the shadow of a great trust, the worker begins to feel sure of himself as he sees the work growing beneath his hands. Yet no worker is safe until he is also sure of God; and that sureness he learns in the silence when the day is done. As he lifts his eyes from his work to the stars, the peace of the stars comes back upon him, and soothes him into deep thoughts of eternity.

God's gifts are not over when the sun sinks in the west. Into the silence that follows he continues to pour them: for He giveth to His beloved sheep. The faith that would be strong must learn to fold her hands and bend her knees as well as ply her tools; she must sit with Mary as well as serve with Martha.

From Small Beginnings

A few years ago, all over the United States, in the homes of the rich and in the homes of the poor alike, were to be found the sculptured groups known as "Roger's Groups," little groups a foot or so in height, presenting in homely detail and with much human sympathy some ordinary scene in the life of the people. Everywhere one turned he saw one of these groups—in hotels in store windows, in clubs and private homes. They made an direct an appeal as did the poems of Robert Burns, and they appealed for the same reason; they showed the tenderness, the whimsicality and the pathos of ordinary life.

These popular groups made by a man who had struggled hard to attain success, who had been beaten down to the earth but who had succeeded because he "kept at it."

John Rogers, as a boy, was set to work to earn his living working machinery. Instead of handling the delicate tools of the worker in clay and marble for slender bits of statuary, he had to work with grimy hands and rough implements. After many years of hard work he amused himself by working clay into little figures. After a time he discovered that he had the ability to make remarkably good figures. People praised his work so much, amazed that an iron-worker could fashion statuettes, that he left his shop and went to Europe to study the art of sculpture. He tried hard to succeed, but he failed. He was glad to come back to America and get work of some kind to provide the necessities of life.

Still Rogers kept at his amusement of making clay figures. Out of the humble life around him he took themes, and made groups that showed men and women in the daily acts of love or sympathy, or in the stern moments of the Civil war. These groups caught the popular fancy and he rose at once to fame. Money poured in upon him. He could not make his groups fast enough. He was called upon to make larger and more permanent sculpture, and he was honored by being made a member of the National Academy.

In spite of lack of high artistic skill Rogers had made himself great.

The Tale of a Tail

It always pays to be polite
To some one whom you cannot fight.
—Reddy Fox.

There are all sorts of tails in the Green Forest—some handsome ones, some homely ones and some hardly worth calling tails at all, as for instance Peter Rabbit's, which looks for all the world like Mother's powder puff. But there is no tail which receives more respectful attention than the big plump tail of Jimmy Skunk. The tail of Reddy Fox is his foot warmer. The tail of Unc' Billy Possum is a sort of third hand, for with it he clings to branches. The tail of

Peter Rabbit is a signal. But the tail of Jimmy Skunk is a warning. If you keep your eyes on Jimmy's big tail, you usually can tell just how near trouble you are.

It was that tail that had taken all the brag out of Johnny Chuck. He no longer felt like boasting. His one desire was to be polite to Jimmy Skunk and then get away. So he told Jimmy that he had decided not to go any farther in that direction. Turning about, he started up the little path. When he looked back over his shoulder he saw that Jimmy Skunk was coming along, too. You know what Johnny Chuck wanted to do? He wanted to run. Yes, sir, he did so. But his pride wouldn't let him run. So he did his best to walk fast. But, being shortlegged and heavy, he couldn't walk fast, and Jimmy Skunk, who never likes to hurry, kept along just a foot or two behind him without any trouble at all. Then Reddy Fox, almost ran into Johnny Chuck before he saw him. They met on a turn in the path. Jimmy Skunk was out of sight, although he was right close behind Johnny. Jimmy heard Reddy Fox exclaim and he heard Johnny Chuck snarl. So Jimmy just stepped into the bushes out of sight.

Once more Johnny Chuck was all swelled up with every hair standing on end. Once more he was ready to fight. But this time he had no big rock at his back, and he knew it. He knew that Reddy would do his best to jump on him from behind. He felt sure that Reddy wouldn't stand up to him and fight him face to face, but he suspected that Reddy would try to get at him from behind. Just the same, he wasn't afraid.

Now, there was a little open place right there and Reddy Fox began to jump about, making little rushes at Johnny Chuck and then jumping to one side. He was doing his best to get Johnny off his guard. Johnny had forgotten all about Jimmy Skunk, and Reddy didn't know Jimmy was anywhere about. Suddenly Jimmy stepped out beside Johnny Chuck. You should have seen the face of Reddy Fox. This was more than he had bargained for. He sat down and grinned. He tried to make it a pleasant grin. "Hello, Jimmy Skunk," said he. "I was just having a little fun with Johnny Chuck. We were just fooling, weren't we, Johnny?" Johnny merely growled.

"It's a nice day, Reddy," said Jimmy Skunk, strolling forward and lifting his tail ever so little.

Reddy kept his eyes on that tail. "Yes," said he. "It's a very nice day," and backed up a little.

"I thought of coming to call on you and paying my respects," said Jimmy Skunk, still moving forward and lifting his tail a little higher.

"I am sure I should be delighted to have you," said Reddy, backing up a little more and watching that tail of Jimmy's rise ever so little.

"I'm glad," said Jimmy Skunk, "that you didn't mean any harm to Johnny Chuck. I was a little afraid you did when I first saw you." And Jimmy's tail went a little higher.

"Oh, no!" exclaimed Reddy. "I wouldn't hurt Johnny Chuck for the world. Aren't you carrying your tail rather high, Jimmy Skunk?"

"Not in the presence of one who has such a handsome tail of his own," replied Jimmy politely, and lifted his tail a little higher.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

When Charles H. Markham, who celebrates his 65th birthday anniversary today, went to work at the age of 16 as a day laborer, it would have seemed rash to predict that he would one day become the head of two of the most important railroads in the United States. Yet he rounded out this record when he was chosen in 1910 to head the Illinois Central system and in 1911 the Central of Georgia. The greater part of Mr. Markham's career has been spent in railway service, and he is particularly familiar with the Pacific coast and the south. Clarksville, Tenn., was his birthplace and it was in the public schools of that town that he received his education. His business career began in 1881 when he went to work for the Santa Fe road as a section hand. Then he went to the Southern Pacific system and for some years worked as agent in points in New Mexico, Arizona and California. He rose rapidly in service and by 1904 had become vice-president.

BACKUS HOSPITAL AUXILIARY

Through the courtesy of the newspapers, the Woman's Auxiliary has been able to present to the people of Norwich the work of this association of over fourteen hundred women as it has touched every department of hospital life. Through the press, also, they have kept the public in touch with the hospital, its needs and its growth and have also been enabled to thank publicly, all those who have helped it in any way. Therefore, by means of the generous press, it is the privilege of the auxiliary to give an open acknowledgment of appreciation to one who has made a splendid contribution to the Backus hospital. There is no one who has given of herself so unstintedly, faithfully and efficiently as has Miss Kathleen Dowd, R. N., the matron and the superintendent of the Training School for Nurses, who has recently resigned her position. The Women's Auxiliary wishes to add their appreciation to that of her many friends in Norwich for what her many years in connection with the hospital has done for that institution and the city. With but the one idea of making Backus hospital the best possible instrument for its 7th in the community she has poured all her energies, her thoughts and her strength into the housekeeping and care of the institution and into training the hundreds of girls who have become first class nurses, as all of those who have been fortunate enough to have a Backus nurse in the home, can well attest. Every visiting official from other hospitals marvels at the high state of perfection in the housekeeping of the big buildings, and has only praise for the methods of training which the Backus nurses receive from her. This has meant a constant and unending expenditure of strength and only those who have seen the utter faithfulness and efficiency of Miss Dowd in every part of her work can realize the cost it has been to her. She takes with her the thanks and deep appreciation of the people of Norwich for services that cannot be estimated.

Before Miss Dowd leaves the hospital next month, the six probationers who entered in February will have taken their examinations and received their caps. All are very busy these days for there are over 60 beds in use.

During the past month has come the Annual Hospital day when many friends of the institution took the opportunity to inspect the place. The corridors, offices and rooms were decorated with palms and flowers by the flower committee of the auxiliary. Those who helped to beautify the buildings on that day were Mr. and Mrs. Carl Johnson, Miss Jane Bill, Geduldig's Greenhouses, Hawkins the Florist and the United Congregational church. Friends sent special plants and flowers to be placed in the United Congregational room and in another room on A Top which has been beautifully furnished by the Fanning chapter, D. A. R., of Jewett City. This room was formally opened and put in use on Hospital Day, which was the anniversary, three years ago, that the United Congregational room was opened. It is a pleasing realization of dreams fulfilled to have these two rooms made attractive and delightful, and gives birth to the hope that each Hospital Day may see the beautifying of a room by some organization or individual. Only those who have spent long days and nights in a hospital room knows what homelike surroundings can do to bring one back to health. As the door opens into the Jewett City D. A. R. room, one especially sees into an atmosphere of cheer and charm for the room is delightfully furnished with mahogany furniture of Colonial design, the floor and walls are newly painted and soft blue draperies hang at the windows. All the details are charming and the hospital may well be proud of its two pretty rooms on A Top.

Another reason of rejoicing is the new frigidaire at the nurses' residence. The fund begun by the generous gift of $50 from the Elks has been completed. The replacement of the 11 refrigerator was a necessity and any one who has struggled with an old ice box knows what a clean, new iceless box must mean to the residence.

The magazine committee feels sure that spring housecleanings will find many housekeepers who want to get rid of their recent magazines. These can be brought directly to the hospital, but if Mrs. Charles L. Stewart is notified, she will see that they are collected. During the past month books and magazines have been given by Mrs. Louis Young, Mrs. H. A. Graham, Mrs. W. T. Brown, Mrs. Albert Van Wagenen, Jr., Mrs. Austin Paxson, Mrs. John H. Williams, Jr., Mrs. E. B. Hastings, Mrs. E. J. Graham, Mrs. Charles Haskell, Mrs. Walter T. Camp, Rev. Henry T. Arnold, C. E. Lee, The Spiritual Academy and the United Congregational church.

Old linen and jars are always needed—gratefully received. Please notify Mrs. J. Edward Driscoll if one cannot take them to the hospital. The names of the donors to this committee are as follows: Miss Carpenter, the Misses Williams, Mrs. Fred Johnson, Mrs. A. H. Abel, Mrs. L. H. Smith, Mrs. E. L. Woodard, Mrs. Herbert Gallup, Mrs. James Crawford and the Spiritual Academy.

Surgical dressings are being made each week by the production committee. Nearly one thousand dressings are made each month by this faithful group of women.

Next Sunday St. Patrick's church will provide ice cream for the hospital. The following gifts have been given since April 15: Three potted plants for the wards and 34 baby bands given by the Park church ladies; 26 bouquets of flowers from the Knights of Pythias; money, memorial flowers, fresh vegetables, fruits and jellies. Those given are Mrs. Charles Dowsett, Mrs. Frederick Lester, Geo. O. Hathaway and Mrs. Edward Ashley of Jewett City.

One pleasant happening of the past month was the act of a recent patient. On leaving the hospital, there was nearly $16 owing her. It was duly sent to her, but was returned by her to the hospital in "grateful recognition of the care she had received." This money will be used in behalf of all the nurses. Such a grateful acknowledgment of the service a hospital renders to the patients is a great incentive to better service.

Work for the bazaar of nations to be held in November, is continuing with unabated enthusiasm. It is bringing together a great number of women eager to provide means whereby the Women's auxiliary can increase their helpfulness to the Backus hospital.

The same menu was served at each place, consisting of fruit cocktail, cold meats, creamed potatoes, vegetable salad, rolls, strawberry shortcake and coffee.

The song leaders were Miss Elizabeth F. Pullen, Mrs. E. A. Harris and Mrs. Olive A. Potter, and the decoration committee comprised Miss Pullen, Mrs. Cyrus Woodman, Mrs. Archibald Mitchell, Jr., Mrs. Albert Johnson and Miss Ruth Hamilton.

The second tableau illustrated amusements with Betty Pike as the mother, Helen Hanigan, Thelma Bjurstrom and Alice Parsons as the children in it. The third tableau was for home life. Virginia Disque at the piano was the mother and the daughters were Helen Hanigan, ukelele, Betty Pike, flute, Thelma Bjurstrom, violin, Alice Parsons, mando in, and Helena Crandall representing music.

The hymn Faith of Our Mothers, was followed by the address of the evening by Miss Alice D. Brooks of the Hartford Young Women's Christian association, who spoke upon "Motherhood and Daughterhood Through the Ages."

Miss Brooks presented in an interesting way the contrast between the earliest conditions and present day conditions and relations between the mother and the daughter and woman's relation to the world.

GAVE USEFUL ADVICE ON PLANNING SMALL GARDEN

The last meeting for the season of the Woman's Federation of Park church was held in the Osgood Memorial parish house on Friday afternoon. The devotional service, led by Mrs. Frederic W. Cady, president of the federation, was followed by a short business meeting. Mrs. Aurin Paxson, chairman of the parish house department, then introduced as the speaker of the afternoon, Miss Amy L. Cogswell who read a paper on "The Small Garden."

The following suggestions were made for planning and planting a small plot of ground: A small garden, carefully planned and properly related to the house and its surroundings is possible in many cases, where large gardens are difficult of attainment. The Greeks used the small garden with great effect, in intimate relation to the house where it could be enjoyed by all the household, as can now be seen in the House of the Vetti and others excavated at Pompeii. The garden should be separated from the street by walls, hedges or fences. Then plant shade trees, if not already in place. Next relate the house to the ground in an appropriate and not too extensive way, avoiding expensive and short-lived evergreens. Native cedars and vines can be used effectively. Screen the garden by boundary plantations of shrubs, such as syringas, lilacs, etc. interspersed with quick growing small trees, such as poplars or willows.

In placing the flower garden, consider the contours of the ground carefully. The simplest subdivisions of a rectangular plot form the most successful garden designs. Herbaceous plants should be graduated in height—the tallest set against suitable backgrounds. Garden accessories— seats, arbors, etc.—should be kept as simple in design as possible. Try to attract birds to the garden. Color should be distributed in balanced masses throughout beds and borders. Study nature's combinations of color and you will make few mistakes.

NORWICH TOWN

A special meeting of the Executive committee of Norwich Rural association, was held Thursday evening at the home of the president, Walter T. Camp, 420 Washington street. President Camp who presented many interesting subjects for discussion, concerning matters of importance to the association and a map was laid out preliminary to the annual meeting in June, at Norwich Town Congregational chapel. The report of the secretary and treasurer, Leonard A. Blouch was submitted and approved. It was the sentiment of the meeting that the membership of the association be increased, and for this a number of names of new residents in Norwich Town were suggested to Secretary Hough. There are no limitations to this membership and the association welcomes the financial and moral support of all.

Numerous items of interest brought up for discussion included the Community picnic, held each year in Lowthorpe Meadows over-looking Upper Washington street, East Town street and Town street. Here, for the past few years large gatherings of all ages and classes have congregated for an out-of-door luncheon generally followed by circus singing, etc. This year the date for the picnic was set for Friday afternoon, June 11th, at five o'clock. (D. S. T.) President Camp was empowered to select a nominating committee, to choose officers and committee's for the ensuing year.

President Camp with Mrs. Camp, appointed to choose a general chairman for the Community picnic, Dwight L. Underwood was appointed auditor for the association's interests, at the request of Secretary Hough. During the past few years much has been accomplished by the Norwich Rural association in beautifying historic Norwich Town.

Concluding an enjoyable motor trip to Atlantic City where he spent a number of days as guest of Warren Stapleton, a former Norwich Town resident, Theodore Sterry was enthusiastic over the famous resort, especially the beach and board walks.

Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb of Town street motored to Mystic and were dinner guests at the home of Dr. Lamb's sister, Mrs. Harriet E. Brainerd and family, Friday. When returning to Norwich, Dr. and Mrs. Lamb called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Staplin, of Burnett's Corners, Old Mystic.

Putting Tarvia on Street

SAYS BACTERIA IN BODY IS ONE CAUSE OF HEART PAINS

DALLAS, Tex., April 21—(AP)—Doctors in the section on the practice of medicine at the meeting of the American Medical association considered today the problems of heart disease.

Dr. Eugene S. Kilgore of San Francisco, explained how to differentiate between lying over the heart that are actually due to disease of the heart, and "imitation" pains. Dr. Walter L. Bierring of Des Moines, showed that 95 per cent of the cases in which there was inflammation of the lining of the heart, resulted from bacteria circulating in the blood and arising in inflammations elsewhere in the body.

"When the lining of the heart is once severely infected the condition is serious, and few patients recover completely," he said. "The significance of the investigations lies in the desirability of preventing such infections by removal of bacterial localizations from which they arise."

Dr. Joseph H. Pratt of Boston discussed shortness of breath coming at night in persons with heart disease. This usually is associated with high blood pressure, and is an indication of serious weakness of the heart. It sometimes comes on in persons who are not short of breath during the day, and is mistaken for asthma, due to sensitivity of some proteid substance.

TEACHER PENSION FUND IS USED FOR FARMERS' LOANS

MADISON, Wis., May 21—(AP)—Wisconsin farmers are making use of more than three million dollars of state funds which eventually will be paid as pensions to teachers.

Outstanding real estate mortgage loans of state teachers' retirement funds total $3,424,932. Most of the loans are on farms.

The money is obtained from payments by teachers who choose to accept the provisions of the retirement act, and equivalent sums provided by the state. The interest rate charged on the loans is five per cent.

Nothing ever takes a harder toll out of worry than hard work.

Errors by the Academy in the early innings gave Westerly a lead that the Academy team was unable to overcome and Westerly defeated the Academy team 11 to 9 Friday afternoon at the Academy campus. The game, besides being loosely played, was one of the most exciting games yet played at the campus and the Academy stands during the last three innings were in a terrific uproar and all did their share in rattling Henderson, the big Westerly pitcher so that he was relieved in the eighth inning.

For six innings the Academy team played a game that grammar school teams would have been ashamed to play but in the last three innings snapped out of the daze and came through with a punch that fell short by two runs. Westerly on the other hand, a weak team comparatively, played brilliantly for the first half of the game and then went to pieces only to recover in the ninth inning and hold the Academy scoreless in this inning when two runs meant a tie score. Errors with men on bases and a lost ball that gave R. Meikle a home run were some of the misplays that were responsible for the downfall of the Academy in its third league game.

Johnny Greene, who until Friday, was undefeated and had pitched brilliantly in all games, was far from right and he was unable to get the ball past the Westerly batters. Greene had nothing on the ball and Westerly knew it and took advantage of it. Greene did not get the support he deserved and easy hit balls were booted and outfield flies were dropped and misjudged with abandon. Henderson, the opposing pitcher, was no mystery to the Academy hitters but the Westerly team played brilliantly in back of him until the seventh inning when the strain commenced to tell and the team cracked. Henderson himself could not hold up under the terrific yelling and became nervous and wild. He lasted through the seventh inning but after he had passed Greene in the eighth Coach Joel Sherman waved him to right field and R. Meikle took up the pitching duties for the Westerly team. Meikle also was working under a strain but when the Academy had brought their score up to nine runs he tightened and held the Academy. Greene was unable to finish the game and was relieved by Pheno Tombari who pitched a nice game, holding Westerly to no scoring.

From the start it was plain to be seen that a hectic game was in store for the spectators as well as for the players. Westerly started in the first inning to score all on errors. Yerrington made a wild peg of Dabrowski's roller to start the game and then Pheno Tombari mussed up two more balls in succession, the latter error allowing Dabrowski to score. Panciera flied out to Cimikoski but Turco hit to right center, scoring Salimeno and R. Meikle. This ended the scoring for Westerly until the fourth inning.

In the last half of the first inning Academy scored twice. Cimikoski was hit by a pitched ball and stole second and went to third on a passed ball. Sadinsky grounded out, Henderson to Panciera. Jarvis singled and Cimikoski scored. Jarvis stole second and went to third on a passed ball and scored a minute later when Turco let another one get away from him. It was evident from the first that it was going to be a hectic game.

In the fourth frame Westerly on two hits, a homer and a double, aided by a couple of errors and three bases on balls, scored five times.

Greene walked D. Meikle and went to second on Burke's error, a muff on a thrown ball. Sawyer grounded out Greene to Burke, Meikle going to third on the play. Dabrowski walked and went to second with no attempt being made to catch him. Salimeno drove out a long fly to Jarvis and Meikle scored on the catch. Dabrowski taking third. R. Meikle hit a long fly to left field which struck in the branches of a tree and rolled into the bushes. Sadinsky lost sight of the ball and Meikle made the circuit before the missing ball could be found. Cimikoski fumbled Panciera's roller and the runner was safe. Turco walked and Henderson hit a long drive to left that Sadinsky lost in the sun and it went for two bases, Panciera and Turco scoring. Ribner was thrown out, ending the inning but leaving Westerly with a substantial lead.

Again in the fifth inning Westerly tallied three more counters, bringing their score to 11. D. Meikle, first man to face Greene, flew out to Sadinsky. Sawyer hit to right field and Eddie Brewer missed the catch and Sawyer went to second. Dabrowski doubled to left field and Sawyer tallied. Salimeno fanned and R. Meikle singled to right and Dabrowski crossed the plate. Meikle went to second and scored a minute later when Panciera hit to right field and Brewer let the ball get away from him. This finished Greenes sojourn in the box. Greene was shifted to right field and Tombari came in from short to pitch. Cimikoski went to short and Jackie Marks was sent in at second. Turco drove a long fly to Greene in right, ending the inning and incidentally Westerly's scoring for the afternoon.

For the remainder of the game Tombari pitched a nice game, only once, in the sixth inning, did Westerly threaten again. After fanning three men in the sixth, Henderson went to pieces in the next inning. Green, the first man to face Henderson in the seventh, flied out to Panciera. Cimikoski was hit by a pitched ball. Turco interfered with Sadinsky when he was batting and was given his base by Umpire Makofski. Jarvis walked, filling the bases. Burke hit to deep left, scoring Cimikoski and Sadinsky but Jarvis was held at second and Burke at first. With one down and two on, Goldblatt attempted to cross up the infield with a bunt but popped to Henderson. Jarvis and Burke on the next ball worked the double steal. Yerrington walked and Tombari singled to deep left and Jarvis and Burke scored. Hamil was sent in to bat for Marks and forced Yerrington at third, cutting short what looked to be a rally. The crowd was in an uproar and kept it up until the final inning.

In the eighth the Academy started another rally which netted three runs, two short of a tying score. Greene drew a pass and Henderson was taken from the box and shifted to right field. R. Meikle took up the pitching duties and Sawyer went to centerfield. Salimeno erred on Cimikoski's roller. With two men on Sadinsky crashed a double to left field, scoring Greene. Cimikoski being held at third. Jarvis was hit by a pitched ball and the bases were full. Burke hit to third base and Cimikoski was forced at the plate. Sadinsky and Jarvis scored when Goldblatt hit to second base and Dabrowski tagged Burke between the bags but Panciera missed the throw for an attempted double play. Yerrington popped out.

In the ninth Tombari was safe on Ribners error and he stole second. Hamil fanned. Tombari was caught off the bag, R. Meikle to Dabrowski. Greene walked and Cimikoski flied out to Sawyer. The score:

CARPENTIER AND HUFFMAN FIGHT TO A DRAW

NEW YORK, May 21—(AP)—Fighting back at the cross roads of a long and colorful career in an effort to regain a challenging position in the light heavyweight ranks, Georges Carpentier, French "man of destiny," slugged his way through ten torrid rounds to a draw with the youthful California contender, Eddie Huffman, before a throng of 14,000 spectators at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Carpentier was still groggy when he came up for the sixth round. He boxed defensively throughout the three minute chapter and then looked a rallying spurt in the seventh. He chased Huffman with stinging, jabs and with straight rights until the last 10 seconds of the round, when Huffman stopped the assault with another battering left which almost dropped the former champion.

Carpentier renewed his sensational stand in the eighth, but weakened in the ninth under Huffman's counter rally. Three times the Californian barred his European foe with crushing rights but the war hero namely withstood the storm to come back with a typical Carpentier finish in the tenth, a closing chapter which found them slugging toe to toe with the former champion having a shade the better of it.

TILDEN AND GROUP OF NATIONALLY KNOWN TENNIS STARS HERE SUNDAY

A galaxy of internationally known tennis stars will be seen at the Norwich Golf club on Sunday afternoon and will be in a singles and doubles exhibition. This group of tennis stars will be headed by William T. Tilden 2nd, the world's master net star and then comes Alonzo, Spanish champion and a ranking player, Richard Hunter, another ranking player, Dr. George King, Sam Hardy, who is among the first ten, Miles and Arnold Jones, all of whom rank well up in the tennis ranking of the world. Sedom is it possible to gather such a group of internationally known tennis talent together outside of a tournament but such is the case for Sunday.

Chairman James A. Boantree, chairman of the tennis committee of the Golf club, met Tilden in New London on Friday afternoon and the champion immediately wired his friends of the tennis world telling them to come to Norwich for the match. All replied expressing their intention of coming to Norwich for the match. It is also possible that Tilden will give another exhibition on Monday afternoon, a match with A. H. Chapin, Jr., of Springfield. When approached by Mr. Boantree the champion expressed great interest and enthusiasm at being able to play at the Norwich court and is doing all in his power to give the Norwich people a splendid exhibition of tennis as it is played by champions.

Tilden will play a singles match against one of the above mentioned players and then will engage in a doubles match against two other players, one of the nationally known stars pairing with him. As an added attraction Tilden will put on a real tennis novelty stunt, the like of which has never been seen here before.

Tilden will play against four local players. The four local tennis players will be on one side of the nets with Tilden on the other and he will play he four at the same time.

The match is scheduled for 2:30 d. s. t. and there will be a nominal admission fee charged to cover the expenses. The exhibition is open to the public and it is expected that one of the largest crowds ever to witness a tennis match in this city will be present.

INDIANS BEAT OUT ATHLETICS IN 18 INNINGS

PHILADELPHIA May 21—(AP)—With second place at stake the Philadelphia Athletics today lost to Cleveland in a thrilling 13 inning game 4 to 3.

Jamieson's single to right drove in the winning run Uhle, who had relieved Buckeye in the eighth, also aided the victory with a single in the 13th that sent Myatt from first to third Score:

RIVERVIEW CLASHES WITH NEO TEAM OF FALL RIVER AT HOSPITAL TODAY

Today's Lineups

Riverview	Fall River "Neo's"
Normandin, ss	lf, Blais
Whitney, 2b	3b, O'Brien
Hamil, rf	1b, Sunderland
Mills, lf	cf, Kennedy
Liberty, 3b	rf, Liotte
Myers, cf	2b, Porter
Morrell, 1b	ss, Garant
Belair, c	c, Norton
West, p	p, Mullowney
Gibbons, p	p, Girard

Riverview faces one of the strongest nines played this season today at the State Hospital diamond when the New England oil team of Fall River clashes with the locals. Riverview has swept through all opposition so far this season without the least difficulty but today's game will be one of the severest tests of the season. The Neo team is rated as one of the top-notch teams of New England and has the reputation of having included in its roster some of the fastest players outside organized baseball.

Realizing that Riverview is up against a stiff proposition Manager Zemke has made a slight change in the lineup for today's game. Lefty Harrell of the Sub Base who has been at sea during the early part of the season has been signed and will play the initial sack from now on. Joe Hamil, who has filled in at first very acceptably has been shifted to the right garden which has been one of the weak spots of the team. As the team will line up for today Riverview presents the strongest lineup of the season and the Neo team will have to show more punch than other teams that have played at the hospital this season.

Manager Zemke will use Tony West on the mound for today's encounter and will save Gibbons for the Sunday game against the Falcons at New Britain. Manager Stone of the Neo club is uncertain who he will send against Riverview but it will probably be Harry Mullowney, former Boston college pitcher, or Girand, another fast semi-pro hurler. Mullowney has pitched against the Riverview club several times and is familiar with the batting of this club.

[illegible] for Fall Street and the busses will run the same as on previous Saturday's.

RED SOX NOSE OUT CHICAGO IN NINTH

BOSTON, May 21.—(AP)—Earl Sheely, Chicago first sacker continued his heavy sticking when he gathered three doubles and a homer in his first four times at bat in today's game with Boston. Despite this, however, his teammates were unable to stop a ninth inning rally by the Red Sox, who scored three runs to win 8 to 7.

Sheely hammered out three doubles in as many times at bat yesterday and continued his extra base stride in today's game. Flagstead gathered in a fly in his fifth time at bat today to bring a close to his record.

Mystery

I know not why
We mortals live on earth awhile and die
But this I know
That God, our Heavenly Father, wills it so.
The Scripture saith
That His kind hand shall guide us e'en through death.
He is good and
When we are privileged to understand
Sometime, somewhere,
This mystery, we'll praise Him for His care.

Puzzles

Where can a man buy a cap for his knee
Or a key for a lock of his hair?
Can his eye be call an academy
Because there are pupils there?

Is the crown of his head what gems are set?
Who travels the bridge of his nose?
Can he use, when shingling, the roof of his mouth,
The nails on the end of his toes?

What does he raise from a slip of his tongue,
Who plays on the drum of his ear?
And who can tell the cut and
Of the coat his stomach wears?

Can the crook of his elbow be sent to jail?
And if so, what did it do?
How does he sharpen his shoulder blade?
I'll be hanged if I know—do you?

Mother Machree

There's a spot in me heart
Which no colleen may own;
There's a depth in my soul
Never sounded or known:
There's a place in my memory
My life that you fill;
No other may take it
No one ever will.

Chorus

Sure I love the dear silver
That shines in your hair,
And the brow that's all furrowed
And wrinkled with care;
I kiss the dear fingers
So toilworn for me.
O, God bless you and keep you
Mother Machree.

Every sorrow and care
In the dear days gone by
Was made bright by the light
Of a smile in your eye;
Like a candle that's set
In a wind on at night,
Your fond love has cheered
Me and guided me right

Tell Her So

Amid the cares of married life,
In spite of toil and business strife,
You who claim your sweet wife,
Tell her so.

When days are dark and friends are few
She has troubles, same as you.
Show her your love is ever true—
Tell her so.

In days of old you praised her sty'e
And spent much care to win her smile.
'Tis just as well now worth your while,
Tell her so.

There was a time you thought it bliss
To get the favor of the kiss
A dozen now won't cause amiss—
Tell her so.

She'll return for each caress
A hundredfold of tenderness,
Hearts like hers are made to bless.
Tell her so.

You are hers, and hers alone,
Well you know she's all your own.
Don't wait to carve it on a stone—
Tell her so.

Never let her heart grow cold.
Richer beauties will unfold.
She is worth her weight in gold.
Tell her so. —Bayonet.

Say Hullo

When big vessels meet, they say,
They salute and sail away
Just the same as you and me
Lonely ships upon the sea.
Each one sailing his own joy
For a port beyond the fog.
Let your speaking trumpet blow
Lift your horn and cry Hullo.

Say "HuKo" and "How d'ye do"
Other folks are good as you.
When you leave your house of clay
Wandering in the far away,
When your travels through the Strange
Country far beyond the range,
Then the souls you've cheered will know
Who you be and say "Hullo."

Arbutus

Out of the fallen leaves,
That' thro' the winter have lain;
Under the ice and snow
Of valley and hill and plain,
The trailing arbutus peeps.
Like streaks of the dawn afar,
Fashioned by angels' hands,
With points of the morning star.

Morning is breaking at last
In blushes of silver and rose,
Tracing with pencil of flame
The trail where the arbutus goes
Over the hillsides and through Streets of the cities of men.
Where swords in their scabbards are sheathed,
And peace is enshrined again.

Hope is the message borne
Triumphantly over the earth,
Swelling and echoing wide
In telling the arbutus' birth!
After the slumber of death;
After the winter of strife;
After all passion and pain,
The sweet resurrection of life!

ANSWERS AND INQUIRIES

SOME GOOD RECIPES

Dear Sisters: These recipes are worth trying:

Coolidge Philadelphia Pie: Whip the yolks of three eggs with 1-4 cup of sugar, add the juice and rind of one orange, the juice and rind of one lemon and 1 tablespoon of butter. Mix all these thoroughly and pour in a pastry lined pan to bake. When done cover with a meringue made of egg whites powered sugar and the orange juice.

Norwich Pie: Cut rounds about the size of a small saucer from plain pie crust. In the middle of each put 2 tablespoons of currants or seedless raisins, 1 teaspoon sugar and 1-2 teaspoon of butter. Wet the edges and gather up the edges like a bag. Pinch the edges together, turn over, and roll gently with a rolling pin till the currants begin to prick through on the top side. Bake in a hot oven and serve either hot or cold.

Baked Cheese: Butter a fireproof baking dish and line it with the buttered bread, laying whole slices on the bottom, then cut pieces to fill in around these, and standing long strips of bread around the sides. Put in 1 1-4 cup of diced cheese; beat one egg and add to 2-4 cup of milk and salt, pepper and paprika to taste; according to the strength of the cheese and bake in a moderate oven till the cheese is melted and the dish is brown. Be sure and cover cheese with milk.

Rather Scotch Pie: Line a deep pan with pastry and fill with a mixture made as follows; melt 2 tablespoons of butter, 1 cup brown sugar. Cook until a rich brown, then add the scalded milk. Simmer for a few minutes, or until the sugar is dissolved, whip in the yolk of one egg beaten to a cream with one teaspoon of arrowroot. Bake until the custard is set and spread with a meringue, made of the egg-white whipped with powdered sugar. Flavor both pie and meringue with vanilla.

PITFALLS TO AVOID

Dear Cornerites: How must a girl conduct herself to succeed in business and be popular.

Some few years ago, I should say it was 16 years, I saw this in Woman's Life. If I don't get the exact words I know you will pardon me.

She (the girl) has so much to do that she has no time for morbid thoughts. She never thinks for a moment that she is not attractive nor forgets to look as charming as possible. She is considerate of the happiness of others and it is reflected back to her as a looking glass.

She never permits herself to grow old for by cultivating all the graces of the heart, brain and body, age does not come to her.

She awakens cheerfully in the morning and closes her eyes thankfully at night.

She believes that life has some serious work for her to do and that the serious work lies very closely to the homely, every day duties.

She is ever ready to talk about a book, a picture or a play. And I think I might add never ready to indulge in idle untruthful words about another; Any one who indulges in untruths is bound to be unpopular.

This reminds me of a story about old Si Perkins. He was called a very unreliable party. One day the sages of the general store were discussing the voracity of old Si Perkins, when Uncle Bill Abbott wandered in. "What do you think about it, Uncle Bill?" they asked him. "Would you call Si Perkins a liar?"

"Well," answered Uncle Bill, as he thoughtfull studied the ceiling, "I don't know as I would go as fas as to call him a liar exactly; but I do know this much, when feeding time comes, in order to get any response from his hogs he has to get someone else to call 'em for him."

A true woman I think has her own sweet unaffected way, a womanly self; therein lies the secret of her popularity, not of her success. It does not make any difference what the rest think, always speak a good word for the absent one. If you don't sometime you might be in the same boat Johnnie's father was in. His father said, "Bobbie, don't stare at Mr. Jones." But Bobbie said, "I am waiting to see Mr. Jones drink."

"Well," he said, "why my child?"

"Because mama said that you said he drank like a fish, and I never saw a fish drink."

I think when we are referring to a girl who is thin we should call a thin girl "spirituelle." It means the same as "skinny" but sounds better. Never call any one puny—you can call a girl "fragile." It sound more like delicate china, and all that sex like to be compared to fine "Dresden" or a chunky girl you should say she has a finely rounded figure or if a girl is "gawky" just say a girl displays untutored grace.

You can be too honest in your criticism. I remember at some distant gathering the hostess teased the young man to sing. At least, he consented, when he left the piano, he said, "I don't believe your were so anxious to hear me sing."

"Oh yes, I did," she said, "you know, I never had heard you sing before."

Such remarks are not meant to hurt anyone's feelings but they do.

A lady said to another, "Is your friend economical."

"Well," she replied, "she's saving her wedding dress for a possible second marriage, if you call that economical."

RECALLS MORE OLD SONGS

Dear Social Corner Members: I have been going to write every week for the past three months and I never get to it so I'm starting bright and early this Monday morning to see what I can do. I read every letter every week and they are all so interesting. I don't know any members personally but perhaps if I attended one of the gatherings I might know some among you: I would love to attend but haven't the courage to go alone.

I suppose you are all busy at housecleaning. I haven't started yet but will this week if weather permits. I don't like to clean with windows and doors all shut and it hasn't been warm enough to have them open so far at least not here on the hill where I live. Some windy spot, but lovely in summer time.

Speaking of old songs did any of you ever sing, Down By Those Weeping Willows? And another one, I'm not sure of the name, but it starts, Our hands are clasped, alas forever Perhaps we may not meet again I love you as I could no other This parting fills my heart with pain.

When I was a little girl I used to visit a family where every member sang, six in all. They lived out in the country and we used to go for strawrides and moonlight walks and they used to sing so nice together I used to think those songs grand, and their singing perfect. I didn't get the chance to go often but when I did go I used to ask for a song as soon as I got there. Well time brings changes. These people moved to a large city and the youngest made quite a name for himself as a singer and sings yet, also all his children. Well I didn't mean to say so much but I love singing and good music and when I get started, beware.

My! All the new members, it must keep the editor quite busy keeping track of all.

Spark Plug: So you are a July bird too? Same date as mine. Wonder if we are the same age though?

Would like to join if there is more left.

Best wishes to all.

SWEETMEATS FOR THE JUNE WEDDING

Dear Social Corner Sisters: It is not to be wondered that June is the popular month for weddings, for aside from the fact that "Then if ever come perfect days," nature seems to have poured forth her stores for bridal decorations. Spring flowers are still to be had, while summer also brings her offerings to choose from.

Golden daffodils combined with green fern leaves make a charming decoration for a simple wedding table. These are arranged in a wire basket outline, filled with damp moss to keep the flowers fresh, and the receptable is hidden by a pretty grouping of ferns.

A pretty idea, is to take the bride's favorite flower for the central scheme of all the decorations both on the table and in the house. This can be used on the table in the same arrangement as given for the daffodil.

A feature of the wedding breakfast or supper is the bride's cake. Its cutting furnishes much merriment for the occasion. Is the cake are baked a gold ring, a dime, and a thimble. The bride cuts the first slice or cake and the unmarried guests take their turns after her in cutting each a slice and examining it to see if one of the trophies has been captured. The forecast is that the one who gets the ring will be the next to marry, the winner of the dime will marry money and the thimble condemns one to solitary spinsterhood.

A recipe for a dainty bride's cake follows: Cream 3-4 of a cup of butter with 2 cups of sugar, add 1-2 cup milk and stir in 2 cups flour which has been sifted four times with 4 teaspoons of baking powder. Add a pinch of salt, flavor to taste, and last of all fold in lightly the stiffly beaten whites of 8 eggs. Bake from 30 minutes to an hour in a moderate oven. When cool, spread evenly with a white icing, which may be decorated with pink hearts as soon as it is hard. The final festive touch is supplied by a garnish of pink sweet peas and greenery.

Varieties of little cakes suitable for wedding supper or reception, and decorated to suit the occasion will suggest themselves to the woman of ingenuity. Recipes for making a few of these follow:

Violet Cakes: Any small round cake or cooky may be attractively prepared in this way. Spread evenly with soft violet icing, and in the center of each press a large candied violet. When the frosting is hard, dilute a bit of green coloring, and with a fine brush decorate the cakes with a narrow border and a few leaves.

Wild Rose: A plain cooky mixture flavored with rose extract is best for these attractive little cakes. Roll the dough very thin and cut the roses out carefully, using a pattern cut from cardboard and buttered to prevent sticking. When they are baked and cool, spread with pale pink rose flavored icing. Tint the outer edges a deeper pink, make the centers with a bit of yellow icing, and set away to harden.

Bridal Wreaths: Lemon cooky dough may be rolled thin and cut out in the form of wreaths. When smoothly iced, these should be decorated with clusters or pink roses and a huge ribbon bow which may be applied by means of vegetable coloring. They are very pretty to serve with teas.

Wedding Bells: These cookies are novel and attractive to serve at a bridal shower or luncheon. Cut small bells from any favorite cooky mixture and bake carefully. When cool, cover smoothly with pale-green pistachio icing and set in a cool place to harden. When icing is firm, the ribbon bows and initials of the prospective bride and groom may be added by means of a fine brush dipped in a little harmless green coloring.

Light Fruit Cake: 2 cups butter, 3 cups sugar, 4 cups pastry flour, 8 eggs, 1 teaspoon rose water, 1 pound candied cherries, 1 pound blanched almond, 1 cup of brandy, I use grape juice or cider 1-2 pound citron.

Shred the cherries, cut the pineapple into bits also the citron, chop the almonds. With the fruit mix 3 tablespoons of grape juice, and with the almonds 2 tablespoons of rose water. Cream it with the sugar sifted three times, add the egg yolks well beaten; then the cocoanut, flour, 1 cup grape juice and the egg whites beaten stiff. One half pound of dessicated cocoanut, chopped fine and allowed to stand in 2 tablespoons of rose water or milk, may be substituted for fresh cocoanut.

The amount given will make three medium sized cakes or one large one which will keep indennitely.

Fruit Cake: Beat the yolks of 7 eggs very light and blend into them 1-2 cup of sugar. Cream 1-2 pound of butter, with 1-2 cup of sugar. Combine these two, take 3-4 cup of sugar browned and sift it several times with 1 1-2 teaspoons of baking powder. To the first mixture add alternately small quantities of the browned flour and of the well beaten whites of the eggs. Some hours before cut 1-4 pound of citron, 1 cup brandied cherries and 1-4 pound of dates (pineapple may be used instead of dates if preferred) into small pieces, add 1-4 pound of raisins, 1-3 pint of strawberry preserves 1-3 pint glass of plum jelly and let the whole stand in one glass of grape juice. Take a little of the fruit, sift some flour over it and add to batter, mixing well. Continue doing this till fruit has been used, and about 3-8 of a cup of flour. Pour into a pan, the bottom and sides covered with well greased paper. Garnish the top with chopped almonds (1-4 pound) split and blanched, and bake in a slow oven till done.

THE BUILDER

Dear Corner Sisters: A small section of land in Leffingwell is interesting and dear to me and doubtly so because of home ties. Looking at the spot where once stood the roof of the homes tree that sheltered a family of many children; the house is not there now, but a house of a different type stands near the home site. Today I do not see one familiar landmark of the old home where the young days of girlhood were spent, but looking along further I see a place where the singing peals of laughter and merry shouts of gladness were heard when the games were played and with a last look at the old site, I see a sturdy little lad, of chubby build, with his beloved pet at his side, the big tiger cat, and in his hands the toy he loved best a hammer. If a nail was found his joy was complete for at that age of life he could drive a nail with great skill. His mother would often say, "That boy will become a builder sometime in life." The words came true.

Passing over a period of years we see the young married man with the helpmate at his side; the matrimonial voyage of life began worthy of note. No task too hard, no work too great. the secret of their great success in life was, they were not afraid of work. The enterprising spirit of thrift expanded, a site was selected and strange to say it was on the southern sunny slope of "Hillside" where the childhood games were played long years ago. The builder began his work: the ring of the saw and the strokes of the hammer were heard. In the course of time the finished house, a credit to the community, was occupied. It showed the onward step of progress of the builder; but he did not rest from his labors. The calls were often heard far and near, for miles around the handy work of the builder was seen as time went on. The restless spirit for the active life on the home plot was seen; for again was heard the familiar sounds of house building. And today a group of trim up-to-date houses stand there, the result of the builder's hands predicted long years ago.

A vision comes before my eyes today or a sturdy little lad tightly clasping in the chubby little arms, his beloved hammer. The vision fades and standing in its place, is the builder of many buildings and he too is clasping in his hand a hammer.

Best wishes to the Corner.

RAKE

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: Up among the foothills of the Catskills where the morning light gilds the encircling Shawangunk mountains, in an ancient home of two or more centuries ago, Rake and his youthful custodian live in peaceful seclusion.

Even now the appealing beauty of these lonely mountains stirs the wistful imagination and quickens the heart in anticipation of the happier days of summer's glory.

It would be a picture of all time tales to tell of the devotion of Rake to his charge and to this home among the rugged mountains.

By day Rake's watchful eye challenges the intruder, and by night his alert ear is trained to every sound. In summer the fruit trees are his special care and at no time is a chicken allowed to stray from home. Cats are driven to ambush, and mice and woodchucks have no existence. Among his antipathies are bearded men, who are not permitted to pass the house until their sacred beards are removed.

As a stranger it was by courtesy only that Rake permitted me to enter the house. Accompanied by his owner Rake gave me a careful "o-- over" before he allowed me to place my hand on his head and to become friends.

Rake possesses all the characteristics of a real dog. Precisely at meal time he would bark for admittance and would seat himself expectantly between us. Many were the choice bits nimble Rake would catch on the wing. However imperfect the aim Rake would follow the angle and with one rapacious gulp (irrespective of bone) was ready for another. Said I, "is he a tank?"

Who could resist his mute pleading when he placed his head on my lap, twitched his jawa, and tilted his head away on one side. "The next pancake for Rake," and he knew that pancake was his.

When in the evening we sat and talked of other days, Rake lay in a curled heap by our side, and when we sought our evening rest Rake climbed the stairs between us and stretched himself on a piece of carpet outside our doors. "Five-thirty Rake" and at that hour he would lift his head and the peculiar cry of the Airdale would arouse us from our slumbers.

Upon returning from a trip to town or an auto ride a yellow bunch on the lawn, watching for our coming would develop Rake, who would spring to the side of the car with a bark that would not cease until he received a direct salutation.

One Sunday morning the writer returned from a trip to town seated on the back end of a neighboring farmer's wagon (getting a hitch) and when Rake appeared to make his customary inspection his surprised look when he spied my dangling feet and happy smile, was that of a human being.

Rake went walking with me that afternoon, along the country road for a mile or more, trudging happily by my side, making a specialty of plunging into dooryards, and wading through every mud hole and swampy land along the way.

It was confidentially whispered that Rake romanced occasionally. Would go off on a spree for a week or more, and return looking so ashamed. Darling Rake! Only a dog!

Rake was well known in the village and had his station. When he drove to town with his owner he would sit up straight and pretentious on the seat beside her, and was the sole owner of all within his vision. No king could look more dignified or satisfied. In cold weather he would dive into the post office for warmth, and in the rain crouch in the doorways for protection.

But as he lay on the lawn with his head between his paws I often wondered of what he was thinking. Were the sad histories of life unknown to him? Was he unmindful of the sunlight staining the peaks of the Shawangunk mountains, or the shimmering light on Kimisha Lake? Who can say. We knew he was often lonely. Sometimes would sigh and missing his owner would lift his head and howl until she appeared.

Rake is only a dog but the intelligent devotion of this dumb animal to his charge and to this home among the lonely mountains, patiently waiting our home coming, is beyond human appreciation and understanding. He answers not in disdain or wrath, without complaint looks to his owner for food and comfort, and express his gratitude in acts not words. Rake has no hypotheels on life's complications. He wags his tail in complacence.

I have left Rake guarding his home among the ever lovely mountains, which soon the rhododendrons will greet with gorgeous the wayside passes, sitting beside his owner, sharing her evening meal, who says "wherever I go Rake shall go with me." "Could I find a more devoted companion than faithful Rake, my sole protector in this little home among the lonely Shawangunk mountains?"

THE LITTLE SPINSTER.

DEATH OF WANDERING JEW

Dear Friends: You will be grieved to learn that one more dear sister has passed on to the Great Beyond.

Wandering Jew (Mrs. Botham) of Club No. 1, died at St. Joseph's hospital, Willimantic, Monday, May 10th. She was one of our first members, when Club No. 1 numbered less than 20 members, and at that time there were no other clubs formed, and we met at the different homes.

She was very fond of the Corner and seldom missed a meeting and we shall sadly miss her.

She with other early members was to have been hostess at our May meeting on the 12th and so it seems doubly sad to our members.

She was of a social, and pleasant nature that had many close friends in the Corner and the home circle. The family have my deepest sympathy.

HULDY.

CLUB 6'S MEETING

Dear Corner Friends: Shore Line Club No. 6 met in W[illimantic] May 15, with a good attendance.

The weather was fine and every one seemed in good spirits. Some of our club members were unable to be present because of sickness. We missed them and hope they will soon be well again.

We hope those who came from other clubs enjoyed the day enough, to meet with us again, sometime in the future. We wish to thank one and all who helped us to make the meeting a success. The entertainment was well planned and much enjoyed especially the dance by Mtlle Miss G.

Rose Lee: Where were you? We looked in vain for you and a very dear friend came planning to visit with you.

O. D. AND FRANCES.

CORNER'S SUCCESS AND HAPPINESS

Dear Sisters: I went to Mellissa's birthday party on Wednesday and had such a good time that I forgot about the letter I meant to write to the Corner that night, so I know I am too late for the paper of the 18th.

I wonder if the success and happiness in the Social Corner aren't partly due to the fact that we have no officers, so there is no rivalry or jealously over who shall hold office.

When we go to a club meeting we don't go wondering how many votes we can get for ourselves or some special friend, for a certain office, but with the thought of what a good time we are going to have and help all the others to have too, and we generally seem to have very good success.

Good luck to the Social Corner and long may it live and prosper.

Interested Reader: Was sorry to hear you were sick and hope you will be able to get out Tuesday.

Rebecca: Hope we will see you at Westerly. You have surely earned a rest and good time.

E. L. M.: If you forget to bring beans it won't be because you were not reminded of it, for you know the Corner doesn't seem quite complete if no one mentions those beans.

O. D.: We missed you and your mother so much Wednesday the 15th.

Best wishes to all.

Dark Molasses Bran Bread: 1-2 cup molasses, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 1-2 cups sour milk, 1 1-2 cups whole wheat flour, 1 1-2 cup bran, 1-2 cup seeded raisins. Dissolve soda in molasses add milk, flour, bran and raisins. Bake 45 minutes in a moderate oven in a loaf pan. This may be baked in small molds.

Molasses Pudding a la Louisiana: 4 cups milk, 1-2 cup molasses, 1-2 cup washed rice, 1-2 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup raisins. Mix thoroughly, bake in a slow oven for 2 1-2 hours, stirring four times, every 15 minutes for the first hour and add three teaspoons of butter in the fourth stirring. It serves six.

NEW OR OLD

Dear Social Corner Friends: The most important work in the world, child care, is undertaken with the least preparation, and what instruction are usually does have are old ideas handed down from one generation to another. These are still quoted and used by those who do not seem to realise that entirely new living conditions so change the child's environment that his teaching must be entirely modernized also. When cleaning house I always wish that I could take all the wrong ideas in the world and throw them out where no one could ever find them.

We used to be told that children inherit the good or bad qualities of their parents. Now we know that is not true. There is more of a chance that capable parents may give their children the right care and teaching, but often or this the reverse is true. One of the wealthiest and most capable men I ever knew had the most worthless and incapable son that I ever knew. Why? Because while only a boy the father had to support his mother and sisters, the son came up in idleness and luxury and was not taught to be interested in anything, not even in his school work. So while he might have had every advantage that money could give, he had neither education nor business ability—but just what his life had been—nothing.

All persons have the same traits but these abilities have to be developed by what the child sees and hears and does.

And soon we hear people say "this child has this kind or a disposition or this child has no ability or — that."

Just ask yourself what is there within the child's observation and what will be the effect on him of what he sees and hears. He learned to talk the language he has heard, and he can get his other ideas only from what he sees and hears.

Some one said, "My friend's child is not being spoiled at all, they never let her have her own way." The child is spoiled who does not learn to decide for himself which is right to do and which is wrong to do.

If they are not allowed to make their own decisions they soon lose the ability to understand and work together harmoniously and friction in the home and in the community make much needless trouble just because everyone has not been taught to decide everything by reason.

SOUR CREAM PIE

Dear Social Corner Members: I attended the meeting of Shore Line Club No. 6 Tuesday at Westerly and had a very nice time. Our dinner was so good was sorry not to be able to eat more. Next time, hostesses, don't give us so much or we shall all have an attack of combustion. Everybody was such a good cook and everybody so sociable.

Black Eyede Susie: Want to thank you for the nice card. Rather expected to see you down.

Ora: Want to thank you also for birthday card. Hope Auntie E. was pleased with my orders.

Joan: I wonder if it was my sour cream pie you spoke of. If so here it is:

Sour Cream Pie: Take 1 cup of heavy sour cream, 1-2 cup of sugar, 1-2 cup raisins ground, 1 large egg, pinch of salt, 1 heaping tablespoon of cornstarch, put in cinnamon to taste, and beat all together with egg beater and bake between one or two crusts. If one crust only is used bake slowly as it burns on top easily.

O. D. Tried your chocolate cake and it was fine.

E. L. M.: Who said beans?

Was glad to see new members and those from the other clubs.

Wheeler and Wess: Where were you Tuesday? Were the yellow jackets too much for you?

Will the editor please send me a pin?

With best wishes to all.

GREETINGS FROM U. C. E.

Dear Corner Sisters and Friends: Once again I make an attempt to write, to help keep the page full. Am always glad to see an overflow of letters, and so many new names added to our list of members as well as writers. This time of year ought to be an inspiration to us all, after such a long period of cold weather.

So for one welcome the nice warm days, the beautiful springtime, the budding and blossoming of every tree and shrub, which speak of our Heavenly Father's kind care and keeping.

I wish to thank all who sent me cards on my birthday, also those who made the day pass away so pleasantly with their presence or helped in any way to brighten the Corner.

Bumblebee, Golden Glow, Queen Elizabeth and Neepa: You are certainly slick ones when it comes to surprises. Come again and bring your friends. I will try and be all settled next time.

Remember well and bear in mind
A faithful friend is hard to find
But when you find one good and true

Catnip: Cheer up "better days are coming.

Esmaralda: How are you these days?

Ecca: Hope you had a nice visit in S.

Gypsy: Missed you. Hope you are better.

Yours for the success of the Corner.

GREETINGS FORM HOOT OWL

Dear Members: I enjoyed the meeting at the Buckingham Memorial this month. Am very sorry I did not join before but it's better to be late than ever. So to the future then let us be beholden and not to a day that is gone. There never was sunset so golden.

But lovlier still was dawn,
No recompense, no satisfaction.
Rewards those who seek for the past.
But the soul that is ready for action,
Will find what it longs for at last.

Am sending the recipe for the Orange Layer Cake: Beat three eggs stiff, big pinch of salt, one cup sugar, two teaspoons baking powder and four teaspoons orange juice, one half cup boiling water. Stir well. This makes enough for three layers. Bake in a hot oven.

HOOT OWL. (Club 5.)

CLUB 4'S EIGHTH ANNIVERSARY JUNE 5

Dear Members of the Social Corner: The eighth anniversary of Club 4 occurs Saturday June 5th but as that is such a busy day it has been thought best to have a picnic in G. A. R. hall, Main street, Danielson, the following Tuesday, June 5th.

It is hoped that every member of Club 4 will be present, and as many from the other clubs as can possibly come. The hall is large enough, so do not stay away on that account. Bring the general equipment and food as usual, and also bring something to read, sing or recite at the roll call.

Danielson has never had the pleasure of entertaining the Social Corner, and for that reason we want to give you a good time.

Do not forget the date June 5th.

Cactus Blossom: We are more than glad to welcome you home again.

Lonesome: We want to see you.

Sweet Lavender: Have you taken any moonlight strolls lately?

Olga: Come to the picnic and bring your beauty prize.

I will close with this message:

For life is the mirror of king and slave
'Tis just what we are and do.
Then give to the world the best you have
And the best will come back to you.

DAISY DEAN.

GREATLY ENJOYED CLUB MEETING

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I enjoyed my first meeting with the sisters of Club No. 6, Tuesday May 15th and enjoyed every minute of the day, renewing old friendships and making new ones. It was indeed a surprise to me to see that so many of my friends belong to the club. The committee who had charge of the program gave everyone a wonderful time. Served an excellent dinner and arranged a fine program. The day seemed to fly on wings. Was glad indeed to meet Crimson Rambler and hear about several old friends of my youth. Hope soon to know many other sisters by their pen de plume. Think it a good idea if at the next meeting some sister will bring a camera along. Am sure we would like to get a snap shot of the sisters especially after dinner when every one is looking pleasant.

UNFORGETABLE TIME AT WESTERLY

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I just want to write a few lines and tell you what a fine time I had at Westerly, R. I. with Club No. 6. It is a trip I shall always remember. Hilltop and I went and I must say I never had a better time in my life.

The dinner was delicious. They surely did treat us royally and the entertainment was fine. I wish to thank all the sisters for the kindness shown us. I will always have a warm spot in my heart for them. I am very sorry there was not more of our club members there though there was quite a number.

Mittie: Where were you?

Wishing the Corner Success.

SUDDEN AND SAD NEWS

Dear Social Corner Friends: We have had a fine rain, which was greatly needed. Hope it hasn't hurt the fruit blossoms. Our little garden looks fine. Everything that was planted has come up except the bush limas. It is so discouraging to plant a lot of seeds and have nothing to show for the time and money spent.

I like to get results for the work I do in the garden. I have 10 hens setting four of them are setting on goose eggs.

Last week Club No. 1 gathered as usual, but we were saddened by the thought that our sister (Wandering Jew) Mrs. A. Botham had been called away. It was sudden news to me, as I didn't know she was sick. A short memorial for those who have gone on during the past year was held just before, and after the dinner. At the hour appointed a large number attended the funeral.

I am not unmindful of the fact, Mr. Editor, that I received a yellow slip some time ago. Please accept my thanks.

With the coming of warmer weather and the green things growing, may the shut-ins and sick ones gain strength so they may enjoy the beauties of nature.

Best wishes to all.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Its a long time since I have written and I hope the editor has not crossed me off his list. The Social Corner is rightly named.

JUDGMENT FOR DEFENDANT IN MITCHELL-DOUGLASS SUIT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, May 21—Judge Williams called the case of State, Fred T. Mitchell, sheriff of Washington county, complainant, vs. Grace M. Douglas of Alton, Hopkinton, R. I., for alleged reckless driving in Ashaway, R. I., Saturday afternoon, May 15th. As a result of the operation of her Oldsmobile coach the rear left side end of the Ford sedan operated by George O. Marsh was struck, the occupants, Mrs. Marsh and daughter were shaken up and the Ford hubcap ripped off the wheel smashed and tire blown. Judge Williams found for the defendant.

The judge also overruled objection by defendant's attorney Roche to his claim that a fatal defect appeared in the warrant in that it was directed to Michael J. Turano, justice, by Herbert P. Clark, clerk and signed by Fred T. Mitchell, it being claimed that Turano was not a justice of the court on the date of May 15th. Attorney Ledwidge asked that he be permitted to cross out the name of Turano in the writ. At the conclusion of the hearing this was allowed by Judge Williams.

Under a pressure of 60 pounds the tar is forced into the surface of coarse chipstone, a full tank covering about a hundred yard strip. While the steam crusher on Quarry Hill is out of order, the chipstone is brought by autotruck from the Sullivan quarries at Bradford. When the tar is spread finer chipstone is thrown upon the highway surface, which is then rolled down with the town of Westerly 25-ton steam roller. On this surface traffic is permitted and later the hot mix bitrubic will be added. At this point has now been reached on Main street near Commerce street.

STONINGTON

A Hartford paper says: Rev. Edmund A. Cotter has been named pastor of St. Mary's church, Stonington. He is an ex-army chaplain and a native of Ansonia, born April 20, 1882. He attended the schools of the town and on his graduation entered St. Thomas' Seminary. Distinguishing himself in his studies there he was, on graduating, sent to the Grand Semidary at St. Brieuc, France. Having made himself proficient in the French tongue Mr. Cotter was sent to St. Willibald's Seminary, Eichstadt, Germany. Later on he was transferred to Piacenza, Italy, where he completed his studies in divinity. Returning to the United States, he was ordained to the priesthood at St. Joseph's cathedral, Hartford, July 31, 1909, by the late Rt. Rev. Thomas D. Beaven, D. D., of Springfield, Massachusetts. Father Cotter's first appointment was to St. Joseph's church, Shelton, August 12, 1909. He served at that church till July 31, 1910. He then held the post of curate for several months at St. Mary's, Ansonia. On October 31, 1910, he was appointed assistant to Rev. Walter J. Shanley at St. Peter's, Danbury, remaining till 1917, when he volunteered for service in the United States Army. He remained under the colors till June 30, 1919. Returning to church work Father Cotter was assigned to duty at St. Laurent's church, Meriden. Toward the end of 1919 he was appointed assistant to Rev. Dr. James P. Donovan at St. John's church, Middletown. He held that appointment till January 23, 1926. The pastor of St. Mary's is a man of great zeal who has achievements to point to and whom the Catholics and other citizens of Stonington will soon learn to appreciate and respect.

ODD FELLOWS

In his annual address to the Grand lodge Independent Order of Odd Fellows at Hartford this week Grand Master Alfred L. Libby recommended that the second Saturday of June each year be recognized and celebrated as Home day. He said that this day had been designated as Grand Master's day by custom but he thought the term was misleading and often interpreted unjustly. Donations made on that day had no significance so far as the Grand master was concerned and it was not incumbent on the grand master to receive them.

The grand master, the retired [illegible] that the problem was to instill the thought "Odd Fellowship is worth while." He suggested that the order could well afford to invest money and time in keeping desirable members in closer touch with their lodge and on matters of general interest to all fraternal orgs. He advocated a magazine to be fostered and promoted by the Sovereign grand lodge in the interest of "publicity and more publicity," the words of the grand sire.

Grand Secretary W. S. Hutchinson showed by his report that the number of members at the close of the year was 29,114 a net loss of 126. The total assets of lodges were $1,712,633. In the Rebekahs the membership was 4,989 brothers and 9,770 sisters, a total of 14,-689 and a net gain for the year of 449.

Grand Treasurer E. W. Challenger of Middletown in his report said that in spite of a year of exceptional expense the grand lodge had lived within its income and had a balance on the right side of $7,52. The resources of the Grand lodge in cash and securities amounts to $3,280.

POETRY

In Flanders' Field

In Flanders' Fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks still bravely singing fly,
Scarce heard amidst the guns below.

We are the Dead.
Short days ago we lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow
Loved and were loved, and now we lie
In Flanders' Fields.

Take up our quarrel with the foe:
To you from failing hands we throw
The Torch—be yours to hold it high;
If ye break faith with us who die,
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders' Fields.

—Colonel John McCrae.

The Answer

Oh you who sleep in Flanders' Fields
Sleep sweet—to rise anew
We caught the Torch you threw
And holding high, we keep the Faith
With all who died.

We cherish, too, the poppy red
That grows on fields where valor led;
It seems to signal to the skies
That blood of heroes never dies,
But lends a lustre to the red
Of the flowers that bloom above the dead
In Flanders' Fields!

And now the Torch and Poppy red
We wear in honor of our Dead.
Fear not that ye have died for naught;
We've learned the lesson that ye taught
In Flanders' Fields!

—Moina Michael.

Do Not Forget

In Flanders' Fields the poppies grow,
And you, who go
About your play, so careless of the day,
Can hardly know,
The blaze of glory that they shed
On our brave dead
Who silent lie, beneath a foreign sky.

But we, who heard the murderous guns'
Deep, roaring runs,
Death's symphony, performed for such as we—

The Happy Ones
Whose Buddies' fleeting breath was spoil
'Mid poppies red,
Can we forget? The years pass years
beget?
No, not yet!

Today, in reverence you wear
A poppy fair;
In Flanders' Land, where countless crosses stand—
So silent stand;
They will not sleep, nor we forsake,
If those who live,
Vowing to wear a crimson poppy fair,
And breathe a prayer.

There are in India, about 25,000,000 Hindoo widows, forbidden by their religion to remarry. Mrs. John H. Dohoon, of Beaver Dam, Pa., was only a child when she left a needle in the side of her dress and later, when leaning against a banister, pushed the piece of steel into her side. Doctors were unable to get it and it gave her pain a long while, but then she forgot all about it. Recently, 31 years later, she felt a constant itching on the side of one toe and with tweezers pulled out the long lost needle.

Said to be the oldest working timepiece in England, the famous old clock of Rye parish church has been repaired by the generosity of golfers all over the world. One of the finest golf courses in England is at Rye, and many Americans who have played there answered an appeal for money to restore the old timepiece. It was erected in 1515. The pendulum, which may be seen swinging within the church, is 20 feet long. Cannon balls are used for weights.

Traffic cops now are posted in the center of the wide, mosaic sidewalks of Avenida Rio Branco, the main downtown shopping street of Rio de Janeiro, to see that pedestrians keep to the right. There is no wandering along against traffic in order to stare at the window displays. Those on the outside half must walk down to the corner and turn back if they wish to look in the store windows. It is, of course, permissible to turn at right angles and cross through the inside line of traffic in order to enter the stores and moving picture theaters.

THOS. SHIPMAN MADE ACTING CHIEF OF NEW LONDON FIRE DEPARTMENT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, May 21—City Manager Holt today announced the appointment of Deputy Fire Chief Thomas Shipman acting chief, also appointed Calvin Edmunds acting deputy chief. Both appointments were made because of the indefinite incapacity of Chief Charles Rose, a patient at Lawrence hospital suffering from a compound fracture of the leg sustained three weeks ago when his automobile was struck by an ice cream truck while responding to a still alarm. Acting Deputy Chief Shipman has been a deputy chief about a year. Acting Deputy Chief Edmunds is a member of F. L. Hook and Ladder company, being the company's second assistant foreman. Both appointments became effective today.

CONDUCTOR R. M. BROCKETT DIES EARLY FRIDAY MORNING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, May 21—Richard M. Brockett, about 60, of 51 Ocean avenue, one of the best known conductors in the passenger service of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, died early this morning at Lawrence hospital where he had been under treatment about three weeks for an internal malady. He is survived by his widow and one son. He was a member of Niagara Engine company. Mr. Brockett was a republican and had served as alderman two terms under the former form of municipal government. He had been ill about four months and was removed to the hospital when his condition became serious.

DROVE TAXI FOR TWO YEARS YET HAD NO LICENSE

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 21—Gerald Ledwig, 19 in the employ of the Lyceum Taxicab company, was fined $10 in the police court this morning for operating a car without a license. That was a queer offense for an employe of a taxicab company during the past two years to be accused of, but Ledwig admitted that he was guilty. He was stopped on Bank street because of his careless operation of the car. His license was demanded, and though he represented that he possessed such a paper he was unable to show it and it proved that he did not have such and never had had one. He will be unable to obtain one now for some time.

There were half a dozen drunks before the court again this morning John Shea was there for the second time this week. Monday he skipped a bond of $25. He was sought for and today represented that his conduct in skipping his bond was forced upon him by sickness. He was today fined for Monday's drunk and for the offense of yesterday.

Theodore R. Smith, a sailor, was fined $10 for intoxication last night. He and another sailor brought up at the Salvation Army hotel last midnight and there created a disturbance and accidentally they smashed a window that they paid $11 to replace. Smith paid his fine, but that proceeding exhausted his cash and he is still a debtor to the army hotel.

Samuel Sercuna, a towboat fireman, was on a spree yesterday and fell into the police net. He has a wife and three children in Providence so no penalty was imposed upon him, in view of the fact that he had never been arrested here until he appeared today.

George Chapman, a deserter from the army, has been returned to his post to serve out his term of enlistment, also to pay the penalty prescribed in army regulations for abandoning his duties and absenting himself in a cowardly way from his post. Chapman was arrested here a week or more ago when it was learned that he was a fugitive from New Jersey where he is alleged to have held up and robbed a bootlegger. Chapman was dishonorably discharged from the coast guard here and was preparing to leave the city, but delayed his departure. He wrote a letter to a pal in New Jersey, but had not mailed it and it fell into the hands of Detectives Cavanaugh and Smith. The letter declared it to be the intention of Chapman to do a job of robbery here before he left, and expressed the opinion that he would net some $500 from the job. This information led the police to investigate by writing to New Jersey where it was ascertained that a bootlegger with whom Chapman had some business relations was robbed as Chapman had stated. The latter had never been indicted and inasmuch as two years had passed, he could not be punished for the crime now. So the New London police got rid of Chapman by presenting him in the police court today where the complaint against him was nolled and he was turned over to the army as a deserter.

Mrs. Julia Lorraine, of Lyme, and Mrs. Archie DeBardonville and infant daughter, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were dismissed today.

The city of New London's latest fire fighting apparatus, an Ahrens pumper, arrived at the Fort Neck yard of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad this morning. The machine will be used by the Pequot Hose company, whose present apparatus has outlived its usefulness. The apparatus will be unloaded tomorrow and taken to the Pequot Hose company's quarters and within a day or two will be given a test from the municipal pier. If the test proves satisfactory it will be placed in service without delay.

Montville contributed three millhands to the number of accused men in the court this morning, John Carroll, Andrew Fallon and John Savage. The first was fined $10 and went to jail, while the others escaped on suspended judgments. They were found loitering about railroad property and by officers of the company were taken into custody. Carroll protested that he was not intoxicated, but the facts were presented to prove his assertions false. Fallon has a long court record but had punched a big hole in it by staying away from the court for seven years. That was a factor in his favor today. Carroll, on the other hand has been up three times since the 1st of January last for intoxication.

Annie M. Gurney has sold a dwelling on the easterly side of Montauk avenue to Edna Waterman.

E. Warren Higley and the estate of William J. Garvey have sold a house and lot on Raymond street to Walter Larson.

Ada Varnelle, 18, and Catherine Diana, 19, who escaped from the State farm, Niantic, several days ago, were taken into custody at New Haven yesterday and last night they were returned to the Niantic institution.

Charles Strickland, 19, Woodridge street, complained to the police late yesterday that his son's bicycle, which had been left near the corner of Howard and Bank street had been stolen.

Albert E. Moore, colored, proprietor of a Main street establishment, was arrested this morning by Patrolman Florence Wells charged with evasion of responsibility. He was released upon furnishing a surety on his bond of $50 for his appearance in the police court tomorrow morning. Moore was taken into custody upon complaint of Albert E. Christiansen, 19 Warner street, Groton, who alleges that the latter's car was struck on Main street late yesterday by a delivery truck and that Moore, instead of stopping to determine the extent of the damage he had occasioned, speeded away.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoddard today ordered the operators' licenses of John Guerrero, Truman street, and Ernest Morris, submarine base, suspended. Guerrero and Morris were recently involved in infraction of the automobile laws.

Trouble occurred at the plant of the Bloom Silk company, Garfield avenue, this morning, when strike breakers appeared to go to work. As a result Louis Lombardi, 45 Washington street, and Paul Lovende 2 Pratt street, will be in the police court tomorrow morning on a charge of breach of the peace. The mill which started operations yesterday forenoon with a small force of men and women, has been shut down about three weeks. Police protection was afforded the strike-breakers yesterday and no trouble took place, although the strikers assembled at the approach to the mill. Because of the conduct of the strikers yesterday, no police were on hand this morning when the strike breakers went to work. There were, however, plenty of the strikers and as the strike breakers appeared they were jeered and bombarded with stones. A hurry call was sent for the police and Sergeant Nelson Smith and Patrolman William Graham were hustled to the mill. When the officers arrived they were informed by some of the strikers that Lombardi and Loverdi had figured in the stone throwing and they were placed under arrest. At the police station, Alex Steinberg, North Bank street merchant, became surety on the respective bonds of $500 of the accused for their appearance in the police court tomorrow morning. Police were stationed at the mill throughout the day, but no further trouble occurred. When the strike breakers left the mill at noon and again at 5 o'clock this afternoon the strikers were in the vicinity of the plant, but they did not make a demonstration. The number of strike breakers to appear for work this morning was not as many as yesterday, although President Bloom had declared that there would be an increased number over that of the day before. The strikers are maintaining pickets at the approach of the mill and that reason might account for the fact that the number of workers today was less than that of Thursday.

JUDGE NOYES' ILLNESS CONTINUES SERIOUS

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 21.— Judge Walter C. Noyes, a former resident of New London, at which time he was a member of the law firm of Brundegee, Noyes & Brandegee, is seriously ill at his home, New York, where he has resided of late years and it is believed that he will not recover. Judge Noyes maintains a fine summer home in Old Lyme.

MYSTIC AUTO DEALERS HAD TOO MANY BAD DEBTORS

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 21. — Flynn Brothers, proprietors of a garage in Mystic and agents for the Ford cars, have gone out of business, probably for good and all time, for they are in dire financial difficulties. The firm, it is stated, owes a considerable sum because of their accepting finance on the purchase of cars and when payments did not materialize, it became necessary for the concern to close its doors. No attachments have been levied against the concern, but the firm is unable to do business because of the lack of payments for cars sold on installment. Flynn Brothers a year ago distributed a great number of Ford cars and it was believed that the firm was prospering.

Broadway Theater

Next Monday if you happen to be strolling past some tennis court in Norwich and see a chap about six feet two with his shoulders four feet wide and arms that seem to reach to the clouds and move with the speed of the proverbial "chain" lightning then you'll see "Bill" Tilden the greatest tennis player in the world just taking a little exercise to keep in trim.

William T. Tilden 2nd six times winner of the Davis cup and international tennis champion, to refer to him with all the dignity to which his high place entitled him, comes to Norwich next Monday the featured player in the new Courtenay Savage play They All Want Something which Herman Gantvoort is sending into the Broadway for one night to its New York premiere.

Rain or shine, hot or cold, sick or well, Tilden whacks the ball daily for a dozen or so games. Not always for pleasure but no man can hope to keep on winning at such a strenuous game without constant limbering.

So if you happen to see this agile giant in action as you pass the tennis courts step and take a look, a good long look and see the amazing speed of arm and foot, the swift smashing drives that have thrilled thousands throughout the land.

PAYS $50 FINE FOR EVADING RESPONSIBILITY

Found guilty of evading responsibility, John J. Shea, Jr., of No. 472 Boswell avenue, was fined $50 and costs by Judge Arthur F. Libby in the city court Friday morning. Shea pleaded not guilty to the charge. He admitted that it was his machine that struck a machine on Washington street owned by Gilbert J. Fahey, and then crashed into a tree 50 feet further on. After the accident the driver of the car disappeared leaving the wrecked machine up against the tree. The police in investigating the accident found an unloaded and useless revolver and a glass in the machine.

A local woman and a New London man, who are employed in a factory, paid $5 and costs each for being abusive toward each other. The charges against them were breach of the peace. The man was arrested on complaint of the woman for his indecent language toward her, but both were fined when the case was tried.

Robert Peacher, U. S. N., submarine base, Groton, was in court on two charges, driving without a license and going to the left of a traffic beacon. The case was continued until Monday. Peacher was in court earlier in the week on the same charges and the case at that time was continued until Friday morning.

Chosen Prince in Y. M. C. A. Pictures

At 4 o'clock at the local Y. M. C. A. on the coming Sunday afternoon, the second instalment of the Bible feature picture, "The Chosen Prince" will be shown. The dominant theme is "The Bond of Friendship." In this picture, the friendship of David and Jonathan is cemented. The taking of the blood covenant by them makes a most impressive scene.

The Israelites return home, Saul with all the pomp and glory due a king, in conquering a great host; David with all the humility of a lowly servant, who has performed his simple duty. Saul is seized with a strange malady, whereupon David is brought to play for him. David joins the family with whom friendly relations are established, Saul plots against David, however, and sends him out to battle.

This is without doubt one of the finest Bible story pictures on the screen. Both men and women are invited to see it, and boys and girls 14 and over will be admitted.

Breed Theater

A new Norma Talmadge picture is coming to the Breed theater Sunday, but advance reports indicate that photoplay-goers are due for the biggest surprise of their lives. For Miss Talmadge has turned comedienne in Kiki, an elaborate screen version of the David Belasco stage success.

The famous star, invariably associated with more dignified and romantic characterizations, enacts the role of a Paris street gamin and devil-may-care heart breaker in her latest First National vehicle produced by Joseph M. Schenck.

In addition to picturizing Kiki on a lavish scale, the ever welcome Norma has surrounded herself with an unusually brilliant supporting cast, including Ronald Colman, her new leading man; Gertrude Astor, Marc MacDermott, George K. Arthur, William Orlamond, Erwin Connelly, Frankie Darro and Mack Swain. Miss Talmadge and the handsome Ronald are said to offer something brand new in love scenes.

Palace Theater

Fine big acts and a feature picture Her Husband's Secret make up a perfect program for the last showings today at the Palace.

Sunday Monday and Tuesday and Wednesday will see the Vanishing American at the Palace with a surrounding program of News, Fables and Comedy.

"The forced retreat into the desert wastes, marked by a trail of blood, is one of the major transgressions of the white man against the red man."

These words of Zane Grey, the novelist, who wrote The Vanishing American," tell the crux of the story of the Indians which Paramount has made into an epic picture, due at the Palace on Sunday.

The bitter courageous determined but hopeless stand of the Indians against the white enemies, their retreat from the green fields and well watered country they had called their home for centuries, into the barren desert is a powerful episode in The Vanishing American.

The story was filmed in the heart of these very same wastes, on the present Navajo reservation, 165 miles from a railroad.

The tale is told in the sincere, direct, dramatic manner that characterizes all of Zane Grey's works. It is no not a tragedy but it does not gloss over the impositions and transgressions of the white man against the red.

The company which remained on the Navajo reservation approximately four months, included Richard Dix, who plays the role of the Indian hero, Lois Wilson, the heroine, Noah Beery, Malcolm McGregor and scores of others. The whites sent to Arizona were more than 500. Ten thousand Indians in the picture George B. Seitz directed. The adaptation of Grey's novel to the screen was prepared by Lucien Hubbard. Ethel Doherty wrote the screen play.

Broadway Theater

I am their daughter—I have had to choose! I have never believed the stories I have heard about my mother, yet they force me to lose the boy I love and have made me desperately unhappy. To think that parents, who once loved, should create such a problem of decision for their child. And, to make this even more difficult for me, I love my father dearly and also Mrs. Morrison, who has taken my mother's place in his heart.

O, why did my mother stay behind when father went to the city? Why has not she realized that she cannot defy society? Why must I forfeit happiness because a man and woman who were once one have each found new romance apart from the other? Are there other girls now being put to such a test as the one I am facing?

LAUREL DALLAS.

Rarely, if ever, has there been a motion picture that has created so many intriguing interests as Stella Dallas which opens a limited engagement at the Broadway soon. When over half a million people in the seven months that this picture played in New York, willingly paid $2 each to see it we are certain that local theater goers will not want to miss it, especially when it will play here at small popular prices.

Broadway Theater

Never before has there been offered in a local theater two such mammoth features such as opens at the Broadway theater Sunday night.

There is a touch of romance and a thrill in The Still Alarm, the Universal-Jewel production showing here at the Broadway theater, that will set the blood tingling through the veins of the most blase picture fan or theater-goer. In it is a combination of the dash and hardihood of the fire-fighter of yesterday and today, the luxurious elegance of a smart modiste shop, the tragedy of a ruined home and touches of splendid comedy. As an example of the technique of direction Edward Laemmle, who supervised the making of this epic of the fire department, has given other directors something to shoot at.

The players are Helene Chadwick, William Russell, Richard C. Travers, John T. Murray, Dot Farley, Edna Marian, Edward Hearn, Jacques d'Auray and Erin La Bissoniere. The Still Alarm was directed by Edward Laemmle.

For the first time in their careers Conway Tearle and Madge Kennedy, two of the best known stars on the legitimate and film fields, will be seen together in a picture in Bad Company which comes to the Broadway theater Sunday, as the second feature. Together they constitute one of the most desired combination in the amusement field. In addition to Miss Kennedy and Conway Tearle Bad Company carries such popular screen names in its cast as Lucille Lee Stewart, Bigelow Cooper and Charles Emmett Mack. The story is an adaptation by George V. Hobart and Arthur Hoerl from The Ultimate Good, a novelette published in Everybody's Magazine from the pen of John C. Brownell.

Short subjects are also featured.

To meet the expenditures called for by the foregoing estimates a tax of twenty-one and one-quarter (21 1-4) mills on the last City list will be required, said list being $16,972,031.00. The increase of the rate of tax suggested from the twenty and three-quarters mills recommended last year is due to the fact that the estimated interest on account of the water department debt is $85,650.00 more than it was last year, due to the borrowing of money for the new Deep River Reservoir, an increase which requires over two mills additional tax of itself.

In addition to the said estimated expenses for the ordinary requirements of the City, the Committee on Finance has been requested by petition and otherwise to submit to the annual City Meeting for its action, estimates for the following purposes, and estimates are hereby presented:

1. Traffic Signs and Signals	$ 1,200.00
2. Increase Pay Police	6,000.00
3. Increase Pay Firemen	6,000.00
4. Concrete between rails and two feet outside on West Thames Street from High Street to City Line	19,000.00

FINANCIAL.

NEW YORK, May 21.—(AP)—The first sustained rally in stock prices in nearly a month took place today with buying orders spread over a fairly broad list. Short covering operations provided the backbone of the advance, but commission houses also reported a reawakening of public interest, which has not as yet reached extensive proportions. Today's sales were 1,307,400 as compared with 1,229,700 yesterday and a daily average of less than 2,000,000 earlier in the month.

Traders were inclined to pay more attention to trade developments which, in the main, were favorable. Operators working for higher prices derived encouragement from the optimistic statements made by steel executives at the semi-annual meeting of the American Iron and Steel Institute, from the favorable character of the first April railroad earnings statements to make their appearance and from the announcement of an increase in gasoline prices by the Standard Oil company of New Jersey.

The weekly mercantile reviews reported that the volume of business was well maintained, in view of the unseasonable weather. Buying for the fall continues, however, of a "hand-to-mouth" character, with a rather pronounced downward trend still noted in May commodity prices.

Active short covering in the motors and specialties which have been hammered of late by bear traders, probably was stimulated by the panicky retreat of the shorts in Hudson Motors yesterday as a result of the confusion caused by publication on financial news tickers of erroneous dividend reports.

Hudson fluctuated between 68 1-2 and 64 3-4 today, closing 5-8 net higher at 65 7-8. Dodge Brothers common and preferred, General Motors, Jordan, Mack Trucks, Pierce-Arrow common and preferred and Willys-Overland all sold 1 to 3 points higher.

Strong buying support again appeared in the oil group. Atlantic Refining was bid up 2 1-2 points to a new high at 126 3-4 on a revival of rumors of its merger with Maryland, but it lost most of the day's gain before the close. Associated Oil rallied 2 1-2 points to 53, closing at the top, and Pan-American "B", Standard Oil of California, and Union Oil of California each advanced about a point.

Sharp recoveries also took place in Allied Chemical, American Can, the Commercial Solvents issues, Foundation company, General Electric, International Combustion Engineering, Mathieson Alkali, Montgomery-Ward, Remington Typewriter, Texas Gulf Sulphur, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe and United Drug, all up 2 to 7 points.

There were a few soft spots. Austin Nichols and Cuba Cane Sugar Pfd., each fell over two points to new low records for the year. Armour issues closed fractionally higher, omission of the dividend on the "A" stock being announced after the market closed.

Railroad shares were strong in anticipation of additional favorable April earnings reports. Jersey Central jumped 10 points on a few sales, each of the "Soo" issues advanced about five points and New York Central, Chesapeake and Ohio, South Railway, Lackawanna, Delaware and Hudson and "Nickel Plate" were among the many issues to show net advances of a point or more.

Trading in the commodity markets was quiet with price changes irregular. Active wheat futures showed only fractional ranges. Cotton moved within a range of 6 or 8 points. Raw sugar was unchanged, but futures were slightly easier. Coffee prices were practically unchanged.

Call money renewed at 3 3-4 per cent but advanced to 4 and thence to 4 1-2 by the calling of over $30,000,000 in bank loans.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Sharp rallies in French and Belgian francs to around the 3 1-4 cents level featured the irregular foreign exchange market. Demand sterling was slightly easier, just under 4.86.

TAFTVILLE

Frank Kunnel of South B street has returned from Dayton, Ohio, where he was called by the death of his mother.

Cards have been received in town announcing the arrival in Cleveland, Ohio, of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Mather and their daughter, Miss Mabel Mather, of North A street, and William Shea of Occum road. While in Cleveland the party are the guests of Mrs. Mather's relatives.

Of interest to local dog fanciers is the note that Bo manville Lilly White, A. K. C. 522585, owned by Mrs. John Holland of Terrace avenue, has whelped a fine litter of English bulldog puppies.

Archie Michon of Merchants avenue has resigned his position with the No. 4 weaving department of the local mills.

Tent caterpillars, which for several weks have been the scourge of the woods surrounding the village, their nests being found in almost every wild cherry tree, have invaded the town and are attaching themselves to lilac bushes and several kinds of ornamental shrubs. The members of the local troop of Boy Scouts did good work two weeks ago in collecting and destroying many hundreds of the nests, but it is believed that the state will have to undertake a campaign against them, such as is waged against the gypsy moth, if the pests are to be eliminated.

William H. Nolan died at his home 23 Providence street on Friday afternoon at 1:30 after a long illness. Mr. Nolan was the eldest son of the late William and Mary Burrows Nolan and was born in Taftville, June 19, 1866.

Except for two years, when he worked for the Providence Fire Extinguisher Co., Mr. Nolan lived in Taftville. He was employed in the plumbing department of Ponemah mills until his health forced him to retire several months ago.

On Nov. 5, 1898, in Sacred Heart church, he was united in marriage to Miss Susie McHugh by the late Rev. John Synnott. He had been a faithful and active member of Sacred Heart church since it was first established. Besides his wife he is survived by two daughters, Misses Mary and Susie Nolan. He also leaves two brothers, John J. and Kerin J. Nolan, both of Long Branch, N. J.

Funeral services for Joseph Roberts were held at 8:30 Wednesday morning from the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Dupont, 4 North B street, followed by high mass of requiem at Sacred Heart church at 9 o'clock, at which Rev. U. O. Bellerose was celebrant. Relatives were present from Attleboro, Holyoke, Chicopee, New Bedford and Stafford Springs. The bearers were Alfred Dupont, Napoleon Dupont, Arthur Legare, A. Tetreault, Hormidas Disco. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery where Rev. Father Bellerose read the committal service. Undertaker G. G. Grant was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

David Duncan of the Lonsdale company, the vice president and E. F. Walker, secretary-treasurer, were also re-elected.

"Freight service in New England improved during the past year and the railroads have assurances that changes will be made this summer and in the fall which will further increase their efficiency," declared the traffic manager, Henry M. Tarr in his report on the transportation situation as it affects the members of the association.

"On the whole freight service in New England is now very satisfactory," he told the representatives of New England finishing plants assembled. "The through service to and from points and the middle west is also better than for many years," he continued. "The consolidation of freight at certain junction points making through cars to points beyond the Hudson river gateways has been of great assistance and the railroads are to be commended for establishing such service.

"In the past year the total tonnage of grey goods shipped from the south to New England was less than during the previous 12 months. Between May 1, 1925 and May 1, 1926, 255,000 bales of cotton cloth passed through the Gulf and Atlantic seaboard ports for members of this association.

"The past winter was much more favorable than for several years and freight was handled with little difficulty. No serious congestions developed and embargoes were unnecessary. A few delays were reported but the majority of them were on goods moving across the country."

FORT MANSFIELD RESERVATION TO BE SOLD; $90,000 VALUE

Specifications for the sale of the Fort Mansfield reservation on Napatree Point, Watch Hill, have been sent out by the war department, which has announced that the site will be disposed of under sealed bids which will be opened on June 23.

The sale of the government reservation is made pursuant to the provisions of an act of congress, approved March 4, 1923, and by order of the secretary of war.

Some time following the passage of the act a commission was appointed to appraise the land, consisting of Frank W. Coy, Harvey C. Parry and Walter C. Hiscox of Westerly. The appraised value of the reservation given at that time was $90,000. The entire government reservation, including land and improvements, was first offered to the state of Rhode Island for a public park, and, being declined by the state, was then offered to the town of Westerly for the same purpose. It was clearly stipulated that the land should be used and maintained as a public park and at such time as it ceased to be used as such would revert back to the government. The town of Westerly, failing to accept the proposition, the next step for the government to take was to offer the property for sale to individuals.

The reservation contains approximately 110 acres and adjoins the exclusive development of Watch Hill, and has ample ocean frontage for beaches and wharves.

WHITE ON MAROON FOR NEXT CONNECTICUT MARKERS

The color scheme for Connecticut motor vehicle registration markers for the year 1927 will be white figures on a maroon background for pleasure cars and maroon figures on a white background for commercial cars. Work on the manufacture of the plates is already well under way at the Connecticut Reformatory.

Georgia is using this color scheme on its automobile markers this year. Iowa and Kentucky have plates showing white figures on reddish brown backgrounds. The motor vehicle authorities of the different states advise each other as to their decisions on color scheme as soon as reached in order to avoid confusion.

The aim of the Connecticut department is to have markers which can be identified at a long distance, at least 300 feet, as belonging to this state, and showing the number plainly at all times. To this end, sharp contrast in the two colors used is sought. At the same time, since there is a 25 to 35 per cent. annual turnover in motor vehicle registrations, it is deemed necessary to change the color each year.

The department has rejected as impracticable a plan offered by an Arkansas minister by which motor vehicles would be equipped with "permanent" registration markers to remain in use during the life of the car to which attached.

Delaware has notified the Connecticut motor vehicle department that it will use markers of red on gray during next year, and Pennsylvania, gold numerals on blue background.

ABD-EL-KRIM'S CAPITAL HAS BEEN OCCUPIED BY FRENCH

French Troops Entered Targuist Without a Struggle—A Large Portion of Krim's Tribe Submitted Without Resistence—Krim Fled to the Northwestward—Franco-Spanish Armies Have Gained Control of the Ghis River.

FEZ, French Morocco, May 23—(AP)—Targuist, Abd-el-Krim's capital, and all the adjacent territory, was occupied by the French this morning without a struggle, thanks to the submission of a large portion of the Beni Ourtaghel, Krim's own tribe, and the Benibechir, Beni Amret, Beni Meedoula and other smaller tribes inhabiting the region.

Yesterday Generals Boichut, Marty and Desac went to the mountain pass leading to the Targuist county, where delegations of all these tribes made submission to the French, bulls being sacrified in accordance with the traditional ritual.

Krim, foreseeing the wholesale defection of the tribes in the region as they began negotiating with the French command, fled to the northwestward with his family and such belongings as he could transport, and his exact whereabouts is not known.

By the occupation of this large tract of territory, announced in an official communique, the Franco-Spanish armies gained control of the valley of the Ghis river, running from Targuist to Ajdir, shortening and straightening their line.

This was not the only success of the day, troops operating north of Fez, engaged in pinching out the salient formed by the territory of the important Beni Zeroual tribe, pushed forward their positions on both sides of the salient, preparatory to a more extended action. The enemy, according to French headquarters, offered but feeble resistance, and submission of the tribe is looked for in the near future.

INDIGNATION AROUSED BY REAL ESTATE SALESMEN

NEW YORK, May 23—(AP)—Real estate salesmen, trading on ground where American soldiers lost their lives in the battle of White Plains, pushed their "high pressure" selling campaign so strenuously yesterday that an echo of the indignation which they aroused was still heard today.

Several persons taking part in a celebration which had been announced as in commemoration of the famous battle 144 years ago, have voiced their resentment against the use of the occasion by the salesmen to promote sales of the historic land, which pamphlets said already was "subdivided into building plots 100 by 100."

Whether the salesmen were on the ground where revolutionary soldiers lost in Washington's battle against General Howe, is an undecided question.

Whippet tanks used by army troops in battle manoeuvres levelled stone walls and observers aided the promoters of the scheme in preparing the land for homesites. After the celebration was over it was recalled that the battle of White Plains was fought on October 28, 1776, and not on May 22.

Seven hundred regular army troops took part in the ceremonies. A crowd estimated at 6,000 attended. Army officers made representatives of the promoters remove advertising signs put up for the occasion, but salesmen distributed freely circulars extolling the battle grounds advantages as homesites.

One of these circulars distributed as the crowds left the grounds, read in part: "The ground which has been consecrated by our own revolutionary forebears will at this point lose its identity as a battleground and become the homesites for thousands of patriotic Americans."

The accident occurred on the Albany-Schenectady road when the automobile, a new closed car purchased by Brackett yesterday, stalled on the tracks in the path a high speed trolley car, as Bond, who was driving, attempted to turn the car around.

Both Bond and Brackett were thrown from the car and wreckage strewn along the tracks for a quarter mile. Both men were killed instantly. Their wives were waiting at a hotel nearby where the four had driven for dinner.

Bond, who was 44 years old, was born in Salina, Kansas. Brackett's nearest relatives live in Cortland, N. Y., he was 45 years old.

DR. STRATTON'S OPPONENTS TO BE EXPELLED FROM CHURCH

NEW YORK, May 23—(AP)—Action will be taken "at once" to expel from Calvary Baptist church the four men who recently resigned from the board of trustees after attacking the policies of the pastor, the Rev. Dr. John Roach Stratton, it was resolved today at a meeting of the officers, board of trustees and board of deacons of the church.

Another resolution denied the former trustees' charges that the board had borrowed to pay Dr. Stratton's salary while he was making money and seeking personal publicity in Florida.

Full confidence in the pastor was expressed so that he might enter as an outstanding conservative" into the sessions of the Baptist convention today in Washington, D. C., "without any public misunderstanding as to the unwavering support of his own congregation."

The salary paid Dr. Stratton was provided "in due course from funds in hand," the resolution stated. The church "unanimously and heartily" voted the interpretation for Dr. Stratton so that he might conduct his pastorate in Palm Beach, Fla., last winter according to the resolution.

The four former trustees are W. A. M. Martin, Robert B. Busbee, Benjamin Miller and A. B. Miller. No definite date for institution of action looking towards expulsion was set.

PILSUDSKI HAS ISSUED AN APPEAL TO HIS SOLDIERS

WARSAW, Poland, May 23—(AP)—Marshal Pilsudski, who a little more than a week ago marched into Warsaw at the head of any army and succeeded in overthrowing the government to President Wojciechowski, now is consolidating his power by effective changes in the office corps. Significant among these changes is the appointment of a new director of the officers academy which distinguished itself in defending the government.

Pilsudski, who after much persuasion definitely agreed to be a candidate for the presidency of the republic when the national assembly meets for the election, has issued an appeal to his soldiers in truly Napoleonic style. Addressing them: "Soldiers!" he says:

"I expect you to give the first example of patriotism: to cease all factional strife and unite in love for your country. If you cannot love me, you all at least will have to respect me."

In some quarters efforts are being made to have Pilsudski declare himself in favor of General Sosnowski, commander of the Posen troops, who, while pro-Pilsudski, has powerful connections with the Posen conservatives, who are against the Pilsudski regime.

FIRE IN BASEMENT OF CHAPEL IN WALLINGFORD

WALLINGFORD, May 23—(AP)—Fire swept through the basement chapel of Holy Trinity Catholic church here late tonight and worked its way upward into the main part of the edifice before it was brought under control. The loss will reach several thousands of dollars, it was said by clergymen of the church.

The fire was discovered by Rev. Charles H. Kane, the assistant pastor, who was awakened by a light shining into his window. He found the basement chapel ablaze. After summoning the fire department, he made his way through the smoke to the altar and carried out the Holy Sacrament and the sacred vessels.

A half hour after the fire was discovered, it had broken through into the church proper and was making its way up the stairs to the choir loft when checked. The only damage to the church proper is in the vestibule, however, according to the Rev. Mr. Kane.

Navy Department Testing Helium Gas

As a Possible Means of Relieving Divers of Dangers of "Caisson Disease."

WASHINGTON, May 23.—(AP)—Helium, the non-explosive gas used as a substitute for hydrogen in navy dirigibles, is being tested out by the navy department and the bureau of mines as a possible means of relieving deep sea divers of the dangers of "caisson disease." Experiments thus far made with animals indicate that pumping a mixture of oxygen and helium to submerged divers as a substitute for air may revolutionize undersea work due to elimination of the nitrogen the air contains.

Caisson disease, or "the bends", as the most prevalent and dangerous ailment of divers or men who work in a compressed-air atmosphere is known, results when a diver who has been working under great pressure is too quickly brought to the surface and normal pressures. Nitrogen in the air goes into and out of solution in the blood slowly. When pressure is too quickly reduced, this slow change causes bubbles in the blood and the attacks are frequently fatal.

The helium experiments show that it passes with greater rapidity both into and out of the solution. If the results thus far obtained should be confirmed in a projected series of experiments in the bureau of mines laboratory at Pittsburgh, it is estimated that a diver could be brought safely to the surface in about one third of the time now required in order that pressure shall decrease gradually.

Several divers at work on the sunken submarines S-51 off Block Island have been attacked by caisson disease. As a further experiment an emergency order for ten flasks of helium was sent from the New London base, the gas to be used in restoring normal circulatory conditions for the victims. A complete report on these experiments has yet reached the navy department.

Chief Gunner C. L. Tibbals, one of the navy's most expert divers, has been working with the medical and chemical experts of the government in the helium experiments at Pittsburgh. The Norfolk navy yard recently constructed a tank of 500 pound air pressure capacity, which was shipped to Pittsburgh and will be used in testing the helium-oxygen mixture with a diver in the tank and subjected to pressures equivalent to those he would have to undergo in deep sea work.

The S-51, lying at a depth of 180 feet, is a slow job for the divers. It takes about an hour to hoist each to the surface in order that the nitrogen bubbles shall not occur in his blood and perhaps stop his heart action. In any event, the bubbles usually cause a form of paralysis.

MATTERS COMING BEFORE CONGRESS THIS WEEK

WASHINGTON, May 23—(AP)—The battle over agricultural relief legislation will be shifted to the senate this week with leaders of the farm groups there seeking to work out some measure in place of the corn belt bill which would have a chance of approval by the house.

The migratory bird bill will have the right of way tomorrow, however, and it may be that the army service bill will be called up ahead of the administration cooperative marketing bill, to which the corn belt bill now is attached as a rider.

While senate farm bloc leaders are seeking a way out of the difficulty caused by the house's rejection of the Haugen price stabilization bill, the house agricultural committee will again gather around the board in an effort to find an acceptable substitute relief measure.

Farm relief bids fair to occupy much time in the senate, but a majority of the members are pledged to resist adjournment until such legislation has been acted upon. While the senate is wrestling with this problem, the house during the week will consider a number of measures, including those increasing judges salaries, creating twelve new district judgeships, and providing funds for the rivers and harbors.

The house ways and means committee expects to approve the French debt settlement either tomorrow or Tuesday and report it to the house during the week. Leaders plan to put it through in short order, but the measure will not have as smooth sailing in the senate.

Besides the development in the farm relief situation and the decision to press the French debt at this session, another complication which threatens to postpone adjournment of congress until late next month has arisen. This is the determination of senate leaders to force the Lausanne treaty to a vote.

A NEW MOTION PICTURE ORGANIZATION FORMED

Joseph M. Schenck, Lee Shubert, Sidney Grauman and Miss Pickford and Mr. Fairbanks are the organizers of the new company.

Boston, New York city, Chicago, Detroit, Philadelphia, Washington, Pittsburgh, Los Angeles, St. Louis, Cleveland and San Francisco are among cities being considered for theatres in the new chain.

The new theatres will seat an average of about 1800 persons. A public offering of $4,000,000 worth of stock in the new corporation will be made tomorrow.

Mussolini Greeted By Ovation in Genoa

Will Participate Today in the 12th Anniversary of Italy's Entry Into the World War.

GENOA, Italy, May 23.—(AP)— This medieval seaport, whose colorful harbor inspired Columbus to dream of conquering the mighty Atlantic today welcomed Mussolini with a maritime display, recalling the festive occasions of the Middle Ages when, as mistress of the Mediterranean, it honored victorious Genoese captains.

The premier, who arrived early this morning aboard the steamer Esperia, to participate in the celebration tomorrow of the 12th anniversary of Italy's entry into the World war, was given a series of great popular ovations.

He insisted, however, on transforming the outpouring of enthusiasm into a glorification of the work of the sailors, in whom he declared Italy placed much of its faith for the nation's future greatness.

Fascist Italy, Mussolini told a sailors' congress at which 50,000 sailors were represented, needs the work of its seafaring folk to fulfill its determined ambition to become a great nation. It will safeguard their legitimate interests and rights, he declared, provided they maintain the order and discipline required by the ideals of fascism which continue to rule Italy "because it is my will and that of millions of Italians."

As the Esperia came into the harbor, accompanied by six ocean liners crowded with special guests, and hundreds of small craft flying thousands of flags, the bells of Genoa boomed, sirens shrieked and scores of thousands of persons cheered. It was an impressive spectacle to which the duce reacted with his usual grim smile.

After reviewing a company of infantry and the port militia, Mussolini and his party proceeded, followed by columns of many automobiles, through a picturesque narrow street, which has seen little changes since the time of Columbus, to the Doges palace, where a municipal reception was held.

SEARCHING FOR BODY OF AIMEE SEMPLE M'PHERSON

LOS ANGELES, May 23—(AP)—Hundreds of her following, scores of police and thousands of the idle and morbidly curious thronged the beaches today in search of the body of Aimee Semple McPherson, pastor of the Angelus Temple who disappeared Tuesday on the seashore at Santa Monica. Neither the body nor any trace of her was found.

The evangelist's many followers are firm in the belief that she lost her life in the surf. Divers today scoured the ocean bed off the coast while police and volunteer patrols from Angelus Temple paced the shore line.

Airplanes zoomed down to the wave tops, their pilots peering into the depths. Grapplers in boats raked the ocean floor.

Up here in the city a dozen miles from the beaches the usual Sunday programme went on peacefully in Angelus Temple, save for the one major exception—the absence of the leader who had founded the house of worship—and the appearance for her 15 year old daughter, Roberta, as the preacher of the day.

INTERNATIONAL SUFFRAGE CONGRESS IN PARIS MAY 30

PARIS, May 23.—(AP)—The "hands across the sea" policy is actually bringing the national women's party of United States overseas to make its first formal appearance at any international gathering of women. This will occur when the international suffrage alliance opens its congress on May 30.

"We think the women should put their hands across the sea, since men much too often put their fists across the sea," Abby Scott Baker, national secretary of the American organization declared today. "It is time women had a share in internationalism."

Miss Baker, who arrived several days ago to prepare for the reception of the American delegation of 25, headed by Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, president of the national women's party, said that the delegates would support those elements of the congress which stand for no privileges and no special advantages, but complete equality, including industrial, for women and men.

MONSTER COMMUNIST DEMONSTRATION IN BERLIN

BERLIN, May 23—(AP)—With bands and banners bearing communist emblems, some 50,000 men and women marched today from the east end of Berlin to Tempelhof field, in the south, in a monster communist demonstration. At the field speeches were delivered by communist leaders.

The demonstration, for which thousands of persons came to the capital from many parts of the country, appeared to have attained its object, which was to impress Berliners with the size and orderliness of the communist movement. At an early hour today the police reported the demonstration was without incident and that the "red riots," predicted in some quarters did not develop.

WIVES OF BRITISH MINERS SHOW GRIM DETERMINATION

They Are Bearing the Brunt of the Miners' Fight For What They Consider a Just Wage—Many Have Refused to Allow Their Children to Eat at School Soup Kitchens—President Smith of the Yorkshire Miners' Federation Has Advised the Strikers to Avoid Disorders.

MERTHYR-TYDFIL, Wales, May 23.—(AP)—The grimly determined demeanor of the women of this mining village at the head of Merthyr valley, with its largely Welsh population, is a constant reminder that the women and children are bearing the brunt of the miners' fight for what they consider a just wage.

Without grumbling and almost savagely cheerful, mothers go about the task of feeding large families even though wages for strike pay is not forthcoming. Where the average income is approximately $19.50 weekly when the men are employed, there is now $2.75 weekly allowance to the strikers' wives from the county guardians. There is no strike pay anywhere in South Wales, although the miners daily besiege union headquarters in the villages for relief.

Local strike committees declare their funds are nearly exhausted. Few admit the desperate condition, but evidence is everywhere of hunger in the homes, particularly among those children whose parents will not allow them to eat at school soup kitchens. These youngsters are forced wistfully to watch their playmates satisfying their hunger while their own appetites go unappeased. School masters tell of cases of children boasting of the splendid meals provided them when the neighbors know the families are living on bread, margarine and tea.

In many cases children are unable to play in the stony school yards because their shoes are without soles. Dozens of half-naked tots are to be seen in every village. As a whole, the miners' children are badly clad; some of them resemble small rag bags as they run along the roads, cups in hand, on the way to soup kitchens.

"We are going to win this fight," he said, "by putting the police and soldiers out of work."

DENOUNCED CALLING OFF OF THE GENERAL STRIKE

PORTH, Rhondda Valley, Wales, May 23.—(AP)—Addressing a miners' demonstration here today, A. J. Cook, secretary of the miners' federation, bitterly denounced the Trades Union council and labor leaders for calling off the general strike.

He remarked that he never had been bullied either by the employers or the government ministers as he had been bullied by certain Trades Union leaders to accept a reduction in the miners' wages.

The calling off of the strike, Secretary Cook declared, was a shameful betrayal, and the speeches of Ramsay MacDonald (former labor premier) and J. A. Thomas (secretary of the railway men's union) would be read by the working classes with shame.

The Trades Union council, he said, had left the miners stranded, but they intended to continue the struggle.

DEC. 5 DESIGNATED AS GOLDEN RULE SUNDAY

WASHINGTON, May 23.—(AP)—December 5 has been designated international golden rule Sunday by the near east relief and received the endorsement of President Coolidge in a letter to that organization made public today.

Fifty countries observed the day last year and substantial contributions have been received from all of them for the support of war orphans in the near east and other destitute areas.

President Coolidge wrote that "I regard international golden rule Sunday as a movement of much importance. Begun in an attempt to care for the orphaned children of bible lands, it has extended to other countries.

"Practical help is the best expression of friendship. The aid we may give out of our abundance to those less fortunately situated than we should be of great value in bringing about the application of the Golden Rule to the settlement of misunderstandings among nations as well as among individuals."

PASSAIC STRIKERS HISSED THE NAMES OF SENATORS

PASSAIC, N. J., May 23—The names of United States Senators Edge and Edwards and Representative Seger were greeted with derision today at a mass meeting of 15,000 textile strikers and sympathizers. The meeting followed a parade of 10,000 sympathizers and strikers through the streets and marked the beginning of the 18th week of the strike.

The parade and meeting were held under the auspices of the Associated Slavic societies and parishes but a large number of strikers were present at both. No strike leaders were present.

Joseph Madkowski, of Clifton, a member of the Slavic committee that went to Washington last week to urge speedy action on the proposed senate investigation of conditions in the textile industry in this district, asserted the committee could not see Senators Edge nor Edwards, nor Representative Seger. GUARDING U. S. CONSULAR OFFICES IN HAVANA

PREDICT DEMOCRAT WILL DEFEAT VARE FOR SENATE

WASHINGTON, May 23—(AP)—"Pennsylvanians are ready for organized action against the system by which majority party politics has become mainly a question of which leader, taking the name republican, shall give the autocratic orders," the democratic national committee declared today in a statement. It predicted that William B. Wilson, the democratic candidate for the senate, would defeat Representative William S. Vare, the republican nominee, in the coming election.

"Primary returns," the statement said, "show that the people of Pennsylvania, are struggling to be free, even if the temporary result is to take domination from a Pittsburgh and give it to a Philadelphia boss. It is not always possible to attain at one stroke all that is desired.

"Electors of Pennsylvania who took part in the primaries will have opportunity to strike again, and more effectively, when they go to the polls in November, and more than a half million who did not vote at the primaries may register their will at that time."

The statement described the candidacy of Former Secretary of Labor Wilson as an "opportunity for Pennsylvania to be represented in United States senate by one who stands, not for ward bossism and political peonage, but for democratic institutions sustained and administered by American free men."

TO DEMAND INVESTIGATION OF PROHIBITION ENFORCEMENT

WASHINGTON, May 23.—(AP)—Denouncing as a "menace" President Coolidge's executive order authorizing enrollment of state and city officials as prohibition agents, Senator Edwards, democrat, New Jersey, announced tonight that he will call up in the senate this week his resolution demanding an investigation of prohibition enforcement in all its phases.

In view of the president's order and "the fact that early and favorable action will be demanded by administration leaders on the Goff bill (the administration measure to tighten enforcement), Senator Edwards said he suspected that "something is rotten in Denmark' and that that something warrants a complete and thorough investigation."

The senator described the executive order on the Goff bill as "flagrant violations of our constitutional rights." And declared that if either is put into operation, "America will be metamorphosed into a slave market of one hundred million souls completely subjected to the tyranny of an odious and hateful law which has already hopelessly disrupted our age old scheme of general law enforcement and is breeding a nation of hypocrites and both active and potential criminals."

TRIO OF AUTO THIEVES CAUGHT AFTER LONG CHASE

WILLIMANTIC, May 22.—The trio of Massachusetts boys, John Fitzgerald, 17, of 24 Russell street, and Ernest Boudreau, 134 Gordon street, both of Cambridge, and Robert Hanna, 5 Belmont street, Somerville, were taken into custody at 7 o'clock tonight after a daring daylight automobile theft committed in the heart of the residential section here about 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

The youngsters arrived in this city in a crippled Hudson car, which they had stolen in Belmont, Mass., Saturday night. They abandoned the machine near the A. Monast store on West Main street and walked up Windham street to Prospect. There they took possession of another Hudson, a coach, owned by A. L. French, which was parked in front of his home at 372 Prospect street. Hearing the noise of the motor, Mr. French saw the three boys starting off with his car and getting into another machine owned and driven by a relative, he gave chase. The young thieves headed up Prospect street and turned into Montivello street, eluding their pursuers. Meantime Mrs. French had notified the Acting Chief of Police Thomas Grady and Motorcycle Officer Grant Bombria rushed to Mansfield avenue. Seeing the officer approaching, the trio left Mr. French's automobile and disappeared into the woods. A detachment of police, headed by Acting Captain McLean searched the territory until darkness.

Working on a hunch Officer Bombria drove to North Windham, saw three boys walking on the highway and took them to headquarters. On their persons were found about a dozen packages of cigarettes, boxes of matches, a snuff box, etc. After some questioning Fitzgerald admitted the automobile theft and confessed to being the ringleader. He said that he left Cambridge Saturday night about 10 o'clock with his two associates after having a fight with his father. The boys walked to Belmont and stole the Hudson, the ownership of which will probably be established on Monday. From Belmont they drove the car to Concord and Worcester, Mass., finally landing in this state. One tire went bad, and having nothing to fix it with Fitzgerald took it off the wheel, allowing the car to run on the bare rim. This method of running caused them to abandon the machine upon arriving in this city. The young adventurers said that they had broken into a small store somewhere in Massachusetts during the night and stolen the smoking supplies. Their cases will be heard this Monday.

He was transferred to Brooklyn hospital and served two years in all. The fact that he enlisted before July 1, 1921, makes him a World War veteran. For some time he has been an orderly in Fort Thompson hospital at Newport, Kentucky. He was taken sick there on November 19th and later was moved to Outwood hospital. He is survived by his parents, a twin sister, Mrs. Esther Laugbeim of Norwich, three other sisters, Mrs. Lewis Hewlitt, Mrs. Adelbert Babcock and Ruby Gray of Jewett City and five brothers Herbert, Thomas, Walter and Arthur of Jewett City and Lewis of Waterford. He was a member of Mt. Vernon lodge, No. 75, F. and A. M. and Reliance lodge, No. 29, I. O. O. F. K. of C. first degree meeting tonight in Foresters Hall.—adv.

State's Attorney Arthur M. Brown completes negotiations this (Monday) morning for the purchase of the Dimmock property, earlier known as the Joseph Brown place, situated at the southern overlook of the East Main street highlands.

Mr. Brown, in acquiring this valuable holding, will come into possession of a parcel of land extending through from North Main to East Main, which on the former street, will include his present residence in this purchase is to be noted a bit of pleasant sentiment as the Dimmock home was ante the residence of his father, Gehard Brown, and also of his grandfather, Joseph Brown.

Worshippers at the Baptist church Sunday morning listened to a sermon of special interest delivered by the Rev. E. E. Scates. The speaker emerging upon the topic of Christ as the Bright and Morning Star, presented to his hearers a series of beautiful illustrations, touching the works and mysteries of the Savior's life, brought into apt comparison by his word picture of the celestial sphere. "Who has not," he said, "viewed the wonders of the firmament at night and considered the stars and wondered what they were, who put them there and caused them to shine and reappear all in their appointed positions." A feature of the song service was a duet by Miss Mabel Frink and Tyler Gilbert.

The American Legion and any ex-service men are to meet this (Monday) evening to complete arrangements for Memorial day.

A cradle roll party for children under 10 years of age is to be held in the Congregational church parlor from 3:30 to 5 Tuesday afternoon.

THE SALVATION ARMY APPEAL

Numbered among the organizations in this city which have from year to year been considered worthy of generous support has been the Salvation Army. There was the time when financial aid was solicited throughout the year, making it uncertain what the response was going to be and just how much time could be devoted to the real work of the organization. Instead of having this work distributed throughout the year the plan has been followed for the past few years of raising the budget at the opening of the fiscal year and the value of it as been repeatedly realized.

During this week the annual campaign for the solicitation of funds will be held. According to the report of the Salvation Army officials they have found plenty to do during the past year. They have put the funds at their command to good use in relieving distress, lending a helping hand, serving the sick, providing religious meetings for those who might not seek them elsewhere and ministering to the wants of those who have been temporarily down but not out.

There are organizations which are engaged in similar work but the Salvation Army goes where the others do not. There may be communities where it has much more to do than it does here but that does not justify the negligence of whatever needs to be done, and there is plenty to testify to the excellence of the Salvation Army work.

Thus the appeal that will be made this week should get a widespread and generous response. It is an opportunity for the large as well as the small contributor to put his hand into his pocket and insure the continuance of the good work. Inasmuch as Captain and Mrs. Cashman have stated that they would be "glad to do even more during the coming year if the needs are made known to us and we have the support of the people of Norwich" there is a challenge which ought not to be disregarded.

The opportunity for Norwich to provide for the Salvation Army during the next 12 months is at hand and it is a cause that deserves to get a hearty endorsement financially.

ONE PARLEY AT A TIME

For Japan, or its commissioners at Geneva, to suggest a separate conference for naval disarmament in which Japan, Great Britain and this country would participate may or may not indicate the advance view of Japan concerning the outcome of the present conference, but it hasn't been prevented from thinking and saying that smoothing more in the way of naval disarmament should be done, even if the conference gets nowhere.

For the suggested conference to be favord and arranged at this time would simply be throwing cold water upon that which is now underway. It is entirely possible that the Geneva conference will amount to nothing, that it will be impossible to get an agreement even in the formulation of a program to be acted upon later, but that state of affairs should be allowed to develop instead of being unduly anticipated. There should be nothing done that would be open to the interpretation of trying to wreck the conference.

Thus the suggestion by Japan must be viewed in a different light than ought be the case if no conference were in session. What is regarded in an unfavorable light now might be the case if no conference were in session. What is regarded in an unfavorable light now might be viewed differently if the conference were actually on the rocks.

If the conference can bring about the same results that the smaller conference contemplates it would be preferable for it would include more nations and it is desirable that France and Italy should at least be included with the three mentioned by Japan, as under the present naval agreement.

Thus it can be appreciated that President Coolidge, while opposing the suggested conference, is unwilling to be much talking about it for the wrong impression that might be gained therefrom. What his views concerning the idea are now does not mean that they would be just the same under difference circumstances and it is necessary that they should be interpreted in that light. One conference at a time is of course enough.

THE HAUGEN BILL

Whatever may be done toward the seeking of farm relief under a compromise measure at this session of congress, it is apparent that the Haugen measure has been disposed of. It has encountered opposition from the start. It failed to represent the united sentiment of the farmers and it has not had the support of all who have been working in behalf of an agricultural measure. Hitherto it has been the verdict of congress that there shall be no subsidies and by its vote on the Haugen bill it still sticks to that policy for there was no disguising the fact that it was a subsidy which was sought under this plan.

When the bill came up for action in the house, it was clearly shown, despite the efforts which had been made to get the support of the democrats by making provision to take care of the southern cotton planters, that the house was not divided on political lines. They were smashed beyond recognition and representatives voted in keeping with their convictions.

Much of the time of the session had been taken up with this bill or in trying to get it in a favorable position for action. When it was first urged it carried an appropriation of $375,000,000 but by the time it was voted upon it had been whittled down to $173,000,000, or close to the figures which have been mentioned in other farm relief measures.

Heed has apparently been given not only to the undesirability of voting a subsidy and thus establishing a precedent, but to the need of keeping down expenditures. Rushing into huge appropriations without regard for the deficit that would be involved would be extremely bad business. Apparently that has been realized and the indications are that congress is not in the mood to provide the class legislation which has been sought. Its attitude has been registered at least on the Haugen plan. That is disposed of and the approach of the end of the session leaves little time for anything else.

VIA A REFERENDUM

A position which cannot fail to gain much support is that which is taken by Senator Bingham of Connecticut in behalf of a referendum on the wet and dry question. He was prompted to express his views as the result of the advocacy of a referendum on that question in Pennsylvania by Senator Reed of that state following the recent primary.

Efforts to base the sentiment of the voters of any state upon the outcome or any candidate get no where. There are all kinds of reasons that enter into the support of every candidate and the only way in which to obtain the views of the voters upon a particular question is to have them vote directly thereon.

Connecticut has not ratified the prohibition amendment and so far has displayed no interest in a referendum, but Senator Bingham believes "A referendum would permit expression without reference to anyone's candidacy or any other issue," and while he does not believe in it on ordinary matters he does favor it on matters involving the Constitution.

Whatever the sentiment of a state may be upon such a question the way to determine it is through a vote thereon and not through the support of several candidates of all shades of wetness and dryness where the divided opposition to the wets or the drys may be larger than the successful plurality vote. Trying to claim Pennsylvania wet when a wet senator and dry governor were nominated by the republican voters demonstrates the need of a direct vote on the wet-dry question in order to get an expression thereon. When sentiment is gained it should be explicit and not guesswork

PAROLING PRISONERS

In repeated instances it has been shown that the systems of paroling and pardoning convicts in different states has had unsatisfactory results. There is no question as to the need of such commissions for the purpose of giving consideration to cases which are really deserving, to give encouragement to those who have seen the error of their way and are disposed to profit by their experiences, but too often it is the case where the professional criminals are playing ring with the commissions, getting all sorts of undeserving leniency and going out to prey again upon the public.

The disposition to do their work in the easiest way is encountered in some individuals and that about expresses the action of some parole boards. They go through the motions of determining whether prisoners should be released without in some cases really knowing much about what they are doing. They depend upon recommendations which may be good and may be decidedly bad.

The latter has been disclosed in connection with the parole board in New York state. There a notorious criminal was able to bargain with the one whose recommendations were accepted when it came time to hand out paroles. It shows a deplorable situation, one which not only calls for an investigation, now underway, but a reorganization of the system with more consideration being given to the public than to the confirmed criminals.

It is not solely in one state that undesirable conditions relative to parole are disclosed, but in each instance there is displayed the loopholes for and the mistakes made by too much leniency.

EDITORIAL NOTES

If appearance counts for anything there's nothing the matter with the dandelion crop this year.

The man on the corner says: Just about time you get ready to bail the iceman along comes a cold wave.

Now that Stickney is to be candidate for senator in Vermont that ought to add spice to the campaign.

The chances of lower taxes seem to have gone a glimmering unless the tax payers take a hand and insist upon it.

With the crown prince and princess of Sweden coming to this country you will probably have use for the high hat once more.

From the vote in Philadelphia it is easy to understand why General Butler had so much difficulty in trying to dry that city up in 48 hours.

Ambassador Berenger is confident that France will accept the debt funding terms. He maintined much the same attitude about coming to an agreement.

In two new ways have the Hartford papers been attracting attention lately. The Courant has changed its appearance greatly by a new typographical dress, which was done to make it easier to read, while The Times has just installed a monster new press which is claimed to be the largest in New England and required an addition to the plant. Hartford's needs in the newspaper line are being well cared for.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Gelatine in a food mixture renders the article more digestible.

Enameled furniture is nice for a child's room as it can be cleaned easily.

Keep ferns and palms away from drafts and gas.

If lamp wicks are first soaked in vinegar they will not smoke.

The higher the blunt end of an egg rises out of water, the older the egg is.

A piece of blotting paper rubbed with a hot iron will soon remove a wax stain.

When shopping for grapefruit, select those with thin skins that feel heavy. The weight indicates a full juice content.

Jellies and salads served in the new crystal and colored dishes are much more attractive to the eye than in any other type of container.

There is a new type of orange squeezer with a large cup space so that preparing the morning orange juice becomes a very simple matter.

If batter for pancakes seems lumpy, beat it with an egg beater after all the ingredients are added, and you can soon get a smooth batter.

In removing spots from clothing with gasoline a ring often forms where the spot has been. A little salt sprinkled in the gasoline will prevent this.

Dried apricots, washed and chopped fine may be substituted for citron in cake and pudding making, and the difference in price justifies the substitution. The taste is practically identical.

See that you do not neglect fish on your menu. It contains iodine which is so necessary to the body and the oils are rich in vitamines.

Do not fry foods in fat that is bubbling. All fat should be without bubbles when anything is fried in it. Dough dropped into bubbling fat absorbs it.

ONE PIE FOR MANY

If unexpected company arrives and you have only one mince pie to divide among a number of people, buy a pint of ice cream at the corner store, and serve a small mound of ice cream alongside of the smaller than usual cut of pie. Everybody likes the combination and will never notice the size of the slice of pie.

ALL THE IMPLEMENTS

Keep a can of cleaner, a scrubbing brush and a clean cloth in the bottom of the bathroom closet. Then there is no excuse for the person not cleaning out his or her tub after bathing.

A CLEAN CUT

Dip the knife first into cold water before cutting into the pie topped with a meringue. Then there is no possibility of a jagged cut with the meringue sticking to the pie knife.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

To remove a fishbone from the throat, cut a lemon in halves and suck the juice slowly. This will dissolve the fishbone and give almost instant relief.

Sunlight is the cheeriest comrade, the best killer of germs, the easiest light on the eyes found, in all a good thing to have around the house. Let the sun shine in and everyone and everything will be benefited.

Should the voice be lost from the effects of a cold a simple, pleasant remedy is furnished by beating up the white of an egg, adding to it the juice of one lemon, and sweetening it with white sugar to taste. Take a spoonful from time to time.

Stretching exercises have great value for all types of figure, but they are especially helpful for short, stout women. Quite frequently the overweight girl or woman can make herself look thinner and taller just by a correct posture in which the muscles supporting the abdomen and chest are held taut instead of being allowed to sag down. The habit of stretching the body up as tall as possible will make the lines of the figure firmer and actually slimmer.

SOAP FOR STAINED HANDS

So often someone in the home is employed where his or her hands require something a little stronger than ordinary soap to remove stains. The following is splendid and can be made readily at home. Cut into chips 1 pound of castile soap and dissolve in 1-4 pint hot water with 1-4 pound of carbonate of potash. Boil until thick enough to pour into molds. Cool and then stir in 1-4 ounce each of alcohol, spirits of camphor, hartshorn and pulverized charcoal, beating well. Pour into molds to cool.

ROOM ENOUGH IN THE CLOSET

A summer cottage often lacks sufficient clothes-closet space and when guests are in the house it causes great inconvenience. This problem can be solved by securing a velocipede wheel and giving it a coat or two of white enamel. Attach the wheel to the shelf in such a way that it can revolve. The dresses can be put on hangers and placed on the rim of the wheel.

BRIGHT RUNNER ON PLAIN RUG

It is good taste as well as giving an interesting touch to a plain one-toned rug, to place a little oriental or colorful runner over a small portion of it. The runner can be put in front of the desk, divan or library table and will in no way distract from the general color outline of the room.

AN IMPROVED FIRE SCREEN

If you do not feel you can afford to put the money into an expensive fire screen for your fireplace, use an ordinary metal window screen and open it across the front of the fireplace. It can be supported by a couple of bricks. You will find it very effective and will answer the purpose until you get a real one.

DICTATES OF FASHION

With woolen dresses short capes are preferable. For evening, long capes of velvet or taffeta, with gathers forming a yoke are frequently seen.

Sportshats for late spring and early summer are of Panama bound with ribbon to match the color of the frock. They are somewhat larger than the hats of last year and are turned up in back.

Gray is used for several of the prettiest costumes for youthful wearers. Often a cape coat of gray twill is worn over a frock of powder blue crepe de chine, which also lines the coat and cape.

The fringed wedding gown is one of the season's new offerings. In this case of gown, is of satin and falls in slender lines to the hem being trimmed in deep white fringe from hips to heel.

Black is holding its own in evening gowns both for women and misses. Frequently black lace is seen in sheer cobweb by patterns combined with chiffon, sometimes over flesh.

Lace in being worn extensively. There are lace dresses with long transparent sleeves; lace incrustations on sheer materials and lace dinner dresses black lace over pink predominating.

The black frocks so universally stressed by the smart shops of New York would be considered incomplete, if they did not have a touch of rose to set them off. Sometimes this takes the form of an artificial flower.

Handkerchief, hosiery, hat and frock usually match in color if the frock is pastel-hued. Contrasts are not as popular as they formerly were unless one wishes to enliven a dark color by using accessories of high shades.

Black and white checks both in large and small designs are much in evidence. They are used not only for the simple little two-piece tailleur but for the more formal ensemble. In the latter instance a touch of red is introduced somewhere about the costume with most telling effect.

CONTRASTING HOSE WORN

The tailored suit as usual will be included in the wardrobe of the well dressed woman this spring. Also, as usual, navy blue, gray and tan will be the colors generally chosen. But since the skirts of the suits are short, the hose will be used to supply color contrast. Some of the gray suits will be accompanied by stockings of lilac nude, atmosphere, moonlight and dove, while the blue suits will find contrast in the rose and sunburn tints.

PANELS AND POINTS

Some of the newest Paris evening dresses resemble certain brands of soap. They float. At least they give that impression through use of panels which reach from the side of the arms or the waist line almost to the floor. Occasionally these are replaced by points of lace which fall from either side of the skirt. These sometimes render dancing rather complicated—for others—in crowded ball rooms.

WAISTLINE RETURNING

Paris announces that the summer silhouette will be based on the corset which will be the underlying charm of the costume. The master corsetiares of both Paris and New York have translated this silhouette into precious bits of satin, elastic and supple boning.

LAUNDRY HINTS

If you scorch a garment in ironing, rub dry starch over the stain, then sponge it off. Repeat as often as necessary.

White silk gloves and stockings will not turn yellow if they are carefully washed in warm water, not hot water, and dried in the house. Before hanging them up to dry press them out smoothly with the hands. Do not iron.

Glazed tiles can be beautifully cleaned by rubbing them with a cut lemon. Then after 15 minutes, polish them with a soft cloth.

A good way to remove stains from silk or satin is to spread the article carefully on a flat surface. Dust it and apply with a sponge or a piece of flannel a cold infusion of strong black tea. Another way is to sponge the articles with a weak solution of borax following the grain, and afterward iron on the wrong side.

ECONOMICAL WINDOW VENTILATOR

In a bedroom, occupied by twin beds, the question of proper ventilation was a serious one, as it was necessary for one bed to stand in front of a north window. A 16-inch window ventilator such as can be bought in the stores solved the problem part of the time, but on nights when a stronger north wind blew, this protection was not enough. The following device was worked out and has proved very satisfactory.

A piece of heavy awning was purchased and hems turned in to make it measure 22 by 47 inches. The window was 44 inches wide, so that the awning came well across the casements. Small brass rings were sewed seven inches apart down both sides and across the bottom of the awning. Beginning 22 inches above the sill, tiny brass hooks were screwed into the window casement down the sides and across the bottom to correspond with the rings on the awning.

On windy nights the awning can be adjusted in a second's time by slipping the rings over the hooks, giving adequate protection and still letting in plenty of air.

BETTER PLANTS

Don't wonder why the plants die when kept in a gloomy, sunless part of the room. Very few plants do not require sunshine and while some will bloom without direct rays, they are very few. You will find best results are obtained with plenty of sunshine, air and good warm rain for watering purposes.

TALL CANDLES FOR DINING TABLE

It is advisable to have the candles on the dining table tall so as to be above the level of the eye. Then they will not prove distracting nor glaring and will instead give a nice subtle glow. A pretty arrangement for the spring table is yellow candles and yellow flowers in Venetian glass of a blue tone.

CONCERNING WOMEN

It is considered a sin among Mohammedan women to cut their hair.

California has the largest number of divorced women of any state in the Union.

Recently compiled statistics show that there are 877,298 married women in London.

A Servian railroad has opened a school to teach women to become locomotive engineers.

Mrs. Mark C. Hogue, whose aviator husband was killed in a plane crash last summer, is carrying on his flying school at Weston, Mass., and she is taking lessons herself to qualify for a pilot's license.

Miss Essie R. Conway, an English school teacher, has been made "Commander of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire," an honor heretofore accorded only to diplomats, philanthropists and generals.

In order to be better equipped to solve educational problems in her position as president of the city board of education, Mrs. Lena P. Crouse, of San Diego, Calif., has just completed a four-year course at state college.

STAINED LACQUER WARE

When the lacquered ware becomes stained try rubbing the spots with a cloth dampened with salad oil. It will usually do the trick.

THINGS FOR CANNING

Have you in readiness a large preserving kettle, a two-quart saucepan, a colander, skimmer, spoons and the necessary jars and bottles, with rubbers and tops to fit? It is almost time for canning and preserving, and if these things are on hand the housekeeper is ready for any emergency.

RECIPES

Colonial Cake: Cream 1-2 cup of butter and gradually add 1 1-2 cups of sugar, stirring constantly, then add five eggs beaten until thick and lemon tinted. Sift together five times, two and 1-2 cups of bread flour, 2 teaspoons of baking powder and 1-2 teaspoon of salt; add to the first mixture alternately with 3-4 cup of milk. Beat briskly 2 minutes and add one teaspoon of vanilla. The original recipe called for rosewater and nutmeg for flavoring; vanilla is preferable. Turn into a buttered and floured tube cake pan and bake 45 minutes.

Cold Peach Souffle: Press 2 cups of cooked, sweetened peaches with a very little of the liquor through a puree sieve. Prepare a custard from 3 cups of milk, 1-8 of a teaspoon of salt and the yolks of three eggs beaten with 1-4 of a cup of sugar.

Cook over hot water until well thickened and add one and one-half tablespoons of gelatine softened in 2 tablespoons of cold water.

Remove from the fire, stir until the gelatine is dissolved and add slowly the peach mixture. When cold and beginning to stiffen beat well and fold in the stiffly whipped egg whites. Pour into a chilled mould and set on the ice to harden. Serve with whipped cream cream.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Daniel Carter Beard, who has received the Gold Medal of Honor of the Roosevelt Memorial association for distinguished service to the American people in the leadership of youth and the development of American character, has long been identified with the Boy Scouts of America as its honorary vice president and national scout commissioner. In fact, he has the distinction of being the originator and founder of the first Boy Scout society on which the English Scouts are modeled. "Uncle Dan," as he is familiarly known, is a fine example of a man who has led an active life. Much of this activity reflects his never ceasing love of the great outdoors. He has edited magazines and written many books on outdoor life, most of these for the benefit of American boyhood. As a tribute to him, Mt. Beard, the peak adjoining peak Mt. McKinley, was named after him. Mr. Beard is a native of Cincinnati and is now in his 78th year.

Stories That Recall Others

Signals Mixed

Some very young householders who were going on a week end trip and were loathe to leave their new home unprotected, beseeched the neighbors to keep friendly eyes in that direction during their absence. The bride told her friends goodbye, adding, "And remember that you promised to watch our house and if you should see anything wrong or see a light do call the police."

Her husband who had not heard the foregoing conversation locked the house, leaving a light in one of the bedrooms as a "protection" and so that "a passerby would think the house was occupied." With a satisfied air he closed the door and they departed for an enjoyable vacation. Monday morning arrived and with it the return of the young couple, who were not as popular with the neighbors as they might have been had they not been "so stupid as to leave the light," causing the neighborn to get alarmed and climb over the roof with ladders to investigate the reason for the illumination.

It Didn't Happen

Two girls discussing the qualities of some "he" stepped off the curb and walked directly into the side of a moving automobile. They screamed and by using their hands to push themselves back from the car were caught by other pedestrians. In their animated conversation concerning "he" they had taken no cognizance of the fact that a mere auto was in the street.

"I'm so frightened I could faint," said one.

"Don't faint," said the other. "Nothing happened."

And then the people wonder why there are so many instances where officials investigate and find it is not the fault of the auto driver.

From Small Beginnings

Alexander Menshikov, the Pie Seller, Ruler of Russia

To sell pies on the streets one day, poor, unknown and of the most humble origin; and on another day to rule the great empire of Russia in the days of the Czars—that seems like a story of The Prince and the Pauper.

Alexander Menshikov, a pie-seller on the streets of the old city of Moscow, in the Seventeenth Century, rose to the rule of Russia and guided affairs with a powerful hand under three rulers of the royal family.

About 1684 one of the nobles of the court of Peter the Great, passing through the crooked streets of old Moscow, saw a man standing at a corner selling freshly-baked meat-pies. "Hi, there you pieman! Have you birds in your pie? Do you give a diamond ring for a prize with every pie?" the noble called out with a laugh.

"Eat my pies and you shall eat many an honor," quipped back the pie-seller.

"Hi! you pieman! Eat your pies yourself. You seem to need honors—and money, too!" the noble called back.

"I have eaten my pies and I shall rule all Russia under the good father Czar, to whom be long life," the pieman retorted.

For every quip of the noble he had a ready answer. In the end the courtier took the pieman, who was only little more than a boy, to live in his palace, because the pieseller was a young, quick-witted man, good to look at. Whenever the rich courtier heard the quick sallies of Alexander Menshikov he forgot all about the fact that the pieman had been born in the poor quarter of Moscow and brought up by a man who took care of horses. Year after year the pieman grew into a courtier and finally, at the age of about 25 became the chief comrade of no less a person than the great Peter, ruler of all Russia, himself only a young man of 27. With the emperor he traveled through Europe as with an equal, and he absorbed power as a sponge does water. He fought in the wars, and often ruled in the place of Peter. He grew vastly rich, for he did not scruple in the least to rule for his own benefit.

When Peter the Great died it was this former seller of pies who made Catherine the Empress of Russia, and under her reign it was really the Moscow pie-seller who governed all Russia with a power as if all his ancestors had been Czars. Even when she died he kept himself in the high position in which fate had placed him. If he had been content he might have kept power, but he tried to make his daughter the wife of the new czar—and he lost all. At 67 down the hill he went—once more into poverty and exile in Siberia.

MEMORY OF THOMAS F. SHEA HONORED BY MEN OF ST. PATRICK'S PARISH

The far-reaching influence of a worthy Christian life was demonstrated Sunday, when the men of St. Patrick's parish united in a public tribute to the late Thomas Francis Shea. Members of White Cross council, K. of C. of which Mr. Shea was grand knight at the time of his death, of the Holy Name society, St. Mary's Total Abstinence & Benevolent society, alumni and the Undergraduate Club of Holy Cross college, with a representation of the parish Boy Scouts marched from the Knights of Columbus home, on Broadway, to attend the 7:30 mass. The flag on the church lawn and at the K. of C. home were at half staff.

Organist Henry J. LaFontaine played "Onward, Christian Soldiers" for the processional, as the hundreds of men moved to the pews reserved for them on either side of the nave. The ushers were William J. McKnight, John R. Wozniak, Thaddeus Leahy and John P. Corcoran. In the front pews were Mr Shea's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel T. Shea, his widow, Mrs. Viola S. Shea, his sisters and other near relatives from Norwich, with others from Providence, Jewett City, New London, Canterbury and other places. His college room-mate, attorney Edward L. Kelly, executive secretary to Governor John H. Trumbull was detained in Maine, so was unable to reach Norwich in time for the services, as was represented by his nearest relative, his aunt, Miss Norah Kelly, of Colchester.

At was Pentecost Sunday, vestments and altar hangings being of red, the flowers on the three marble altars repeating this hue. The low mass was read by the rector, Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael Henry May, who wore the rich scarlet robes of his rank as a member of the papal household.

Invoking the patronage of the mother of Christ, congregational singing began with "Mother Dearest, Mother Fairest" the leaders being Roderick F Sullivan, Frank R. Murdy, Walter F. LaFontaine, Nicholas Spellman and Warren Kane. Other hymns sung were "Mother Dear, Oh, Pray for Me," and "Holy God, We Praise Thy Name."

The announcements were made by Rev. John J. Reilly. To honor Mr. Shea's memory, his former professor at Holy Cross, Rev. John X. Fyne, memuer of the Society of Jesus, now of Fordham university, N. Y., was the preacher.

The real test of Mr. Shea's hold upon public affection and esteem came at communion time when the great body of men went to the altar to receive the Eucharist from Father Fyne, Monsignor May, or Father Reilly. The parents, widow and other near relatives were given precedence in this. Later nearly every person in the crowded auditory followed their example, after confession the previous day, each offering his communion for the eternal repose of the soul of Mr. Shea. Several of the women's organizations went to communion in a body, also. At this time Henry J. and Walter LaFontaine sang, "Oh, Lord, I Am Not Worthy That Thou Shouldst Come to Me."

The K. of C. ranks were led by Grand Knight Henry C Gorman, the Holy Name society by President Patrick M Coleman and the T. A. & B. society by Maurice F. Kelly and William H. McGuinness.

Rev. Father Fyne's text was: "A wise man shall inherit honor among his people, and his name shall live forever." Ecclesiasticus, XXXVII. 29.

Wisdom, as understood by the sacred writer and the preacher, means a true understanding of life, and conduct which is in accordance with knowledge. It includes the knowledge which is acquired by observation, experience and instruction, and the knowledge also which is obtained through divine revelation. And it includes, besides knowledge, the habit of acting according to knowledge. Several of the books of the Old Testament are devoted to the praise of wisdom. Wisdom is characteristic of th etruly great man, who knows the right and works constantly for its achievement.

Without exaggeration we can say that the man whose memory we honor today possessed wisdom in the scriptural sense.

Mr. Shea had all the advantages of an American college education, which demands, as a prerequisite, a complete preparatory training in the elementary schools and the academy. He was not a recluse. He saw life in all its phases. He saw its values illustrated in the careers of men. He knew from his associations the effects of good and evil conduct. In school and college he became acquainted with the principles of morality and was taught the application of these principles to actual life. He had the knowledge which comes from observation, experience and instruction. From his very earliest years, also, he was taught to view life in the light of revelation, which is to the intellect what the sun is to the bodily eye, making the truths concerning the origin of the world, the duties and the destiny of man, stand out as clearly as an object in the noonday sun.

For these advantages he was indebted to his parents, his church, his city an dhis college. No man is entirely the maker of himself. He inherits his body from his parents; and together with his body he inherits from his parents all those mental traits which depend upon the body. From God he receives his soul, which at the close of life must stand in judgment before its Creator. From his family and relatives and friends and fellow-citizens and fellow-students, he received that variety of influences which constitute the social elements of his environment. It was by using wisely the 'powers of body and mind, by co-operating with the good influence in his environment, and repelling the evil influences, that Mr. Shea built up his character. His character was his own creation, built upon the gifts which he had inherited from his parents, by the repetition of those acts which he deliberately elected to perform. This character, his own creation, is what we admire in him. It is because of his character that we are all here today to do honor to his memory.

For the Boy Scouts he stands out as a model. Every normal boy loves athletics. He admires intellectual contests, but often merely as a spectator, not as a participant. Mr. Shea was not himself an athlete; yet he was interested in athletics, and when his fellow-students in college had to elect a man for the highest athletic honor in their gift, the managership of the football team, they elected him. In intellectual contests he was not merely a spectator. He was a participant. And in his college as well as in his academy, he always won a place among the first. He took a normal interest in the amusements of life, and he took a very deep interest in those intellectual pursuits most worthy the attention of the mind which is truly great.

The friendships which he formed in school and college were links, which ever remained unbroken, in the chain of influence binding others to him, and him to others. In the preservation of these friendships, and in the hearty co-operation with his friends in the objects they sought to attain, consisted his loyalty to school and college.

By his graduation from the grammar school and the academy he became a member of the vast alumni body of these institutions in the city of Norwich—an educated native citizen. And as an educated native citizen, loyal to his native city and the institutions which it maintains, he was ever prepared to devote his time, his energy and his influence to every movement which tended to promote the welfare of his city.

As an alumnus of Holy Cross college he not only retained contact with the college by frequent visits, but was a leader in every movement to increase the resources and the influence of his Alma Mater.

In the Catholic organization life of the city he was deeply interested, and those qualities of head and heart which won for him managerial honors in college made a similar impression upon his fellow members of White Cross council, Knights of Columbus, who conferred upon him the dignity of grand knight. He fulfilled the obligations of this difficult office with intelligence and tact. He had the rare gift of being able to conciliate opponents and win their hearty co-operation for any measure which the council adopted.

In the strictly ecclesiastical organizations of his parish, the Holy Name society and the Total Abstinence society, he also took a deep interest. Reverence for the sacred names of God the virtue specially cultivated by the Holy Name society, and self-control by the Total Abstinence society, were the proper fruits of his early training and personal observations.

To his parents he was the perfect son, always acting in harmony with their wishes, the glory and happiness of their advancing years.

To his wife he was the faultless husband, the embodiment of goodness and loyalty and love.

His little daughter, who is as yet hardly old enough to retain a memory of him, will be obliged to learn of him from others. But there will be many in Norwich, and outside of Norwich, especially among his fellow-alumni of Holy Cross, who in future years will tell her many things about the father who make cannot remember that will make her cheeks glow with pride. A wonderful inheritance he has left that little child, the memory of a name that will be associated in the minds of men with that only which is upright and noble and holy.

In the passing of Mr. Shea we have all lost a friend whom we loved, a man whom we admired. It is perfectly consistent with the practice of religion in all ages to cherish the memory of the dead who in life achieved distinction in the practice of virtue. Our presence here today is a manifestation of the impression which his life made upon all of us.

We honor his memory. We honor his parents. We honor his widow. We cannot honor him. He is beyond the reach of any honors we can bestow. He is now receiving honor from the King under whose standard he fought the good fight. From that King must he receive the crown which will adorn his brow for all eternity.

For us, his friends, who are still in the battle, there is inspiration in the memory of his achievements. He stands out in memory as an ideal, close enough to us not to frighten us away from virtue, and yet exalted above us sufficiently to make us realize that there is a steep climb before us if we would attain to the heights upon which he stands. We need such an ideal today. The world has always needed it. The world will always need it. The example of the wise man is needed to illustrate the lessons of wisdom.

The members of all the societies to which he belonged will find in his memory an inspiration to greater fidelity to the ideals of their societies.

The ideal member of the Holy Name society not only refrains from profaning the holy name of God, but goes to the opposite extreme and recites the praises of God. Every prayer pronounced, every unholy desire repelled, every pious thought cherished, is an act of reverence to the holy name. The confessions you make, the masses you attend, the holy communions you receive, the rosaries you recite, are all so many manifestations of reverence for the holy name, for we honor the holy name by honoring Him who bears it. Your society, by uniting all who wish to show special honor to the holy name, increases your power for good. It sets up a standard which others must recognize. It is a standard which all men should be induced to honor. Today there is a vast amount of profanity and vile language, especially among boys and men who have received little education. In their ignorance they think it smart to use vile language. When they receive a little additional education, intellectual or moral, they realize how vile their habits are and correct them and their social, and often their economic, condition is improved. If they carry on the habit of profanity and vulgarity into their mature years they will find it extremely difficult to shake it off. Socially, economically, morally, the man who uses vile language is at a disadvantage, in comparison with the man who reverences the name of God in thought and word and deed.

Of recent years there has been but little stress laid upon temperance. It was believed for a time that national prohibition rendered temperance an unnecessary virtue. But national prohibition is no substitute for temperance. You cannot legislate a natural appetite out of existence, any more than you can legislate hot weather or rain, out of existance. The only effective prohibition is that which the individual establishes for himself, when he becomes his own sheriff, judge and jury and jailer. That is the only combination that cannot be beaten; and that is the combination which this temperance society sets up for every one of its members.

The Christian virtues developed in the Knights of Columbus, by which they are united with one another by the bonds of Christian charity, are needed today as they have always been needed. There are many interests that divide men,—business, politics, pleasures. Every good Catholics come to have intense aversions toward one another. This arises from the fact that they lose the sense of relative values. They make a mountain out of a molehill. They begin to hate one another for a mere nothing. The Knights of Columbus organization teaches its members that there is nothing in all this world that can justify an uncharitable thought. We may justly condemn the man who is guilty of an infamous act, but we must first be certain of his guilt.

Each of us has received talents from his creator, and each of us will be obliged to account to the Creator for the use of his talents. Our Lord wants each of us to win eminence for himself by the use of his talents. We cannot afford to go before our creator empty-handed. We must produce something by the use of our talents. Whatever the reason, Catholics who have talents often seem to bury them. Every Catholic parish and every Catholic organization in every parish requires the best services of all its members. The work of the Catholic societies in the parishes of this country would receive a tremendous impetus and the good accomplished would be vastly increased, if every member of every society would give his best efforts to the work of the society.

Every one of you whether a member of the Boy Scouts, of the Total Abstinence, the Holy Name or the Knights of Columbus will be inspired by the memory of Mr. Shea to live up to the ideals of your society, to win eminence for yourself by intelligent and loyal devotion to the society of which you are a member.

To all of us, his friends, Mr. Shea has always been, and will always be, the ideal man, the man of true wisdom and while one of us lives to tell the story of his life, the memory of his wisdom will not be lost to the world. It is a story we can tell in words. It is a story we can tell in deeds. Of the two, the record embodied in deeds is the more important. We cannot do a man a greater honor than to imitate him. If he were permitted to come before you today and to tell you how best to shape your lives, he could only tell you to cultivate those very virtures in which he himself excelled. They are the virtues which the spirit of God, the spirit of wisdom, is always teaching. Honor his memory, yes. But honor it in the only way in which such a life can be truly honored by imitating, so far as your circumstances will permit, the splendid examples of virtue which he has placed before you.

PRESENTS APPEAL FOR CHURCH IN WASHINGTON

In addresses Sunday morning at the First and Second Congregational churches in New London and in the evening at the Willimantic church, Rev. Jason Noble Pierce, D. D., pastor of the First Congregational church in Washington, D. C., presented the appeal to the denomination for aid in raising a million and a quarter dollars to build a new church and expand its work. President and Mrs. Coolidge are members of this church.

REV. JASON N. PIERCE, D. D.

In part the Washington pastor said: "Churches and ministers from the dawn of time have never had such a magnificent opportunity for uplifting religious influence as today. The good old days of the past were not equal to this glorious present. Decadent churches cannot lead a progressive people, nor can a divided church produce a united world. Living churches, cooperating churches, can do anything and everything they undertake. Then in the name of God let us undertake great things.

"Any downtown church rightly located in a great city, and having the right life and spirit, possesses a commanding opportunity for effective service. This is especially true of such a church at the nation's capital.

"For sixty years First Congregational church at Tenth and G Streets, Washington has had crowded congregations. These have come because of its accessibility, its free pulpit, its broad spirit, and because it offers liberty for the individual and union for all. Men do feel the need of God. Great responsibilities drive men and nations to seek God's help. So Washington at Valley Forge. So Lincoln all through the Civil war. The president now in the White House puts his trust in God, habitually and faithfully attends public worship and sets an example which thousands of others follow.

"Washington is your city, and First Congregational church is your downtown office at the capital. It needs a million and a quarter of dollars to expand its growing work and to build a new and adequate church building. Since four-fifths of its congregations come from the country at large we must raise four-fifths of the funds from the country at large. Our own resources are limited and the expense of building to meet the exacting building requirements at the capital are about double those elsewhere. Our total goal is considerably less than that of the other denominations for their edifices in the capital.

"Individuals, committees, state superintendents, associations, conferences, and the National Council of Congregational churches have endorsed this project. One fifth of the money is already pledged or paid. We ask your cooperation in letting the various members of our teams of representatives present this project to your people, spreading information and soliciting support. Churches at the capital are an asset to the nation, and your church in downtown Washington confronts a magnificent opportunity for far-reaching service."

PRES. COOLIDGE COMMENDS V. F. W. POPPY DAY

The president of the United States, for the fifth successive year, has honored the Veterans of Foreign Wars with a letter of approval and endorsement of their purpose that the people at large shall wear a poppy on Memorial day.

May 29 is official poppy day for the Veterans of Foreign Wars, in commending which President Coolidge has written as follows to the commander-in-chief of the organization:

The White House
Washington
March 19, 1926.

My dear Commander: The annual sale of poppies made by disabled ex-service men, throughout the country under the auspices of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, seems to me to reflect a particularly appealing sentiment of regard for the interest in the disabled ex-service men. It is calculated to perpetuate the one thoughts which have made the poppy so peculiarly symbolical of the services and the sacrifices of the men who gave so much that freedom might survive in this world.

It gives me pleasure to give my hearty endorsement to this worthy enterprise.

Very truly yours,
CALVIN COOLIDGE.

To the Commander-in-Chief, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

LOCKE SETS ANOTHER WORLD'S RECORD FOR 220 YD.

CHICAGO, May 23.—(AP)—Led by the fleet Roland Locke who set a new and equalled another world record, sons of the middle west carried off the laurels in competitions of collegiate track and field athletes in serious parts of the United States yesterday.

In six of the events held alike in gamon on the Atlantic seaboard and in the mid-west, the better performances were in the Missouri valley championships at the University of Nebraska. Three of the best records of the day were hung up in the Harvard-Yale dual meet at Cambridge, and four others, one of which equalled the performance at Cambridge, were made at the Princeton-California dual meet at Princeton.

Additionally, the best high hurdles time of the day and the mightiest hammer throw were made in the Michigan-Illinois dual big ten meet at Ann Arbor, giving the mid-west other comparative victories.

Locke was the outstanding performer of the day. Finally evading the wind which had been incident to his recent record breaking efforts, he sped 220 yards at Nebraska, in 20.7, recorded by a battery of official watches, clipping a tenth of a second off the world time of 20.8 previously held by Charlie Paddock. He had previously in the day equalled the world time for the century by sprinting the distance in 09.6, a tenth of a second slower than Paddock's time at Los Angeles last week which has not yet gone on the books.

INJURIES MAY CRIPPLE AMERICAN WALKER CUP TEAM

GIRFIELD, Scotland, May 23.—(AP)—Two casualties among the members of the Walker cup team may reduce the American chances in the British amateur golf championship, play in which will begin tomorrow. Jess Sweetser and Watts Gunn are suffering from bad knees and are under the care of Masseur.

Sweetser also has a touch of influenza, but says he will go to the tee tomorrow in shape to play. C. L. Humphreys, former English university star, a good match. Watts Gunn, having a bye, has until Tuesday afternoon to get in shape for his debut.

Most of the Americans spent a quiet, golfless Sunday. They attended the village church, then were luncheon guests at

A brown-eyed youth, hardly five feet two, tacked 2 by eight other clean cut youths, pitched his way into the hearts of 5,000 wildly cheering fans Saturday afternoon at the Academy campus when he shut out Bulkeley, the Academy's traditional rival, 10 to 0. The brown-eyed boy was Lloyd Jarvis who held the Bulkeley team in the hollow of his hand throughout nine innings of as brilliant baseball as an Academy team has ever played. Jarvis blanked Bulkeley with but two widely separated hits but his teammates were brilliant in their support of him.

RAY YERRINGTON

It has been many long years since an Academy team has known such a sweet victory made all the sweeter because of Bulkeley's 1 to 0 win of a week ago of which the Bulkeley team was highly and justly proud. Revenge was sweet and was administered with decided relish by the Academy team. Perfect baseball, yes, and even spectacular baseball was played by the stalwart wearers of the Red and game for hits. One was a drive to center field and the other was a drive close to second that Pheno Tombari made a brilliant stop on but was unable to recover in time to get his man at first.

Bulkeley was overwhelmed. Locke, who on the previous Saturday, had held the Academy team to one hit was batted unmercifully and with the falling of their pitching are the stronghold of Bulkeley also tottered and finally collapsed. Montali was rushed into the breach but he was not equal to the task of stopping the Academy and besides it left a hole at second base. As a last resort Petrosky was sent in but the damage was done. The collapse of the Bulkeley team is shown in the error column of the box score where nine errors are chalked against the Black and Orange.

Only once during the entire game did the Academy falter, this being in the first inning when a man reached third base only to die there. This was the only time during the game that a Bulkeley man got as far as second.

Lloyd Jarvis pitched brilliantly and no less brilliantly did his teammates respond. Ray Yerrington, the Academy star third sacker, who has been in a batting slump for the greater part of the season, suddenly came into his own. Ray more than made up for his failure to hit in previous games for he pounded out four singles and a scorching double in his five times at bat. Not only did Ray hit well but he fielded brilliantly making two sensational catches.

Sharing in the lime-light with Yerrington and Jarvis were Pheno Tombari and Cimy Cimikoski, both these youngsters playing as spectacular a game as any ever seen on the campus. Both made brilliant stops of what looked like sure hits and the catches made by these two were spectacular. Tombari would roam into left field to grab a high fly and then Cimy would pull one out of the clouds in right field besides taking care of the easy ones in the infield. Jerry Burke, captain of the Academy team, played a whale of a game at first base as did Mace Goldblatt behind the bat. The outfielders had little opportunity to shine as only two balls were hit to the outer gardens, besides Decker's hit over second base, and these were snagged by Hymie Sadinsky and Johnny Greene. Eddie Brewer had little to do in the outfield but his one hit in the second inning drove one of the runs across the plate.

"CIMMY" CIMIKOSKI

There was only one thing to mar the game and that was the collapse of the portable bleachers along the first base line. The bleachers, holding some four hundred fans, gave plenty of warning to those in them that they were going down which fact is largely responsible for no one being seriously injured. The first warning [illegible] when [illegible] and the fans [illegible] ers slowly [illegible] for the [illegible] fire. [illegible] serious injuries were expected, but on checking over the crowd in the stands it was found that only one boy was apparently injured. It was ascertained later that the boy was not seriously hurt but suffered only a mild shaking up and was more scared than hurt. One woman fainted which constituted the list of casualties.

The collapse of the bleachers failed to drive anyone from the game and the cheering section which was in the bleachers simply stood up and kept right on cheering, under the direction of Cheerleaders Jimmy Moore, Clarence Brewer and Ray Woods. Sergeant Matthew Delaney and his squad of police who had been aiding in the handling of the crowd, assisted in quieting the fans and seeing if any of the people on the stands were injured.

Bulkeley threw the only scare of the game in the first inning when the Academy team was a trifle nervous as they took the field. Gaetano, the first man to face Jarvis flied out to Tombari, the Academy shortstop making a nice running catch of the Bulkeley hitter's looping fly. Allen was hit by a pitched ball and went to second on a steal and starte. to steal third and was safe when Goldblatt dropped the ball. Montali was an easy strike out victim. Jarvis was a little wild and passed Briggs, the clean-up man for Bulkeley. Briggs went to second on the first pitched ball but died there when Shurts hit a weak roller to Jarvis for an easy out. This was Bulkeley's only threat although spectacular fielding kept the men off the bases.

The Academy threatened in the first inning but it was only a threat although it foretold what might be expected before the game was over. This prediction was true. Cimikoski singled off third man and went to second on Collins' passed ball. Sadinsky grounded out Allen to Gorton and Cimy went to third on the play. Jarvis hit an easy tap to Allen and Cimikoski was trapped between the bags. Burke forced Jarvis at second.

Again in the second inning the Academy had a man on third but could not score. After Tombari had flied out to Decker, Yerrington drove one through Allen for his first hit of the game. He then stole second but was held at third when Brewer singled to left. Brewer stole second. Goldblatt fanned and Greene flied out to Shurts.

Three runs crossed the plate in the third inning and the Academy supporters were wild with joy. Cimikoski was safe when Gorton mussed up a thrown ball. Cimy stole second but Sadinsky fanned. Jarvis walked and Cimy came home on Tombari's single to left field. Both Tombari and Jarvis advanced when Collins was guilty of another passed ball. Then came Yerrington. Ray stepped up on one of Locke's hooks and pounded it to left center for two bases, Jarvis and Tombari scoring. Yerrington was left stranded at second when Brewer fanned.

The fourth inning war uneventful for the Academy although Cimikoski was hit by a pitched ball. In the fifth after Jarvis had popped out to Gaetano who made a nice catch of the ball, Burke laced out a double to left field Tombari hit to Allen and was thrown out at first but Burke went to third Ray Yerrington who had accounted for two of the Academy runs came through for his third consecutive hit scoring Burke. Brewer forced Yerrington at second, Gaetano taking the ball on the bag.

In the sixth Green singled and got as far as third on Allen's error but was left there. The seventh inning was a big frame for the Academy six runs crossing the plate in this frame. Montali started the fireworks when he muffed Burke's pop fly in the infield. Tombari hit to Allen who catching the error fever heaved wild over Gorton's head and Burke went to third and Tombari to second. Then it was Ray Yerrington again. For the fourth time Ray hit solidly and safely and his crash to left field sent Burke and Tombari scurrying across the plate. This was the end of Locke and Montali was called in from second to the mound and Brennan went in to catch, Locke taking Montali's place. Yerrington stole on the first ball and went to third on a wild pitch, scoring a minute later on a passed ball. Brewer fanned. Goldblatt was hit by a pitched ball and stole second. Greene drew a pass and Cimikoski was also given a free ticket to first, filling the bases. Goldblatt scored when Brennan let another ball get away from him. Sadinsky grounded out but Greene scored on the play, Cimikoski going to third. Jarvis singled scoring Cimikoski. Burke fled out to Allen ending the inning and incidentally the scoring for the Academy. Yerrington hit safely for the fifth time in the eighth inning but it did not figure in the scoring. Yerrington's hits accounted for five runs.

As Jarvis threw out the last man in the ninth inning a victory drunk crowd rushed on the field and grabbing the victorious players paraded them around the field singing school songs and wildly cheering. Later in the evening there was a celebration at the campus and speeches were made by members of the team and Coach Brigham and others. The

TILDEN GIVES BRILLIANT EXHIBITION OF TENNIS AT NORWICH GOLF CLUB

Tennis enthusiasts were well repaid for their attendance at the exhibition given by William T. Tilden 2nd, world's ranking tennis player, at the Norwich Golf club on Sunday afternoon. Tilden in the opening singles exhibition defeated Arnold Jones of Providence, former Yale net star, and one of the ranking players of the country, 6-1, 6-4, 6-2. The second match was a doubles match with Tilden and Jones defeating Hobie Hyde and Lee Wiley of Hartford, New England doubles champion, 6-1, 6-2, 6-4, 6-2.

Tilden while not playing his usual smashing tournament game showed flashes of championship form and demonstrated that his is the right to the title of world's master tennis player. Playing with a strong wind sweeping the court from end to end, Tilden played brilliantly and his play at the net was a pretty exhibition of judgment and skill. Jones on the other hand while not as strong as Tilden was a worthy foe and gave the champion a stiff battle. The first set of the match went to deuce games twice and although Tilden won the set he had to display some snappy tennis to win his games.

The second set was the feature of the singles match and Jones in this set pushed Tilden to win. There was one deuce game in this set and at one time it looked as though the set might go to deuce Tilden several times during this set displayed the smashing service for which he is famous but frequently his ball went into the net, due largely to the fact that he was serving against a stiff wind. The third set was an easy one for the champion. Tilden taking the set in straight games. Jones was far outclassed in this set and Tilden was playing the best tennis of the afternoon.

The doubles match, created even more interest than the singles and the New England champions put up a strong game, especially Wiley, the fast left-hander who played a brilliant game at the net but was hampered by the wind in his peculiar form of serving. Hyde played well and his serving was superior to his partner's but his back court and net game was not as strong. Tilden and Jones played steady tennis although Tilden injected some of his stage humor into the match.

The feature of this match was the third set which was won by the New England champions, 6-4, brilliant tennis was played in this set especially by Wylie who went to the net several times to smother some of Tilden's bullet-like strokes for points. The national champion and Jones evened the set at four all but the New England pair took the next two games for the only set lost by Tilden.

A gallery of about 300 saw the match and were well pleased with the brilliant tennis displayed by Tilden and Jones and also by the two Hartford boys. Joseph Thurston of Hartford was the referee of the exhibitions. Tilden was scheduled to play four local players at once but after the doubles exhibition felt rather fatigued and will put on this stunt today.

This afternoon at the Golf club courts Tilden will play a five set exhibition match against Alfred H Chapin Jr., of Springfield one of the ranking players of the country, a player who has recently returned from a southern campaign where he has won several section titles during the winter resort season.

The exhibition this afternoon is scheduled for 4:30 o'clock and there will be no admission charged.

CUBS WIN UPHILL BATTLE IN EIGHTH

CHICAGO, May 23.—(AP)—Fighting an uphill battle all the way, the Chicago Cubs need reinforcements to score seven runs in the eighth inning today and defeated Boston, 14 to 8, giving them the series three games to two. Thirty two players got in the game, four pitchers working on the mound for each team.

Hack Wilson started the Cubs' rally in the fifth with one of the longest home run drives ever made in Cubs' park, the ball hitting the score board in deep center. Score:

Sunday afternoon the J. B. Martin team opened its 1926 season with a victory over the Socony team of New London, 6 to 1. The game was close until the eighth inning when the Velvetmen scored four runs on hits, coupled with several Socony errors.

Lemieux pitched airtight ball, allowing but four scattered hits and should have scored a shut-out victory but for a wild throw over second. Taylor also pitched well but loose fielding aided largely in the Velvetmen's victory. E. Murphy led the attack for the local with three doubles and a single while F. Gley hit for the circuit.

ERRORS LOSE TWO GAMES FOR THE RIVERVIEW CLUB

Errors figured largely in the two defeats suffered by the Riverview club over the week end, the locals losing to the New England Oil team at the State hospital 3 to 2 on Saturday and again on Sunday at New Britain to the Falcons, 5 to 4. Riverview outhit their opponents in both games on Saturday, getting seven hits to five and on Sunday 11 to 7.

Riverview started off strong in Saturday's game scoring two runs in the first inning but the Neos tied the count in the second and won out in the seventh. West pitched for Riverview and was effective but loose fielding lost him the game.

Sunday's encounter was a see-saw affair but again in the seventh the opposition won out. Errors accounted for at least two of the runs in Sunday's game. The scores:

MANY NORWICH PEOPLE ATTEND WESTERLY WEDDING

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., May 23—Synagogue Sharah Bedek (Gates Ajar) on Union street, Westerly, was the scene of a brilliant and largely attended wedding on Sunday evening at 6 o'clock, when Miss Victoria Leah Ribner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Ribner, of 121 Canal street, was united in marriage with Herman Robert Etelman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Etelman, of 197 Canal street, both of Westerly. The officiating clergyman was Rev. Solomon Kessler and following the ceremony a reception and dinner was held at the Wequetequock casino.

A gown of white georgette, heavily embroidered with beads and rhinestones, was worn by the bride and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor was Miss Bella F. Ribner, sister of the bride, and her dress was of pink beaded georgette, trimmed with silver and her bouquet, pink roses and pink sweet peas. There were six bridesmaids, the Misses Viola Litman, Sarah Etelman, Betty Itchkowitz and Gertrude Solovetzik, all of Westerly; Annabelle Schumans of New London and Belle Slosberg of Bridgeport. The best man was Jerome D. Solomon, a friend of the groom, and the ushers were Harold Ribner, Abraham Ribner, Theodore Markoff, Dr. Archie I. Fain, Edward Leibovits and George S. Litman. Westerly fire alarm, No. 33, a call for an out of the district fire, was sounded soon after 11 o'clock last Friday night for a fire of undetermined origin which destroyed the cottage house, occupied by John Diswoodie, and family beyond Bradford, in the town of Hopkinton.

The fire was discovered by members of the family soon after they had retired by the clouds of smoke which issued from the lower floor. The Fox-Ahrens pumper and force of Westerly firemen responded but the flames were so far advanced that they could be of little assistance in preventing its complete destruction. Two small children of the household were cared for by neighbors while Mr. and Mrs. Diswoodie directed their efforts to the salvaging of a few valuables.

MUCH INTEREST IN CASE BEFORE TOWN COURT TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, May 23—Considerable interest centers this morning in a hearing that is to be held before Judge W. Penner Woodward in the town court in the case of the state vs. Wilfred Parr of Norwich, who will face a charge of driving a motor car while under the influence of an intoxicant. The case was continued from Monday of last week.

The particular interest in this case arises from the fact that Parr denies that he was intoxicated at the time he was taken into custody here a week ago Sunday night. He was in an eating place and the attention of the police was attracted to him as he drove off in his car. He failed to stop when Night Officer John Gebert blew his whistle for him to do so. State officers who happened to be nearby assisted in bringing about Parr's arrest. In due course Parr was taken before a physician with a view to determining whether or not Parr was intoxicated. The state today will contend that this was the case, but Parr, on his own account, is said to have gone to another physician in a nearby town, immediately after his release under bond, and he will produce that physician in court today to testify that he (Parr) was not intoxicated. Parr has retained counsel and will have an array of witnesses to testify that he was not intoxicated when taken into custody. The state will present another group of witnesses to testify that the accused was in an intoxicated condition.

This combination of circumstances is what makes the Parr case of more than ordinary interest. It is rare that a motorist charged with intoxication, contests the case. The nice little question of one expert opinion—a physician's opinion—as to what constitutes intoxication in the eyes of the law against another and opposite opinion from an expert source arises in this case. Both of these opinions will be supported by groups of witnesses, one group to testify against the accused, the other group in support of his contention of sobriety.

The case is scheduled for 10 o'clock. Attorney Harry E. Back will appear for Parr, Prosecuting Attorney Arthur G. Bill for the state.

Parr previously has been found guilty of driving a motor vehicle while he was intoxicated, but, of course, that has nothing to do with the circumstances leading to his arrest in the particular instance that will claim the attention of the town court this morning.

WINDHAM COUNTY MEN WIN ATHLETIC CONTEST

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, May 23—Windham county's amateur athletes, competing at Andrus field, Wesleyan university, Middletown, Saturday, in the state Y meet won the highest number of points defeating the teams of the other counties of the state in a highly competitive and intensely interesting series of contests that would compare well, for records made, with similar meets between college teams.

Adams, Fulton and Spencer of Killingly, Parker of Brooklyn, Speck of Woodstock, Winslow and Childs of Putnam and Chubbuck of Thompson all figured brilliantly in compiling points that brought victory to Windham county. Gordon Gale also contributed to the showing made by Windham county in taking points in the senior high jump. Chubbuck broke the shot-put record and Winslow dazzled the competitors in the event by turning in a 10 second performance in the 100-yard dash, while Speck made that same distance in 10.1. All were agreed that these weer stellar performances for amateur athletes competing in such a meet as that of Saturday.

Windham county now has two victories to its credit in its quest for permanent possession of the state trophy. In this respect it is tied with Fairfield county, while Litchfield county is credited with one victory. Another win by Windham county will give it permanent possession of the trophy.

Of interest here and in Brooklyn is the resignation of Sherwood B. Potter as treasurer of the Berlin (Conn.) Savings bank, a $6,000,000 institution. Mr. Potter, formerly with the Brooklyn Savings bank and the Windham County National bank in Danielson, had been filling the treasurership at Berlin the past few months. A Hartford paper had the following about Mr. Potter resigning and returning to fill the place of an examiner with the state banking commission.

The call of his old associations and duties as an examiner with the state banking commission is given by Representative Sherwood B. Potter of Brooklyn as his reason for resigning as treasurer of the Berlin Savings bank after having held the position a few months. His resignation will be accepted by the directors at a meeting Monday, President Frank L. Wilcox of Berlin said last night, but Mr. Potter left the bank a month ago, it was learned.

Major Wilcox, who recently retired as chairman of the board of directors of the United States Security Trust company of this city, after having been president of the Fidelity Trust company, prior to its merger with the former company, has been acting treasurer at the Berlin bank for the month. He said last night that as Mr. Potter came to the bank on trial and now see fit to leave, the directors will no doubt accept the resignation.

State Bank Commissioner John B. Byrne confirmed a report Saturday that Mr. Potter will return to the department. The commissioner said he was always glad to be able to re-employ an experienced man, familiar with the routine of the department. Mr. Potter served as an examiner, following his services in the 1925 legislature, when he represented his native town of Brooklyn until his appointment to the Berlin position in December in which he succeeded the late Representative Francis Deming, one of his bank committee colleagues.

Mr. Potter has stated that there was no reason for his leaving the Berlin Savings bank other than a greater love for the state banking department work.

Representative Potter is a native of Brooklyn, about 45 years old. He was in the employ of the Brooklyn Savings bank for three years and was later in the grocery and meat business in Norwich. In 1920 he returned to the Brooklyn bank, where he remained for three more years. He was a bond salesman for E. M. Rollins & Sons at the time of his election as representative from Brooklyn in 1924.

The Berlin bank is one of the strongest banks in the state. The total assets are $6,000,000 and the surplus more than $300,000.

Sunday afternoon the funeral of Kinear Malley, 8 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Malley, was held from their home in Dayville with services conducted by Rev. Edward J. Shelley, M. S., at St. Joseph's church in that place at 2 o'clock. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

The child was fatally injured Wednesday evening of last week when hit by a car driven by Louis Dumas of Goodyear in what has been described as an unavoidable accident, in Dayville. After being attended by a physician the child was taken to the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam and died there during Thursday night. A fractured skull and fractured jaw were injuries noted after the child had been struck by the car.

All plans for the week in this vicinity are being pointed toward the observance of Memorial day on Sunday and Monday next. Some communities hereabouts will hold their observance of Memorial day on Sunday and Monday next. Some communities hereabouts will hold their observance of the day on Sunday, the 30th, although the majority of them are fixed for Monday, the 31st which will be a holiday throughout this territory, with mills and other manufactories closed and business generally suspended for the day. Final meetings of committees charged with the arrangement of the exercises to be held are arranged for this week.

It would appear that week end dancing is the most popular of all diversions this spring. Saturday night found hundreds of people at Wildwood park. There was another jam and over-capacity crowd at Bonneau's dance hall at Killingly Center, this an opening dance at a new building. The next week end will see another outpouring of dancers, with the Moosup Pond Casino holding its opening of the season.

RELAY PUMPING TEST PROVED VERY SUCCESSFUL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, May 23—Chief A. P. Woodward of the fire department had an interesting time at North Scituate Saturday afternoon watching the experiment of relay pumping, through three pumpers, to subdue a fire that had been set in an old house donated for the purposes of the trial. The pumpers worked well and the blaze in the house was subdued with sufficient promptitude to indicate that relay pumping will be a great thing in fighting fires at points where the water has to be brought from distances up to a third or half a mile. In this case the distance was about 2,000 feet.

This is the rush week of the year for the florists. They were beginning as early as Sunday to feel the pressure of the Memorial period business. Wednesday, Friday and Saturday of this week will be Ember days and will be so observed by members of St. James' parish.

Scores of Polish residents of Danielson, other nearby towns and Providence, will be at St. James' church this (Monday) morning to attend a solemn nuptial high mass at which Edward Borhart of Providence and Miss Jennie Luteck of this place will be united in marriage. The bride will be attended by six bridesmaids.

Four new members were received at Saturday evening's meeting of the Windham County Kennel club at Joseph Birch's place of business. The club discussed plans for holding another bench show at the Brooklyn fair in the fall. Last fall this feature of the fair was so good and so pleasing that it was decided to repeat and enlarge it this year.

At 6.05 Saturday evening as a "3" call the Captain Put Engine company went out for a grass fire burning near Mechanic street. The affair amounted to nothing and there was no damage.

W. Irving Bullard of Boston was a visitor in Danielson on Saturday.

The Ladies' Reading circle will meet this (Monday) afternoon with Mrs. E. E. Allen of North Main street.

Hundreds of poppies were sold here Saturday by members of the American Legion auxiliary and assistant workers. The public appeared to enjoy giving to such a worthy cause as was expressed by the poppy sale.

Night Officer John Gebert returned to duty Saturday evening after being absent on sick leave.

LEAVING DANIELSON FOR POSITION IN PUTNAM BANK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, May 23—It was announced today that J. Dyer Potter, assistant treasurer of the Brooklyn Savings bank of Danielson, had resigned to take the treasurship of the Cargill Trust company at Putnam succeeding Clarence A. Boyce, who is to become treasurer of the newly organized West Hartford Bank and Trust company, organized by Roy T. H. Barnes, and associates. Mr. Potter's resignation here is effective June 15th and he will assume his new duties in Putnam about July 1st, when Mr. Boyce will leave for Hartford.

Mr. Potter, a native of Brooklyn, is a graduate of Killingly high school in the class of 1905. With his father John Potter and his brother, Sherwood B. Potter he was in the grocery and grain business in Norwich for a number of years up to the World war. He enlisted in the United States navy and upon being discharged from the service he came to Brooklyn, where he was later assistant paymaster at the mill of the Quinebaug company. About four years ago he became a teller in the Brooklyn Savings bank and was elected assistant treasurer in July 1924. Mr. Potter is a Mason, a member of the Eastern Star, Brooklyn grange, American Legion, Putnam Country club and various other organizations.

The Cargill Trust company was organized about 18 months ago and has had a phenomenal growth starting with a paid in capital of $100,000 and a surplus of $50,000. At the end of its first six months of business its earnings paid all expenses and also produced ample revenue for a dividend at the rate of 5 per cent per annum. In the year that has since elapsed the bank has had a phenomenal growth and it is now firmly established.

Tent caterpillars are already wrecking many of the trees in the village. The scrub choke cherry trees are alive with them and they easily find their way to other trees. PUTNAM

NEW FIRE BOX GIVEN TEST WITHIN ONE HOUR

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, May 23—Two new fire alarm stations have just been installed. Box No. 43 is at Woodstock avenue and Milton street, the latter running south from the avenue near the Daddy Silk Mill.

No. 113 is at the lower end of South Main street near the home of Charles Smith. It was hooked up Saturday afternoon and was in use an hour later to call the department to help extinguish a brush fire that burned over five acres. The garage of Carl Hopkins caught fire from the flames but no damage was done.

Charles T. Thayer, superintendent of the fire alarm telegraph system calls attention to the fact that the alarm from box No. 113 is apt to be confused with No. 23 or No. 3 unless close attention is given when it is sounded.

TONIGHT'S MEETING TO BE ONE OF JUBILATION

PUTNAM, May 23—The annual meeting and banquet of the Putnam Chamber of Commerce which will be held at the Putnam Inn on Monday evening will be somewhat of jubilation, in view of the fact that the town has voted to have a revaluation of property for taxation purposes, a measure which has been strongly advocated by that body.

An attractive program has been arranged by the entertainment committee to be given during the supper, which begins at eight o'clock. The business meeting will follow the supper, when the reports of the secretary and treasurer will be read and officers for the coming year will be elected. As it is a new thing in this section of the state little is known of what kind of machinery is to be used or the number of employes that will be used.

The mill at Sprucedale has not been in operation for several years but was used for the manufacture of twine and cotton yarns. A SPECIAL TRADE-IN SALE

Values Beyond Compare in the Tire Industry

Now is the time to buy your General tires for the year. Take advantage of our Trade-in Sale.

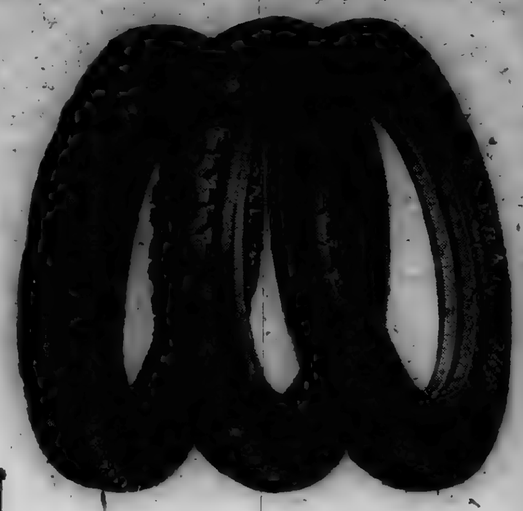
You can get going on Generals right now without sacrificing a single mile of the wear left in your old tires.

Our Trade-in Sale gives you an advantage over today's tire prices. In this sale we offset the cost by making special allowances on your old tires.

We are going to take into consideration the fact that when the high cost of rubber caused tire prices to rise, it also increased the value of the tires already on your car.

You can cash in that increased value by trading in those old tires now.

And plus that, they have a special trade-in value with us if they are tires you put into use before last September.



Reproductions from Saturday Evening Post, Collier's and Literary Digest, showing General's stand against the growing practice of substituting reclaimed rubber for new rubber in tires.

You can't save rubber by using less of it

BY W. O'NEIL, PRESIDENT OF THE GENERAL TIRE & RUBBER COMPANY, AKRON, OHIO

IN the news of the day practically every statement regarding rubber conservation supports the idea that rubber can be saved by using a few pounds less of it in a tire. This means substituting cheaper compounds, a growing practice that is not only short sighted but extravagantly wasteful. It is as fundamentally wrong as the subterfuge of putting sand in sugar or water in milk.

Putting shoddy or reclaimed rubber in tires does not save rubber. It reduces the cost of the tire several dollars but at the same time, by diluting the quality of the entire rubber structure, it takes out two-thirds of the wear.

This goes deeper than the tread rubber. It affects the quality throughout in the important rubber cushions that insulate and protect the costly fabric carcass. In addition the blowing out of inner tubes must be considered. This means more trouble on the road and the buying of more tubes.

Such saving of a few pounds of rubber in making a tire gives the consumer a negligible cut in his initial tire cost but a greatly increasing running cost. Using three sets of tires and tubes to go the distance one set of the best quality will travel, certainly does not save rubber.

The way to conserve rubber is to use it in whatever generous quantities are required to manufacture a tire that lowers the owner's cost per mile by giving the longest possible wear.

A policy of building more miles into a tire does more for rubber conservation than any efforts to save rubber by using less of it.

It's the second 10,000 miles that makes the big hit.

No matter how much or how little your present tires have been used, it will pay you to attend this Trade-in Sale.

As exclusive distributors of the General Tire, we are in the proud position of having a product that has not been tampered with.

There is no reclaimed rubber used in the General Tire, carcass or tread. This rigid maintenance of the same standard of quality as always has cost General a tremendous figure.

But the commendation coming from the press and the public, from bankers and business men everywhere, proves that General makes no mistake in keeping faith with public ideals, in sticking to the highest principles of manufacture.

It is such sound policies as this that in just ten years have brought this tire into foremost rank in nation-wide car-owner and commercial-user preference.

And now, with the quality of the General Tire more outstanding than ever before, we want more and more new customers to get acquainted with Generals—to get started on the tire that will hold their trade for life by sheer merit of unmatched quality and by delivering the longest mileage ever heard of in a tire.

We want every car owner in our city and vicinity to know about the General Tire. It stands so completely in a class by itself and is so sure to hold for years every customer starting with us now, that we are going to make it worth every man's while to come in during this Trade-in Sale.

The Big EXTRA ADVANTAGES only Generals will give you

Mileage Incomparable

So many instances of the second 10,000 miles, and even the third, or more, that you hear our customers talking about it wherever you go.

Riding Comfort Unequaled

Because of General's low-pressure leadership in all sizes, both regulars and balloons, you really know the meaning of low-pressure comfort after you have taken your first ride on Generals.

Car Economy

The saving to the life of the motor and the car itself is due not only to General's low-pressure protection of body and mechanical parts, but also the minimum rolling-resistance in the tires, which makes every ounce of the motor's power count for the most and gets it over the hills with the least effort. It adds months and even years to the life of the motor itself.

Gasoline Saving

Due to the same feature of less rolling-resistance, you save gasoline when you ride on Generals. Sometimes the saving is as high as 20 per cent.

Trade in Your Tires for General 6-ply Balloons

Owners of the heavier cars now realize the tremendous advantages of the General 6-ply balloon—hundreds are changing to this improved balloon tire.

To run on General 6-ply balloons is to know real tire comfort and satisfaction—more mileage—no more punctures than regular-size tires—the greatest riding comfort you ever experienced.

The GENERAL Tire sells on its reputation, its superior qualities are undisputed; ask your friends who use GENERALS.

NEW HAVEN DEAF MUTE ARRESTED AT NEW LONDON ON A SERIOUS CHARGE

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 24—Morris Sinclair, about 24, residing at 200 York avenue, New Haven, was arrested late Saturday afternoon by Patrolman Clarence Wells, charged with indecent assault upon the eight year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Halyburton, 46 Willetts avenue. He is a deaf mute and is being held a prisoner for hearing in the police court Monday morning, in default of a surety on his bond of $500. Sinclair was in possession of a Chevrolet automobile, the machine bearing New York registration, but the man did not have either operator's license, registration, although he declared that both were in clothing in a suit case found in the car. The clothing was searched, but neither document was found. The police are inclined to believe that the car was stolen by Sinclair, it has been placed in a garage pending decision whether or not the car has been stolen.

Sinclair was about the streets yesterday afternoon selling postal cards and about 4 o'clock drove the car to Riverview avenue where he parked it. He then went from house to house and he offered his wares for sale. He was admitted to the Halyburton home and when he supposedly departed was followed by the Halyburton child to the hallway. Mrs. Halyburton believed that the man had departed from the house until she detected an unusual sound in the hall and opening the door, she observed Sinclair taking liberties with the child, the latter's clothing being disarranged. Sinclair left the place hastily, but he did not go to his automobile. Mrs. Halyburton communicated with the police, relating what had occurred and Patrolman Wells was sent in the police speed car to attempt Sinclair's arrest. Going to the Halyburton home, the mother of the girl furnished a description of the man and he was found a short time later on Willetts avenue. Sinclair did not disclose at that time that he had an automobile, but about 9 o'clock he revealed that fact. The car was then taken to a garage. In the dress suit case that was found in the machine there were only a few articles or apparel and a powder puff.

SILK STRIKERS TAUGHT PROVISIONS OF THE LAW

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 24—The Bloom silk mill is having trouble with its employes, but there are indications that it will be settled before long, for some of the strikers, or those who were idle because of the strike, are returning to work. The strikers are weavers and their action in quitting work has forced idleness on the other employes. The fact that some of the idle returned to work aroused bad feeling among the strikers and they resorted to acts that were regarded by the police as beyond the permits of law; they interfered with the returning workers Friday and two of the strikers were arrested and presented in the police court Saturday, as offenders against the peace of the community.

The men arrested are Louis Lombardi and Paul Loverdi. In court the prosecutor had an interview with the accused and acquainted them with the provisions of the law. That talk was beneficial for it led to the prosecutor requesting the court to continue the case without a hearing, till the 19th of next month that it might be determined whether the strike was to be carried on in an orderly way and if workers who desired employment at the mill might follow their inclinations. The returning fellers are understood to be apprentice weavers. They desire to go to work and are satisfied with the wages and the conditions prevailing in the mill. Prosecutor Hollandersky, in open court read a decision by the United States supreme court which covered the practice of picketting at establishments where strikes are in progress and which informs strikers what they must not do and what they were permitted to do. In the event of labor troubles. The opinion is that interference with those who wanted to work will not be tolerated under the law. Conversation as to wages and conditions are permitted, but not to the extent that persons shall be stopped in the street and interfered with in any way. They are to be permitted to go about their lawful occupation and to be protected in that pursuit. The strikers held a meeting this afternoon in the hall at 130 Bank street and there they talked matters over, though it is not understood that they will return to work. The management of the mill has refused to grant the strikers any increase in wages or to make changes that the strikers demanded.

Mildred Clough, 17, of 678 Bank St., was arrested at 3.30 o'clock this morning by Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolman John Foley, charged with lascivious carriage. The girl will be in the police court Monday morning. She had been observed of late about the streets late at night and in the company of numerous male companions.

Starr and Charles E. Gardner. Burial was in Goat Neck cemetery, Waterford.

A Dodge touring car in charge of Edward Olsen, 110 Willetts avenue, and owned by the youth's father, was stolen Friday night. Olsen operated the car to Chapman Technical High school where he absented himself a long time and upon his return he discovered the automobile had been stolen. The police were notified as were the Groton and Centerbrook state police and the authorities of Norwich, Westerly, New Haven and Hartford.

Patrolman Timothy Sullivan reported Saturday night the existence of a danger spot on Garfield avenue, near the corner of Connecticut avenue. A large quantity of sand has been deposited near the gutter and beneath shade trees, but a light was not displayed to warn motorists of the danger.

William Sergeron, 21 Bank street and Earl Moyer, 33 Union street, were at Ocean Beach last evening and before they left they found themselves in the clutches of the law. The pair had been drinking and when they left a trolley car they accosted three girls when the latter entered Danceland. The men were refused admission because of their intoxicated condition. Officer William Babcock on duty there endeavored to induce the men to leave, in fact, the pair insisted upon being arrested. They were accommodated, brought to the police station and locked up. They will not be presented in the police court Monday morning, however, for the girls refused to appear against the men and their identity was not established that they might be summoned as witnesses.

He was later released upon furnishing a surety on his bond of $50 for his appearance in the police court Monday morning. Higgins appeared at his home about 1.30 o'clock and was intoxicated. He created a disturbance and when he could not be quieted Higgins' son requested the arrest of his father.

George Potter, 27, of 116 Shaw street was arrested Saturday night by Patrolman Braxton Hill. Potter was found near his home in a condition that endangered his safety.

HIS THREATS TO SHOOT GET R. E. LEE ARRESTED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 23—Robert E. Lee, colored, 25 Douglass street, and Josh H. Hubbard, also colored of the same address, were taken into custody this evening, the former on a charge of threatening to shoot and kill, and the latter for drunkenness. Both are being held for hearing in the police court Monday morning as neither could obtain a surety on his bonds for appearance in court. Because of the charge against Lee, his bond is fixed at $500.

Hubbard appeared at the police station shortly after 7 o'clock. He had been drinking, but he declared that while he and Lee were at the residence of Robert Jones, also colored, 16 John street, a notorious place, Hubbard and Lee engaged in an altercation, which finally became serious and more serious when Lee is declared to have pulled a revolver from his pocket and threatened to send a bullet into Hubbard's body. Patrolman Frank Philopena and Motorcycle Officer Augustus Ray were sent to the John street house where Lee was found and arrested. No weapon was found on Lee when searched at the police station. Both Lee and Hubbard have police records for various offenses.

Herman Siff, 33 North Bank street, complained to the police late Friday night that a thief had entered the store conducted by his mother at 33, and that $2.25 had been stolen. Siff stated that when the store was closed, he and his mother went for a short walk and upon their return they found the store door, which could only be opened from the inside, ajar. Patrolman Frank Philopena was assigned to the case and reported that the thief had entered the store through an open window in a wall that separates the store from the lodging apartments of the Siff place and that the money had been taken from a glass jar on a shelf. Mrs. Siff also conducts a rooming house, the theft evidently having been committed by a lodger in the house for it could not have been done except by some one who was very familiar with the movements of the woman.

Rubber Tires

The development, within a comparatively short period of years, of the modern automobile, with its present stamina and durability, has been one of the outstanding developments of this marvelous age in which we are living, says Dick Quinns Tire Service, local distributor of the General Tire and Rubber company.

Each part which has its place in the completed motor car has a story in itself, but I think we will all agree, especially while driving over an unusually rough and rocky road, that the present rubber tire is the crowning achievement of the automobile industry.

Being identified with the tire industry, and having closely watched the constant improvement that has taken place, I get the tire man's angle as well as a knowledge of the tire user's experience, and I can not help but occasionally looking back over the short span of years and wondering if the American people really appreciate the improvement that has been made in the manufacture of automobile tires—an article now a necessity to nearly every one in the country. I recall the "mileage guarantee," set at 5,000 miles. I remember that the tire makers broadcasted that announcement as a remarkable step forward as giving the linen-clustered and goggled motorist of those days a pledge of satisfaction. That was the day of the fabric tire when the funny strips in the daily papers gave considerable attention to Pa Motorist marooned on a dusty or muddy road laboriously changing a set of clinchers, while Ma Motorist set in the tonneau taunting him with ribald and sarcastic suggestions. Not so today. This is the era of the cord tire, and the "balloon," those huge low-pressure tires which add riding comfort and other qualities to the automobile as well as giving mileage four or five times as much as the good tire of only a few years ago. In fact, today, the tire is the automobile accessory that causes the least worry. I keep in touch with the general factory at Akron and know what they are doing to build additional mileage into their tires, and have the assurance of the officials of the general organization that will be no step backward, such as for instance, the use of reclaimed or shoddy rubber in order to conserve the use of crude rubber. The position that Mr. W. O'Neil, president of the General Tire and Rubber company and one of the outstanding leaders of the industry, takes is that the only practicable way to save rubber is by putting more of it into tires, thus building longer wear into the carcass and tread.

Service from tires can be counted on nowadays with assurance of its being delivered, and when I return from the factories of the General Tire and Rubber company at Akron, Ohio, the tire center of the world, the romance of it all comes to me. There I see carload after carload, tons and tons of rubber delivered from the other side of the world; where it has has come, drop by drop, slowly but surely from the trees of the plantation, mysteriously supplied by nature not only to play a part in modern transportation but to make that remarkable achievement—the automobile—possible.

Another of the world's miracles!

Through it runs the story of a woman's faithlessness and the romance of a young fireman and a girl. The cast consists of Helene Chadwick, William Russell, Richard C. Travers, John T. Old Gold

Cigarette smokers need no longer have the stained fingers that have annoyed them for many years, according to the Experts of the Lorillard company, the tobacco firm whose cigarette Old Gold is now the sensation of New England.

Fast-burning, hot cigarettes that stain the fingers are a thing of the past, the experts of the Lorillard company announce and chemists and blending experts who are responsible for the tests that brought about Old Gold have discovered that the secret of a cigarette, that leaves no trace on the fingers is a slow-burning cool smoke such as Old Gold now provides for smokers.

Thousands of women smokers, to whom a cigarette is now a frequent joy, found that unless they used a holder—an accessory that frequently was misplaced when it was wanted—that smoking stained their fingers with the distasteful yellow that marred their idea of feminine beauty. Old Gold its makers claim, just can't stain a finger no matter how frequently a smoke is enjoyed for its process of blending has made certain that it burns slowly and cool and the smoker has no use for pumice and nail brushes for the stain just isn't there.

Broadway Theatre

After weeks of dickering with United Artists corporation by letter, telegram and in person, the management of the Broadway theatre definitely announces that Samuel Goldwyn's romantic epic "Stella Dallas," adapted from the famous novel by Mrs. Olive Higgins Prouty, will open for a limited engagement, starting next Sunday.

The management also recommends "Stella Dallas" as one film that will live in the memory after it is seen. It is great in story, cast and superb in its heartwringing appeal.

"Stella Dallas" has had an amazing vogue as a popular story, then as a novel, and later as a stage play in which Mrs. Leslie Carter starred. The theme is already known to millions for its distinction and power.

This is the production that has just closed a seven months' run at the Apollo theatre in New York city, at prices that ranged to $2 a seat; in spite of the price over 500,000 people came to see it. Popular prices will prevail here.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

What the critics are pleased to call "a typical Broadway cast" will be seen tonight at the Broadway theatre when Herman Gantvoort presents the new Court Savage play "They All Want Something". The play was adapted from the book, "The Dark Chapter", by E. J. Rath, author of "The Nervous Wreck."

It is a hilarious comedy of life in Connecticut—Ridgefield, Connecticut, if one can find it on the map—and deals with the fad of a lady of ample waist and ample means who manages to create situations that she can never get out of—apparently.

"They All Want Something" is due for a New York premier early in June and will open in one of the 48th street houses a few weeks after its visit to Norwich. Courtenay Savage, the author of the play, will be here during the engagement as well as many play scouts, well known players and many of New York's leading producers, all eager to get an early glimpse of what promises to be another tremendous comedy hit. Its vivacity and sprightliness indicate a big summer success for this latest Gantvoort production.

Breed Theatre

"Kiki" came to town last night to delight audiences at the Breed theatre. "Kiki" means Norma Talmadge, for the versatile star and perennial screen favorite has brought the famous Paris street girl to the silver sheet.

Norma, surrounded by a brilliant cast, enacts the role of a Paris street gamin with the soul of a "great lady." She is a harum-scarum character, unused to the good things of life until she meets a theatre manager (Ronald Colman), who partly through sympathy and partly through love, takes the girl into his luxurious home.

The devil-may-care miss, who is as nimble with her fists as she is with her tongue, has a love rival (Gertrude Astor). In fact, Miss Astor, in the picture, is Ronald's fiancee, and how Norma wins him away from the richly dressed stage favorite and foils the gentlemanly villain (Marc MacDermott) is highly diverting.

"Kiki" is picturized on a lavish scale. A section of modern Paris, including cafes, shops, theatres, etc., has been faithfully reproduced in Miss Talmadge's latest picture produced by Joseph M. Schenck for First National.

County W. C. T. U. Institute

The Sudden Engagement

To see a bully put to flight
To most folk is a pleasant sight.
—Old Mother Nature.

Reddy turned and went back down the little path

Reddy Fox is something of a bully. He always has been. He always will be. It runs in the blood, as the saying is. As a rule, bullies are not very brave. They pretend to be, but it is mostly pretending. So it is with Reddy Fox.

When Reddy had thought that Johnny Chuck was alone, Reddy had immediately begun to bluff. That is, he had threatened to attack Johnny Chuck. He had danced about him, now and then making little rushes at him and pretending to be very bold and terrible. He hoped to get a chance to catch Johnny in a fair fight. But when Jimmy Skunk stepped out he changed the whole situation.

Jimmy Skunk's big plumy tail is a sort of danger signal to those who know Jimmy. As long as that tail hangs rather low, there is nothing to fear from Jimmy Skunk. When that tail begins to go up, then it is time to watch out. From the moment that Jimmy appeared Reddy Fox had kept his eye on that tail. As Jimmy advanced, Reddy had backed away. With every step that Jimmy Skunk took that tail went up a little; so that finally it was dangerously high. It said to Reddy Fox just as plainly as Jimmy could have said it in words, "If you don't look out, Reddy Fox, you'll be in trouble." Reddy understood it perfectly. He did his best not to show that he was afraid. In every word he said and every move he made he was most polite. No one can be more polite than can Reddy Fox.

"Were you on your way home, Reddy?" inqured Jimmy Skunk, moving along toward Reddy in the most matter of fact way.

"No," said Reddy. "No, I am on my way to meet Mrs. Reddy."

"Don't let us keep you," said Jimmy, moving forward again. "You mustn't be late for your engagement. If there is anything I dislike, it is to have any one who has an appointment with me, late."

"Oh," said Reddy, "I won't be late. There's no hurry." He was edging around so as to get behind Johnny Chuck. You see, he thought he could take Johnny at a disadvantage and he was willing to run some risk for the sake of doing this. Johnny seemed so intent in watching Jimmy that he didn't appear to be watching Reddy at all.

Jimmy Skunk saw this and he grinned to himself. He knew just what Reddy was hoping to do. So Jimmy pretended to notice nothing and gradually lowered his tail. Just off to one side lay an old sheet of bark. Jimmy at once thought of fat beetles. He turned his back on Reddy Fox and ambled over to that piece of bark. He turned it over. Sure enough, under it were two fat beetles. Now, ordinarily Jimmy Skunk moves slowly and some people have the idea that he cannot move quickly. They should have seen him with those two fat beetles. As quickly as you could wink your eye Jimmy had a black paw on each fat beetle. You know he has a liking for fat beetles.

Reddy Fox, meanwhile, had gotten somewhat behind Johnny Chuck. Johnny was watching Jimmy Skunk catch those beetles. Reddy saw this and also saw that he might possibly jump on Johnny Chuck before Johnny could turn. What Reddy didn't see was that Jimmy Skunk was watching him from the corner of an eye all the time. Just as Reddy gathered his feet for a swift jump, Jimmy Skunk abruptly turned and ran toward Reddy, and Jimmy's tail was high over his back. For a second Reddy didn't move. Then he grinned. It was a sickly sort of grin.

"I'm sorry to have to leave you so soon," said Reddy, "but I've just recalled that Mrs. Reddy told me to be early, and I really must hurry in order to keep the engagement. Good by, Jimmy. Good by, Johnny. I hope I'll meet you again soon."

Then, pretending to be very dignified, Reddy Fox turned and went back down the little path. Jimmy Skunk looked at Johnny and grinned. "Reddy's engagement was rather sudden, don't you think?" said he.

POETRY

Cobble Stones

Oh, builders, when you change our town, replacing old with new,
Please let a few old crooked cobbled streets still wander through!

Please let the dappled cobbles lie as they so long have lain
If only for the grass that springs between them after rain,
If only for the tiny flowers, too small to notice much,
That blossom in the crannies, (cobs a poet sang of such!)—
If only for the way those cobbled roadways love to climb
The hills in rambling quaintness, and forget to measure time.

An asphalt, tree-lined avenue holds not such charm for me!
Somehow, the humblest cobbled streets seem paved with history;
They echo faintly from a thousand hoofbeats going by,
Those half-abandoned thoroughfares, where bronzy pigeons fly,
There, circled street lamps shed at night a golden mystery,
A glamour on the streets of quaint irregularity.

Oh, builders, when you change our town,
will you not leave for me
A remnant—just a remnant—of the town it used to be?
When old things are replaced by new,
and relics go their way,
Will you not let a few old crooked streets with cobbles stay?

—Marion Steward in The Christian Science Monitor.

Lines

The little seamstress
Paused before a stall
Where lilacs were—
And suddenly
The street became
A leafy lane to her,
All rainy winds
And twitterings
And flitting amber light
And wings—

The room rent paid,
One need not think
Of spring,
But food and drink—
And she can work
With such a will—
With misty lilacs
On the sill—

The little seamstress
Paused before a stall
Where lilacs were—
She came
In threadbare gray, but oh—
She went
In lavender—

—Harry Lee, in Outlook.

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW

NEW YORK, May 23.—(AP)—The collapse of French and Belgian currency to new record low levels, followed by a brisk recovery, and the first definite upswing in stock prices in nearly a month, were the principal developments in this week's financial markets. The apottiness of general business was illustrated by the raising of the Hudson Motor dividend and the omission of the Armour A dividend, the steady increase in earnings of the principal railroads and the falling off in steel bookings, compared with the same period last year.

Weakness of French and Belgian francs undoubtedly represented the flight of capital from Paris and Brussels to the gold standard countries as a result of budgetary and other financial difficulties. Despite the difference of opinion between the officials of the bank of France and the French government over the use of the former's gold to stabilize the currency, the downward movement appeared to have been definitely checked as the week closed.

It is still too early to determine whether the rally in stock prices was a natural correction of an oversold position, or the beginning of a sustained advance to discount increased earnings in certain lines of industry. Professional operators continued to dominate trading, with public interest at low ebb.

Indications that huge sums of money are seeking investment were seen in the advance in the combined average of bond prices to practically the record high level established early this month, and the ready absorption of new offerings, including the $35,000,000 Brazilian government issue.

While a pronounced downward drift is noted in many commodity prices, active wheat futures advanced one to nearly four cents a bushel during the week. Cotton continued to drift within rather narrow and irregular limits, but closed generally higher on the week. Coffee prices lost ground, but sugar held relatively steady.

WEEKLY METAL MARKET

NEW YORK, May 23.—(AP)—Business in copper, which broadened out immediately following the general strike in England, has tapered off again. The British trade situation remains more or less unsettled and in the absence of an improved export demand, buying for domestic consumption has been limited to immediate needs. Meanwhile no selling pressure of consequence has developed and producers are holding electrolytic for 13 7-8c delivered.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

The Shadows on the Wall

When Mother tucks me up in bed
And then turns off the light,
When I have said my evening prayers,
And kissed my Dad goodnight,
Then Mother with an extra pat,
And with a kiss or two,
Goes off and leaves me there alone—
I tell you what I do;
I duck way down between the sheets
And never stir at all
For fear I might look up and see
The shadows on the wall!

I lie as quiet as can be
In hopes they'll go away.
And yet I know it's nothing
But the tree across the way
With the light a-shining through it,
Casting shadows strange and queer;
And mother says I mustn't mind.
There's not a thing to fear.
And yet, although I'm big and brave,
I almost have to call
To Mother, when I look and see
Those shadows on the wall!

They stretch out arms so thin and long
And curl up like a snake.
They dance and chase around the wall
And keep me wide awake;
Sometimes they look like goblins
With big, queer pumpkin heads,
And other times the shadow—
Like a big, dark river spreads
With ships a-sailing in it
And big, black pirates tall.
While I just lie a-shivering at
The shadows on the wall!

You know it's funny, but there's times
Those shadows show at night
The things that I've been doing
That I knew weren't quite all right;
One night our neighbor's cat was perched
Upon that shadow tree,
A-looking with its great green eyes,
Right at the bed—and me;
I never meant to hit him, just
To scare him, that was all.
But I was sorry when I saw,
Those shadows on the wall!

I guess it's just the way I feel
And all the things I've done
Though lots of things that turned out bad
I only meant in fun;
I guess perhaps I better try
A little harder, too,
To do the thing that Mother thinks
Are best for boys to do;
Then when I'm all alone at night
I won't be 'fraid at all.
And I won't mind a-looking at
The shadows on the wall!
—Ethel M. Brainerd in Kennebec Journal.

Day's End

God sent you Sleep, tired lad—
Tired lad, stretched still and straight
Beside the road shell-plowed for Death's grim harvesting—
The tumult has passed on
The day is done.
God sent you Sleep.

God sent you Peace, tired sleeping lad—
Across the clear green spaces of the wood
The birds call drowsily, the setting sun
Kindles a glory in your hair;
Slowly on your shut eyes,
The daylight dies—
God sent you Peace.

God send you Life, tired sleeping lad—
For you our little world blurs into nothingness;
What matter now the fury and the pain?
Worthy the price you paid, worthy the laying down
Of all you had, worthy the strife—
The last great Gift you gave, cleansed, purified,
Lies at your feet again—
God's Gift, or Life.
—Roy Irving Murray, in the Waterbury American.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

Uncle Jed is receiving a great many very interesting letters this spring and practically all of them are being published. Some of the young writers tell of what they have read, and are studying in school, others tell of visits they have made or are planning to make, of play camps they have constructed, etc. However, one little girl sent in a letter in which she said she wanted to join the Wide Awake Circle and wanted to win a book. Then she signed her name and address.

Now that little girl evidently didn't know of anything interesting to write about or she would have put it in her letter. She thought that all she had to do was to write saying that she wanted to join the Wide Awakes, sign her letter and then wait for a prize book. If she had written a nice interesting letter telling of something she had seen or done she may have won a book.

There are many subjects to write about. It would be interesting for the girls and boys to write about the little pursuits they enjoy, how they pass their spare time, what they like to read, favorite books, what games they play, which game they like best, what they think they would like to become in life, they they are grown up and what interests them most in birds beasts and flowers.

Nearly all boys and girls have interesting things happen to them right along. They often see some new and strange sight, a description of which would make interesting reading for the Wide Awake family. Perhaps they know of a bird's nest cleverly concealed from prying eyes, and are watching to see the baby birds when they hatch out. A story about a discovery of this kind will be eagerly read by other children who are interested in birds.

A number of the Wide Awakes are no doubt planting small gardens of their own. They can write a letter about their gardens, telling how they planted them and what kinds of flowers or vegetables they planted and of how the young plants are growing. Other subjects which make interesting reading include school happenings, holiday celebrations

MAN DIES FROM INJURIES WHEN STRUCK BY AUTO IN MONTVILLE

While crossing the highway at Hill Top, on the Norwich-New London turnpike in the town of Montville, John Vallett, 70, a lifelong resident of that town, was almost instantly killed Saturday afternoon when he was hit by an automobile driven by Max Ancil, 25, of Montville. The accident happened about 1:30 o'clock and was seen by a number of people in the vicinity. Ancil, who had no operator's license and who was reported to have taken the car without the permission of his brother, who owns it, was driving toward New London. The car registration was N-5,300.

Mr. Vallett had started to cross the highway and was across the trolley tracks by the side of the road when the machine struck him. Ancil claimed that he blew his horn and that the man appeared to hear him, but instead of stopping quickened his step in order to get across safely. Ancil claimed he could not stop the machine in time to avoid hitting him.

Mr. Vallett's skull was fractured and both legs were broken above the knees. He died almost instantly. Dr. John J. Donohue of Montville was called and in the absence of Medical Examiner M. E. Fox of Montville, who was out on a professional call, Dr. Donohue notified Coroner Jeremiah J. Desmond of this city by telephone, explaining the facts to the coroner. Coroner Desmond delegated Dr. Donohue as acting medical examiner for the case.

After conducting an investigation Dr. Donohue had the body moved to the side of the road and gave the relatives permission to have it removed by an undertaker. While Dr. Donohue was at the scene of the accident Medical Examiner Fox arrived and Dr. Donohue turned his information over to Dr. Fox, after having explained to him that he was acting as medical examiner pending his arrival.

The state police barracks at Groton was notified of the fatality and State Police Officer Bernard Kenerson was detailed to conduct an investigation. It developed that Ancil had no driver's license and had taken his brother's car without permission. He was arrested by the state police officer and held in $5,000 bonds by the Montville authorities. In default of bonds Ancil was taken to the New London jail, pending his arrignment before Justice of the Peace William Smiddy at Montville.

Ancil, it is said, came from Sanford, Maine, a short time ago and took up his residence in Montville with relatives. Mr. Vallett was born in Montville and had passed all his life in that town. He was well known among the residents of the town. He was a widower, his wife having died some time ago.

Norwood of New London, George Lafever of Court Griswold of Jewett City, spoke upon the different phases of the order and were followed by Joseph C. OVER 50 PERCENT OF DRIVERS ARE EXONERATED

More than half the motor vehicle operators involved in fatal accidents in the first four months of this year have been exonerated by county coroners, according to reports filed with the state motor vehicle department. During that period, 63 accidents resulted in deaths; fifteen operators were held criminally responsible, 25 exonerated and 12 either evaded responsibility or are awaiting coroners' decisions.

The record was more nearly balanced in January than in any of the following months in that month, 11 out of 22 operators in fatal accidents were exonerated and nine were held criminally responsible, while findings have yet to be made in two cases. Last month, out of 17 fatal accidents operators were blameless and two negligent with four cases still to be disposed of.

Sixty operators were held criminally responsible for fatal accidents that occurred during all of last year and 253 were dismissed. Thirty-five of the 60 killed themselves, and in some instances, others, in the accidents investigated, and in 13 cases the report is not yet filed with the department.

Compared with the first third of this year, there were 79 fatal accidents in the first four months of 1925, in which the same number of operators, fifteen, were adjudged by coroners to have been criminally to blame, and 53 exonerated.

According to the entertainment program of the Cunard line, while returning from abroad after a radio tour of the principal countries, Mrs. Leila Troland Gardner, a native of Norwich and having a number of relatives here, contributed very importantly to the success of a concert in aid of seaman's children. This was held on board the royal mail steamer Mauretania, in the main lounge.

Presiding as chairman of the evening was Rt. Hon. Sir Auckland H. Geddes, ambassador to the United States. The concert opened at 9:15 on the evening of May 13th, with the overture Pique Dance, (Suppe) played by the Maurstania's orchestra. There followed a number of short stories by Joseph C. Lincoln, the author, and two piano numbers, Grieg's Concerto (first movement) and the Bizet-Rachmanioff Minuet, by Miss Gertrude Palakow. Mrs. Gardner then gave her program of negro spirituals, delighting the assemblage of passengers and officials. A brief address by Sir Aukland Geddes and a collection for the cause was followed by dancing, the evening ending with national anthems.

The proceeds from the various entertainments on the Cunard steamers are distributed to organizations working in the interests of needy children of all classes of seamen and seafaring men, including British, American and Canadian.

Charity covers a multitude of so-called sacred concerts.

Sunday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. the audience crowded the parlors at the 4 o'clock service. After the opening exercises consisting of hymns, scripture reading and prayer, and vocal solos by Hugh Kinder the second installment of the great Bible character, David was shown under the title "The Chosen Prince." The photography was splendid, and the story was true to the scripture narrative. David and Jonathan were shown taking the blood covenant of friendship which was most impressive. Saul was shown afflicted with a serious malady, and David was sent for to play on his harp to soothe the troubled king.

Between the reels Secretary Hill spoke as follows "The picture today illustrates friendship on the one hand and jealousy on the other. David and Jonathan sealed their friendship with their blood as seen in the picture. Saul became very jealous of David. Friendship is one of the finest assets of life while jealousy is a terrible thing. I pity the man or woman who has but a few or no friends. It is a great thing to have true and tried friends to whom we can go with our problems, our difficulties, our heartaches, and feel that they are really interested in us. Best of all is it to have that divine friend, Jesus Christ, who "sticketh closer than a brother." Jealousy causes trouble between nations, within the nation and how often have we seen the havoc that jealousy has wrought between individuals. Suppose jealousy was banished from every human being and instead the spirit of friendship dominated the human race, what a world we would have. Let us, with the help of God cast out of our lives all jealousy and instead let us cultivate by all means possible, true and genuine friendship, that we may thus contribute all possible happiness to the life of this old world.

DICTATORIAL GOVERNMENT TO BE DECLARED IN POLAND

Edict Issued by the Pilsudski Government—Pending a Fundamental Change in the Constitution—Dictatorship to Be Delegated to the President of the Republic—Will Have Power to Issue Special Orders For Communal and Federal Administration and to Direct Civil and Military Affairs.

WARSAW, May 24.—(AP)—The Pilsudski government late today issued a statement declaring that the country demanded a fundamental change in the constitution and that pending such reform the president of the republic must be given special dictatorial authorization.

This declaration is considered in political circles as tantamount to announcement of a dictatorship.

The statement also said that the country demanded dissolution of the Polish diet, which was to have met shortly to elect a president to succeed Former President Wojciechowski. M. Rataj is now the "sional" president.

During the period of the chance in the constitution, the declaration said the president must be given power to issue special orders for communal and federal administration to direct civil and to direct civil and military affairs.

After guaranteeing tranquil fair elections, the government statement says:

"Public opinion urgently demands dissolution of parliament. Changes in the constitution are necessary, especially upon lines empowering the president to dissolve parliament Such changes are to be voted either by the present or future parliament.

"Irrespective of the action of parliament, it is essential that a number of state decrees be issued, indicating the most striking legislativ and administrative defects, as it is impossible to pass such resolutions in the diet as constituted at present. it is indispensable to invest the president in the interim between the two parliaments with special powers to clean up the administrative apparatus, promulgate a new electroallaw, unify the courts and reorganize civil and military bodies.

The declaration announces that these reforms are to become active within a year.

GRAVE CONDITIONS ARE CONFRONTING POLAND

WARSAW, Poland, May 24.—(AP)—Either parliament, under pressure of public opinion, will, immediately after the election of a president by the national assembly, convene to arm the new executive with special powers of a dictatorial nature and then dissolve, or the country will be confronted by a new grave situation, including the possibility of an illegal dictatorship.

This is taken to be the significance of a declaration made public by the interim cabinet, headed by Premier Bartel, today.

According to latest information received at the foreign office from Posen, the anti-Pilsudski forces have announced willingness to accept a candidate, even though he is not of the right, in order to avoid disruption of the national assembly. Should Pilsudski's friends, however, persist in nominating him, the nationalist parties now operating Posen, declare they would definitely avoid the national assembly, as they say they cannot be party to a move which would "place a rebel in the highest office."

On the other hand they appear disinclined to execute a counter stroke but will stand by and look on as parliament arms the president with special powers. If a dictatorship then works out to the benefit of the country, it is believed they will renew their cooperation with the government. Certain are certain Polish reactionaries who vociferously announce that in the event Pilsudski becomes "Dictator," the forces now concentrated at Posen will "move on Warsaw."

While designated as a trifle vague, the government's pronouncement is taken as indicating the following as its program:

First, the election of a president next Monday; second, enactment of special emergency legislation; third, dissolution of parliament, leaving the president to govern Poland for a year without cooperation of the diet and senate, and, fourth, new elections, unless it is deemed advisable to extend the president's dictatorial powers from year to year.

REPORT OF FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION

WASHINGTON, May 24.—(AP)—National wealth in 1922 was placed at 353 billion dollars and national income for that year at 70 billion dollars in a special report by the federal trade commission, made public today in response to a senate resolution.

While the increase in wealth between 1912 and 1922 measured in dollars amounted to 73 per cent., the commission said, the real increase would be 16 per cent., allowing for changes in purchasing power of the dollar and would compare with about 15 per cent. increase in population.

Some 35 per cent. of the total wealth was in land values and the aggregate of real estate, land and improvements, was 230 billions of which 45 billions was tax exempt as government owned, federal, state or municipal.

More than one fourth of the total was in dwellings "and other goods used for personal necessities and enjoyment," the summary added. Agriculture accounted for 18 per cent.; mining and manufacturing 14 per cent. and railroads and other public utilities, 12 per cent.

In estimating distribution of wealth among individuals, the commission examined 43,000 probate records in 24 typical counties and also estimated unprobated estates.

"On this basis," the commissions summary said, "about one per cent. of the number of decedents owned 59 per cent. of the estimated wealth and 13 per cent. of the number of decedents owned over 90 per cent."

During the period under consideration, 1912 to 1922, the commission found diminished concentration of wealth in the later years.

"In counties having a city of more than 50,000 population," it noted, "the average estate was larger and the concentration of wealth greater."

BODY SCOOPED UP FROM BOTTOM OF NORTH RIVER

NEW YORK, May 24.—(AP)—A giant dredge prosaically scooping sand and gravel from the bottom of the North river was the instrument of fate which made possible the solving today of an apparently inexplicable mystery.

Robert F. Natham, a 65-year old broker of wealth, quarreled on last April 3 with his son. The son, also a broker, had changed his name to Robert F. Norton, and this together with financial affairs had caused the quarrel.

In the course of the argument, Nathan picked up a revolver, shot his son, knocked down his wife, and fled from the house, running toward Central park. He was never seen alive again.

Nathan had previously suffered from a malady of the brain and his family thought he must be in hiding, but police advanced the suicide theory when it was learned that weights were missing from the bath room scales.

The lake in Central park was dragged, the underbrush of the park thoroughly searched and alarms broadcast for the man. Meanwhile the son recovered.

Saturday the dredge brought up a body with scale weights hanging to one of the wrists. Investigation was made and today the police announced that the body had been identified positively as that of Robert F. Nathan.

"BATHTUB GIRL" TO TESTIFY IN THE EARL CARROLL CASE

NEW YORK, May 24.—(AP)— Joyce Hawley, reputed bathtub girl of Earl Carroll's birthday party, will take the stand tomorrow at resumption of the theatrical producer's trial for perjury

Carroll is charged with having committed perjury before two grand juries which were investigating the party at his theater at which it had been reported that men guests were served liquor by Miss Hawley while she was sitting undraped in a bathtub full of wine.

Among four witnesses to testify today was Dorothy Gordon, until recently a Carroll showgirl and the first woman witness to take the stand. She testified that she loaned her cape to Carroll and saw him shield Miss Hawley with it as the girl walked across the stage and got into the tub.

The principal witness today was Robert R. Coleman, dramatic editor of the "Mirror," who completed testimony begun last week. His presence on the stand was marked by clashes between witness and counsel for Carroll who sought to show by his questions that the editor had been a friend of the producer and had been shown courtesies by him.

Max Lief, assistant dramatic editor of "The Daily News," testified that he had a drink out of the bathtub and that it was champagne. He was the only witness called so far who has not testified to seeing anyone in the tub. He said he left the party at 3:30 o'clock in the morning.

Adjournment was taken when U. S. Attorney Buckner announced that the next witness would occupy the stand for an hour and a half. He did not say at the time who the witness would be but later he told newspapermen that it would be "the lady of the bath."

FIRE LOSSES IN U. S. MORE THAN $1,000 EVERY MINUTE

NEW YORK, May 24—(AP)—Fire losses in the United States amount to more than $1,000 every minute, a sum so great that if business firms were not insured against fire, credit would be limited and perhaps entirely withdrawn, Wilfred Kurth, president of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, said in an address today. He said that losses, increased by carelessness and crime, are so great that the fire insurance business has shown no profit for five years.

Speaking before the annual convention of the National Association of Credit Men, Mr. Kurth pictured the "chaotic situation" he said would develop if all insurance protection were suddenly withdrawn.

"Banks and wholesale houses would restrict if not entirely withdraw credit to merchants and manufacturers; mortgages of business buildings, dwellings and farms would demand their money; even loans on collateral in the form of stocks and bonds would be affected since the industrial properties represented thereby are also destructible and must be protected by insurance."

JOKE NOT INTENDED AS UNCOMPLIMENTARY TO JEWS

NEW YORK, May 24—(AP)—Mayor Walker took a conciliatory attitude today in the controversy between Fire Commissioner John J. Dorman and the Jewish Veterans of the Wars of the Republic.

The veterans have adopted a resolution calling upon the mayor to remove Dorman because of remarks he made over the radio which were held uncomplimentary to the Jewish race. Exception was taken in particular to a story concerning a certain Cohen, who upon finding his children amusing themselves with matches out on the sidewalk, advised them to come inside the house and play.

The mayor declared he would go into the matter with Commissioner Dorman, but added: "I don't think it should be taken seriously, for I am sure that the commissioner meant nothing uncomplimentary to the Jews. He knew I attended last night the celebration at Madison Square Garden for the benefit of the first Jewish college in the United State." He also pointed out that Irish and Jewish comedians were forever telling jokes about each other's race without being taken seriously.

Several Jewish leaders rallied to the support of Commissioner Dorman today including Rabbi Stephen Wise, lawyer and chairman of the executive committee of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, who revealed that the joke was not the fire commissioner's at all, but his own.

VANITY LED TO CAPTURE OF ROBERT WHITEMAN

PHILADELPHIA, May 24.—(AP)—Vanity led to the capture today of Robert Whiteman, described by the police as the "Rogue Gallery Flower brook," and known under a dozen aliases, on charges of having married and swindled a New York woman out of jewelry valued at $125,000

The authorities said the prisoner had left a trail of broken hearts from the Atlantic to the Pacific after having swindled his victims out of jewelry worth more than $1,000,000. They asserted he had married women in many parts of the country.

Whiteman, who, detectives said, had been traced across the country by his vanity and lavish distribution of tips to hotel attendants, was arrested in the barber shop of a local hotel, where he was stopping with a girl companion on a "business trip", he is variously known as John B. Weldemier, Fred Tenley, Herman Kreuger, Dr. Carl Renne, Dr. Karl Edwards, Mr. Ward, Baron Cornelius Beaverbrook and many other names.

Four detectives who arrested him alleged whiteman had offered each of them a bribe of $10,000 in return for his freedom. His arrest ended a year's chase which led detectives to Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Buffalo, San Francisco and other cities.

INVESTIGATING SO-CALLED PARTY IN WEST HARTFORD

HARTFORD, May 24.—(AP)—Police of West Hartford and authorities of Trinity college were today investigating a so-called "Saturday night party in which several Trinity students were involved.

The West Hartford police investigation at this time is centered about the action of certain men, said to have been on this party, in taking without permission a taxicab and also a traveling bag.

The investigation by the college authorities at this time is devoted to running down a report that one or more of the Trinity students present at the party were under the influence of liquor. It was also understood that the presence of certain young women at the party might also be considered.

President Remsen B. Ogilby of Trinity college tonight made the following statement:

"The administration learned today that certain students of Trinity college were involved in a night party Saturday night and there was a question of one or more being under the influence of liquor. The matter is still under investigation and no disciplinary action has as yet been taken in the case of any student. We have no official information of any charges being made by police against any student of Trinity college."

Four Co[illegible]s Killed In Break For Liberty

PINE BLUFF, Ark., May 24.—(AP)—Four prisoners at the state farm in Tucker were shot and killed here today by two trusty guards in one of the boldest breaks for liberty ever known at the farm.

The convicts were Jack Wade, John Birchfield, Benny Casey and Boyd Jewell, two of whom were life termers.

Working in a cotton field at the farm, the quartet claimed sickness and were turned over to the trusties to be carried to the hospital. Reaching nearby woods, the men made a break and the guards opend fire.

Two guns and two pistols were emptied by the trusties. The men were dead when the guards reached them.

Superintendent Dee Horton of the state farm tonight said the break for liberty today was the twelfth made by the men within the past year. They have made several attempts to escape at night, and always worked together, he said.

This afternoon, he declared, they were working with the "hard gang," composed of what the farm officials termed the worst criminals in their charge.

Mr. Horton would not reveal the names of the guards who did the shooting. He said the guards told him while in a small neck of the woods one of the men made a signal with his hand and the other three nodded their heads and started off on a run.

One guard on a horse, opened fire with his shotgun, but the guard on the ground used his pistol. After emptying these firearms they alternated, one firing a pistol, the other a gun.

All of the convicts dropped within 100 yards of the guards and died before the latter reached them.

Their bodies have been taken to England, Ark., where they will be examined.

EVIDENCES OF PRIVATION IN COAL FIELDS OF WALES

PORT, Wales May 24—(AP)—A dearth of customers has closed down many movie houses in the small towns of South Wales, but there are plenty of free concerts to while away the strikers' hours.

Signs announcing the concerts are all along the big and little Rhondda valleys and in many towns long lines of miners and their families wait in front of the union halls for an evening of song to begin.

The Salvation Army is opening soup kitchens in many towns to augment the number provided by the unions and by the individual villages for the benefit of school children.

Conditions within the homes vary with the thrift and industry of the occupants. Families of from three to 13 live in from three to five rooms, cooking, bathing and living on one ground floor. Where large families are in small houses they sleep as well as live on this ground floor.

At Mardy the correspondent for "The Associated Press" entered one house where the rotten floorboards sank like ooze under the feet. In this town 50 per cent of the miners have been unemployed for a year and when the strike was called 800 of 1,100 workmen were on unemployment dole. Three or four pits were closed in Mardy a year ago.

PRISON GUARD TELLS OF DISAPPEARANCE OF PRESSER

NEW YORK, May 24—(AP)—Luke Dalton, guard at the Great Meadow Prison camp in 1921 when Jesse Presser vanished from a road gang, told his story of the disappearance today and it conflicted sharply with the gunman's own story which almost won him a parole from Sing Sing where he is serving a term for manslaughter.

Dalton was called as a witness at the third hearing before Special Commissioner Alger, appointed by Governor Smith to investigate conditions like the Presser case.

The guard testified today that Presser had disappeared in the middle of the afternoon and not at night as he had said, that his disappearance followed a trip to the swimming hole and did not occur while he was engaged with a road gang, and that no shots were heard. Presser, he said, had not been known to have had any guests that day.

BRICKLAYERS WORKING WITH NON UNION TENDERS

HARTFORD, May 24—(AP)—The strike of the Hod Carriers and Building Laborers union was characterized by a union official today as an attempt to tie up all the building trades and so force the Structural and Building Trades Alliance to support their demands for an increase in wages of from $7.20 a day to $8. But this morning found members of the bricklayers and plasterers union working side-by-side with non-union masons' tenders who have been engaged by contractors to take strikers' places on many of the construction jobs in the city and environs. Many masons and plasterers who were forced into idleness since the strike started five days ago, were able to return to work this morning because of the presence of common laborers to hand them materials. However, the situation has not yet returned to normal.

WARM WAVE MOVING EAST FROM FAR WEST

In the rocky mountain regions and east to Omaha, extending through the Dakotas temperatures reached 90 degrees and above, and one Omaha man was prostrated by heat, where the maximum was 96.

With temperatures of 100 degrees in South Dakota, the severe contrast was found in New York where topcoats were comfortable, even if accompanied by straw hats. Ball games were postponed due to the cold.

In Chicago, cool weather prevailed, the thermometer ranging in the fifties.

Forecasters said the heat wave from the west would creep eastward tomorrow and probably reach the Atlantic coast within the next day or two.

Plane Buenos Aires Completes First Leg

Rested Craft in Water North of Hampton Roads to Let Storm Pass.

NORFOLK, Va., May 24.—(AP)—Its last drop of gasoline consumed in making a landing, the Buenos Aires, seaplane en route from New York to Buenos Aires, was safe in Hampton Roads tonight, having completed the first leg of its 5,100 mile flight.

It will hop off tomorrow morning at 5 o'clock for Charleston, S. C., with its three passengers, Senor Bernardo Duggan, Argentine sportsman, and his Italian companions, Captain Eduardo Olivero and Lieutenant Ernesto Campanelli.

The flight was without serious mishap, although strong head winds buffeted the plane all the way from New York and at one o'clock at Assateague bay, 65 miles north of Hampton Roads, Senor Duggan decided to rest the craft on the water for a time to let the storm pass. It was then discovered the gasoline supply was running low.

After a vain three-hour wait, the fliers took the air again, landing at the naval base at Hampton Roads. The gasoline tank was dry when the ship taxied ashore.

TESTIMONY CONCERNING BOILER OF THE MACKINAC

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 24—(AP)—William F. Wholey, superintendent of the boiler works which sent a welder to examine the forward boiler of the steamer Mackinac before the vessel sailed from Pawtucket, August 19 last, declared at the trial of the captain, chief engineer and agent of the boat on criminal charges in superior court today that the man found a crack in the mud drum six to eight inches long and was unable to repair it.

The mud drum exploded just after the Mackinac left Newport on the return trip, causing the death of 55 persons. Captain George W. McVay and Chief Engineer James A. Grant are consequently charged with manslaughter, and Agent George F. Kelley with being accessory before the fact. The trial is in its second week.

The witness further declared that where the metal ruptured it was only one thirty second of an inch thick that it had taken it from six months to a year to deteriorate to that condition, and that if a hammer test had been applied, the hammer could have been driven through the metal. He was cross-examined at great length by defense counsle, but remained unshaken in his testimony after many heated exchanges.

James F. Donovan, of Pawtucket, oiler on the Mackinac from June 20 to August 7, said that while he worked on the craft there were three or four leaks in the boiler and that he had had difficulty in keeping a normal supply of water in it.

DEAF-MUTE COMMITTED TO JAIL FOR PERJURY

NEW YORK, May 24—(AP)—John Call, voiceless co-respondent in a deaf-mute domestic triangle, was committed to jail on a charge of perjury today for testimony he had given in the sign language.

James Call, a deaf-mute, had brought divorce action against his wife, also deaf and dumb, naming his brother, John, who like the husband and wife could neither speak nor hear. John's testimony, made on stand today through an interpreter, was said to contradict an affidavit he had made before trial. Mrs. Call, also using the sign language, testified her husband and brother-in-law were "framing" her.

Justice Gibbs conferred with counsel for both sides and then, on motion of the husband's lawyer, dismissed the action and held the brother in $25,000 for grand jury action on a charge of perjury. The Calls were married in Kentucky in 1914 and have two children.

DRY ENFORCEMENT ORDER HAS BEEN DECLARED LEGAL

President Coolidge Authorizes Employment of State and Local Police as Federal Prohibition Agents—Declared Legal by Attorney General Sargent—Sec'y Mellon Has Assumed Full Responsibility For the Order—No Intention of Using the Authority on a Nation-Wide Scale—To Be Applied in California.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—(AP)—Under renewed fire today from the capitol, the administration sought to allay apprehension that President Coolidge's executive order is to be used to covert state, county and municipal police into a vast army of prohibition agents.

Assuming full responsibility for the order, Secretary Mellon said there was no intention to make it generally applicable over the country, explaining that the primary purpose was to legalize an arrangement already worked out with some deputy sheriffs in California.

While Mr. Mellon was making his statement, Senator Robinson, the democratic leader, was denouncing the order on the floor of the senate as a "colossal blunder" and as "the worst blow that has been struck against prohibition."

Previously, Senator King, democrat, Utah, had offered a resolution to direct the senate judiciary committee to determine whether the order is legal and Senator Wadsworth, republican, New York, had issued a formal statement saying the order would help to inform the public about the extent to which the federal government may go in search of power over the states and their sub-divisions."

While senators continued their broadsides against the constitutionality of the president's action, Attorney General Sargent handed down an opinion declaring the order to be legal. He said the eighteenth amendment contemplated concurrent action by the nation and the states in prohibition enforcement.

Mr. Sargent's opinion was under date of today and emphasized statements previously made by treasury officials that the attorney general had not been consulted about the order either in advance of the signing of it by President Coolidge on May 5 or its promulgation by the treasury on May 21.

Secretary Mellon emphasized that enlistment of local police as prohibition agents would be done only at the request of state authorities and with the consent of the individual officers involved. He added that consequently there was no intention of using the authority on a nation-wide scale.

Expressing surprise at the outburst of criticism against the treasury plan, the secretary indicated that rather than have started such a controversy he would not have urged the order in the first place. He added however, that since the present application of the order is doing no harm" he proposed to stand pat on it.

Senator Robinson told the senate that he could find no authority for the president's action, either in the constitution or the Volstead act and he asserted that if the authority vested by it was carried out confusion would reign in prohibition enforcement.

Asserting that congress had conferred upon the commissioner of internal revenue and the attorney general sole authority to name enforcement agents, Senator Robinson declared it followed that any attempt on the part of the president to appoint such agents is essentially an usurpation of power."

"This is the most far-reaching disregard of state's rights within a century," the senator declared as he adverted to President Coolidge's address at Williamsburg, Va., on May 10, in it he found a threat of federal invasion of state police functions if the states failed to do their part in enforcing laws having effect upon the national life.

Turning from a discussion of the executive order, Senator Robinson announced he was ready "under proper conditions and provisions to subscribe to a referendum" on the Volstead act. He added, however, that he did not believe there had been any breakdown in prohibition enforcement.

"I do not know that our constitution authorized a referendum," Senator Robinson added, "but I think it would be helpful to have a referendum on the question and that it would aid congress in intelligently disposing of the subject."

The democratic leader, who said he was speaking only for himself, expressed the opinion that in such a national referendum five or six states would vote wet by a large majority and that the other states would vote dry by an equally overwhelming majority.

In the house, Representative Linthicum, democrat, Maryland, after being blocked by Representativ, Tilson, the republican leader, in an effort to discuss the new enforcement move, finally got the floor, using a biblical text regarding the plague of the locusts, in assailing the order.

The Marylander declared that "all the power in the universe could not enforce such a procedure "in conflict with the sentiments of the country."

Representative Boyland, democrat, New Work, also took a pot shot at the order in a formal statement, declaring that whoever advised the president to issue such instructions was a "foe of constitutional government and either forgetful or ignorant of the basic principles upon which our government was founded."

ENTANGLED AIR LINE CAUSED DIVER'S DEATH

NEW YORK, May 24.—(AP)—A grim battle against death, 35 feet below the surface of the East river, was lost today when John Devine, a diver, became entangled in an iron lattice and slowly suffocated.

He was at work on the concrete foundation for the new Edison building. His assistant and pal for many years, Gustave Moon, was attending to the air and life lines. Devine had been below about half an hour when three frantic tugs on the life line notified those above that something was wrong.

Moon found it impossible to draw Devine to the surface and Alexander Hansen, who had just divested himself of his diving suit, hastily donned it again and descended. He found Devine with his airline entangled and his foot caught in the iron meshwork of the concrete base.

Many minutes passed before he was able to effect a release. Then Devine shot to the surface and was hauled aboard the tug. Strenuous efforts to revive him failed. He leaves a widow and five children

BOOTLEGGERS NOT REQUIRED TO FURNISH SALES RECORDS

WASHINGTON, May 24—(AP)—Prohibition enforcement officials' hopes of basing prosecutions on bootleggers' records of sales to customers were set back today when the supreme court ruled that bootleggers are not required to furnish the government with sales records.

In deciding two cases from Pennsylvania the court, in a ruling read by Justice Stone, held that the whiskey sales records required by the prohibition enforcement act apply only to those persons holding government permits to sell intoxicating liquors. The ruling was in cases of Jacob Katz, George Senn and Norman Freuerstein, and it was denied the right of the government to prosecute bootleggers and their customers for failure to provide lists of illegal transactions.

Action of the trial court in quashing indictments against the men charging conspiracy to violate the law in the sale of whiskey for the Stewart Distilling company without making a permanent record was sustained in today's decision.

COULD ONLY ENTER HOME ON HIS WIFE'S INVITATION

NEW YORK, May 24.—(AP)—Percy K. Hudson, wealthy stock speculator, was allowed no latchkey after his marriage and by a prenuptial contract could only enter his home on his wife's express invitation, although he had spent $40,000 for furnishings, his counsel announced today in opposing Mrs. Hudson's application for alimony pending trial of a separation suit on grounds of desertion.

The Hudsons were married last November 15. May 8 Mrs. Hudson brought a separation suit saying her husband had deserted her after four weeks, that he struck and abused her before guests, that he humiliated her by telling stories where she dealt to give her no credit, that he hired detectives to shadow her, and that he gave her no support of any kind; although he had been lavish with gifts before marriage.

Mrs. Hudson asked $36,000 a year temporary alimony, asserting her husband was worth at least $2,000,000 with an annual income of more than $15,000. Hudson, through counsel, opposed any alimony and Justice Cropsey reserved decision.

Hudson's lawyer said today that at the time Hudson is charged with striking his wife he only slapped her and that in self defense against a long knife with which she attacked him when he protested at her fondness for "night life." Her credit was stopped, he said, because she was inordinately extravagant, in one two-day period, buying 32 pairs of shoes for a total of $519. He said she bought $50 silk stockings by the gross and jewelry she charged to Hudson cost almost $500,000.

FIRE IN HARTFORD WITH A LOSS OF ABOUT $200,000

HARTFORD, May 24—(AP)—Fire of undetermined origin early tonight swept half or the lumber yards of the Edwin Taylor Lumber company on Charter Oak avenue. The loss was tentatively estimated by officials of the company at a quarter of a million dollars, although at 9 o'clock standard time all the fire companies from the center of the city, brought there by a second alarm, were still engaged in fighting the blaze.

Early in the fire twelve horses were led from the company stable which later burned. Dense clouds of smoke enveloping tenements on the south side of Charter Oak avenue caused occupants to hurriedly pack their most precious belongings and leave. Flying embers set one small fire about 200 yards from the lumber yard but this was extinguished without difficulty. One fireman, Captain McNally, of Squad A, was overcome by smoke but was able to return to the fire after a fifteen minute rest.

JEWETT CITY

(Special to the Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, May 24.—The post office department in Washington, acting upon information furnished them by Charles Edward Prior of 2060 Park avenue, Bridgeport, have caused a photograph to be taken of a tablet set to mark a section of the first mail route in America. Mr. Prior, a former Jewett City man, possesses rare appreciation of such matters, and never loses any offered opportunity to bring these historic facts to present day notice.

The tablet is only a few yards from the North End Bank and Trust Co., of which Mr. Prior's son, a native of Griswold, is vice president and treasurer.

The text upon the tablet reads: This tablet marks ye olde King's Highway which follows, in general Indian trails and is the oldest mail route in America. The first post rider made the trip from New York to Boston in January, 1673. Placed by Mary Stillman chapter, D. A. R., 1915.

On the lawn fronting the Olivet Congregational church, at North avenue and Main street, stands a tablet marking the establishment in January, 1673, of the first post road in America, a photograph of which will be exhibited at the sesquicennial exposition in Philadelphia, this summer.

The existence of this tablet and the fact that the post road of which North avenue is a part, was the first route over which mail was carried in this country came to the attention of the government through Charles Edward Prior, of 2060 Park avenue, who wrote the post office department at Washington about the tablet and asked for a photograph of it.

During the early hours of Monday morning, the mercury, according to three reports from the outlying districts, dropped to 34 and 33. One farmer declared that only for the fact that there was a light air stirring all night a frost must have been the result of the low temperature. Monday straw hats took a vacation and overcoats and heavy wraps were seen on the street all day. Furnace fires were re-kindled in borough homes.

Local baseball fans were much interested in the invincible pitching of Lloyd Jervis at the game Saturday between the N. F. A. and Bulkeley school. He is a Jewett City lad and did his first playing on the local Ashland team. His success as a pitcher, with as yet unknown possibilities in the baseball line, are largely due to the insistance of "Hal" Chase, that he devote his attention to "occupying the mound," letting his fielding aspirations "ride" for the present.

Among the dress in Dr. Jennings' yard, a white-eyed vireo has been seen this week. The small pert young gentleman occurs here but sparingly. He is a beauty with his white wing-bars and strikingly odd appearing white eye. If one pauses for too close inspection, as he sits on a limb near the doctor's bird bath, his manner soon indicates in no unmistakable bird language that the visitor's presence may be dispensed with. He is a capital mimic and one may hear him as he skilfully combines the songs of other birds which he hears.

PARR PLEADS NOT GUILTY, BUT IS FINED $200

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, May 24—Wilfred Parr was found guilty and fined $200 and costs of $13.34, for having driven an automobile while he was under the influence of an intoxicant, when his case came up before Judge W. Fenner Woodward in the town court Monday morning. Mr. Parr had entered a plea of not guilty and about two hours elapsed in hearing the witnesses that were presented and in making the arguments presented by counsel.

When Parr was arrested a week ago last Sunday evening he was taken before Dr. F. P. Todd, that the physician might pass upon whether or not Parr was under the influence of an intoxicant. The physicians certified that Parr was under such an influence. This was at about 9.30 p. m., some four hours later Parr of his own accord went before Dr. W. D. McCormick and in court Monday Dr. McCormick testified that Parr was not intoxicated when he saw him. Officer John Gebert and State Officers Nolan and Nelson, who happened to be about when Parr was arrested, were among other witnesses that testified that Parr was arrested, were among other witnesses that testified that Parr was under the influence of an intoxicant when he was arrested.

Several witnesses, including Judge Joseph Smith of the Plainfield probate court, testified that Parr was sober when they saw him some four hours after he had been taken before Dr. Todd. In his own behalf, Parr testified that he had taken only two bottles of near beer this early Sunday evening.

In summing up Prosecuting Attorney Arthur G. Bill called the attention of the court to the ever increasing number of persons being arrested for operating motor vehicles while under the influence of an intoxicant and of the menace they constitute to all others using the highways. Mr. Bill also reminded the court that Parr previously has been found guilty of driving while intoxicated and in view of that fact should be sent to jail. In his argument for the accused Attorney Harry E. Back reviewed evidence that had been presented relative to Parr's not being intoxicated when seen by a number of persons who appeared for him and went into detail as to what constitutes intoxication in the meaning of the statute under which Parr was being prosecuted.

Before finding Parr guilty, Judge Woodward spoke briefly, stressing the necessity of protecting the public against the operation of motor vehicles by intoxicated persons and stating his opinion that the state had established by a preponderance of evidence and beyond reasonable doubt that Parr was intoxicated when arrested. Saying that he hesitated to send a young man to jail for the first time, Judge Woodward imposed the fine mentioned. Parr paid and left for his home in Norwich.

With a contest average of 41.6 Killingly High school's contestants in the typing speed contest won over the Putnam High school entrants, whose average was 39.4. In the senior group first place was won by Miss Dora Bonin of Putnam with Miss Helen Keech of Killingly second. In the junior contest Miss Ruth Peeler of Killingly won first place and Miss Eleanor Gardner of Killingly second. Killingly's victory, the second for the trophy—a silver cup—gives the local high school permanent possession of it.

Injunction proceedings will have to be instituted against Jack Frost, unless he gets off the job and stays away until some time next fall. He was around again Monday morning, nipping flowering plants and other tender growing things as the temperature dropped fat othe 30's. One man who has a garden in the eastern section of the town of Plainfield reported the loss of 200 out of 400 newly set out tomato plants from the frost and there were many reports of losses of various kinds of young plants. Verily, the straw hat season is having its troubles in really getting underway, although old weather records show that such unseemly weather previously has come to mar the beautiful month of May.

Something that very likely will interest a great many people is a night session of the Danielson grammar school arranged for Thursday evening of this week. Supt. William E. Parker said, Monday afternoon, that the Thursday afternoon session would be omitted this week and the evening session held in its place. Parents are invited to come to the building and see the school in session, all of the grades going on with their regular routine of work. Those who come may go about the building from grade to grade, remain through the entire session or for as brief periods as they wish.

The schools will be doing the identical work that ordinarily occupies their time in an afternoon session. There will be no special displays of work and no special program—just routine. Visitors will have an opportunity to observe the pupils working at arithmetic, reading, writing, spelling, etc., as on any regular school day. The session will open at 7 o'clock, the two primary grades continuing with their work until 8.15 and the other grades until 8.30.

This night session will afford parents an opportunity to see their children at their studies and to get a real, intimate insight of the work of the schools as it goes on from day to day. The novelty of this opportunity seems certain to assure a large attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. Bacon are said to be planning to go to California to make their home.

Next Monday being observed here as Memorial day, there will be a holiday schedule of hours in force at the postoffice and the banks will be closed for the day. Business generally will be suspended.

WRIGHT FAMILY VOTING IN FLORIDA ELECTIONS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, May 24—Former Senator Fayette L. Wright, for a quarter of a century a conspicuous figure in the republican state organization, has given up his Connecticut residence, disposed of his big farm in Pomfret and has become a legal resident of Florida. The last link connecting him with Connecticut politics was when Governor Trumbull accepted his resignation from the state park and forest commission.

Mr. Wright owns and lives on an orange plantation near St. Petersburg, Florida. He has had land holdings at Clearwater, Florida, for many years and made annual visits there, but it was not until a few months ago that he definitely decided to make the Peninsular state his permanent residence. A. W. Wright of the state board of education recently received a letter from ex-Senator Wright saying that he and Mrs. Wright and other members of their household had just been made voters of Florida and had voted recently in a Florida municipal election, for the first time.

The former senator acquired his present plantation after having disposed of his Clearwater real estate. He had already exchanged his farm in Pomfret for Boston property.

Fayette Wright was an outstanding figure and republican leader in Windham county and was on the republican state ticket as a candidate for state comptroller in 1912, the year the republican party was split by the Roosevelt bolt. He had been a delegate to the republican national convention of 1904 which nominated Roosevelt for president, also attended other national conventions. He was an alternate delegate from the Second Senatorial District to the Chicago convention of 1916 which nominated Charles E. Hughes.

He represented Pomfret in the house of representatives in 1898 and became chairman of the education committee. He was elected to the senate from the old Seventeenth District in 1900. In the republican convention which nominated him, his name was presented by George F. Hinman of Willimantic, now an associate justice of the Supreme Court of Errors, and who was "mentioned" in the political gossip of that 1900 senatorial district convention as "the next judge of probate from the District of Windham and Scotland."

In 1902, Mr. Wright was a member of a state sewage commission created by the legislature. In 1906, the Twenty-Seventh Senatorial District presented him as secretary of the state, but he failed to get the nomination. He was chairman of the republican town committee of Pomfret for many years. He was usually in the thick of all of the political contests and supported Republican-Mate Chairman Rorabach in the 1923 fight when a determined attempt was made by Attorney-General Healey, John T. King and Col Isaac H. Ullman to unseat him as head of the republican party.

Platt of Hartford, State Commissioner of Agriculture; reading by Mrs. Myra Frink of Brooklyn; talk by Mrs. R. J. FIRE WAS A SMALL ONE BUT NORWICH MAN PUT IT OUT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., May 24—Jabez West of Norwich, connected with the plumbing department of the New Haven railroad, prevented the destruction of the wooden crossover near the baggage room of the Westerly station, Monday afternoon. A carelessly dropped cigarette from the afternoon westbound express which was 45 minutes late due to tieup by the wreck at Mansfield, set fire to rubbish under the planking and fanned by the strong wind was blazing up when the Westerly baggageman was across the tracks attending to the baggage car on the express. Securing a pail at the baggage room West quickly filled it with water and pouring it upon the burning plank soon had the fire out.

WAR GASSINGS CAUSE OF DR. J. A. HIGGINS' DEATH

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., May 24—The sudden death of Dr. Joseph Ambrose Higgins, occurred at his home in South Manchester soon after 3 o'clock Monday morning. Having recovered from an attack of pneumonia a short time ago his fatal illness had only been since Friday, last. Death resulted from a weak heart and the effects of gassings he underwent while serving overseas. Dr. Higgins was a comparatively young man, being only 42 years old. Born in Pawcatuck, Dec. 8, 1883, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Higgins, and he spent his early life here; graduated from the Westerly high school in the class of 1902, and while attending high school in Westerly was interested in athletics, playing on the football and baseball teams, on the latter as pitcher, dividing honors with the late Stanton Palmer of Stonington, whose death occurred before his graduation. He then attended and was graduated from the Physicians and Surgeons college at Baltimore, Md.

He started to practice his profession at South Manchester and remained there until the World war broke out. He enlisted in the English service before the United States entered the war, but upon the entry of this country into the conflict he transferred to the American army and was commissioned a captain.

During his long war service, he was on boats that were twice torpedoed and in his line of duty was subjected to numerous gas attacks, the effects of which gradually undermined his health after his return home.

About five years ago he was united in marriage with Miss Mary Dwyer of Hartford, Conn., who survives him. He also leaves five brothers and four sisters: William Higgins of Fall River, Mass., C. Leo Higgins of Westerly, Rev. F. C. Higgins of Rockville, Conn., and Edward and Walter Higgins of Hartford; Mrs. Charles M. Mattingly of Cleveland, O., Miss Margaret Higgins of Hartford, Mrs. Charles Trebbe of South Manchester, and Sister M. Clarissa (Miss Madeline Higgins), of Hartford.

MARY VIGUE, AGED 14, WENT AWAY WITH LUCAS, 24

I., and Long Island, is under arrest in New York city as the result of their "elopement" May 14. The maximum penalty for this offence is 10 years in prison, a fine of $1,000 or both. Lucas had been working as a farm hand in Wyoming. On the evening of May 14 he met Miss Vigue and invited her to go to ride with him in his small coupe, and she accepted Earl M. McElroy of Richmond heard the conversation, according to his affidavit attached to the papers in a request for a requisition upon Governor Smith of New York, which was issued today by Secretary of State Sprague. When Miss Vigue did not return a week ago Friday night, her mother made a complaint to the state police and Trooper Joseph W. Marcesu was detailed on the case. His investigation revealed that the couple went away in the automobile, but instead of making the trip by motor they went to Wickford Junction, where they took a train. While the girl is said to have eloped, being under 18 years of age, and not having the consent of her mother, the charge of abduction is brought under the law.

Associate Justice of the Rhode Island Superior court, Antonio A. Capotosto, of Providence, is presiding at the April term of superior court for Washington county, following a short recess, that he might sit on the bench in Providence in the trial of Sigmund Rand, will be on the bench in superior court in Westerly Wednesday of this week. He is the object of police protection in Providence. The activity of the Providence police follows the appearance of men about the judge's home in Providence at 2 o'clock on Sunday morning and again on Sunday afternoon when they expressed the wish to see the judge.

Denied the request, the man mumbled incoherently about something that happened three years ago."

The visitor went into Montague street, around the corner and got into an automobile. Search for this car is going on. While numbers were read on the registration plates, the police were not quite sure that they are correct. It was found that a car of the numbers reported is owned at Malden, Mass.

Dr. Roland Hammond of 50 Boylston avenue told the police that a maid in his home saw a man in the rear of Judge Capotosto's home early in the morning. Another man stood in the doctor's yard at the time. The two, apparently believing they were under observation, slunk into the shadow of buildings and moved away.

Dr. Hammond reported the incident to the police seven hours after. Capt. Edward J. Kelley, called from the Sesalon street station to Judge Capotosto's home, learned of the call by a suspiciously acting man at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Justice Coptosto could not recall anything that happened three years ago which might have bearing on the two incidents.

It was learned that the Massachusetts registration of the car is thought to be correct for the car seen in Montague street, shows it to be owned by Peter Di Lorenzo, 165 Pearl street, Malden.

Among the series of false alarms on the bell of the Westerly Fire station Monday afternoon, came a telephone call for a brush fire out of the district. Soon after 2 o'clock No. 32 was sounded for a fire just over the Mystic House Bridge on the state road across the Pawcatuck river. The fire truck of the Westerly department responded with a force of firemen and soon had extinguished the fire, which was on lands of Frank G. Booth, in the town of Hopkinton.

HIGHWAY ACCIDENTS

Judging from reports the week end accidents which mark the automobiling season have commenced, those during Saturday and Sunday having caused a number of deaths and injuries.

There was the Montville fatality where an elderly man was run down and killed by an unlicensed driver while crossing the road. Five were killed and two were reported dying as the result of a grade crossing accident near Buffalo. A Portland, Me., mother was killed trying to save her ten year old daughter from being run down by an auto, and the daughter is in a critical condition. A Suffield man was struck while walking along the roadside and left where he fell. Two were injured when a car was sideswiped at Hockanum. Two men were killed when a trolley struck an auto at Schenectady and at Waterbury occurred the death of a New Haven man who during the week had been struck while examining the brakes on his car.

Such a record of accidents within a small part of the country indicates the toll that is being exacted over the week ends for various reasons, but in most of them it can probably be shown that they were entirely needless.

Failure to pay due regard to known dangers, speed and disregard for the rights of others are responsible for most of the accidents and fatalities, and the situation does not grow any better with the increase in the number of automobiles.

According to the reports made by the motor vehicle department all fatalities do not mean that the drivers were criminally responsible, for in the 48 which have occurred during the first four months of the years coroners have held only 15 operators criminally responsible, exonerated 35 and in 13 others responsibility was evaded or decisions are being awaited.

For the pedestrian as well as the auto driver it is a case today of looking out for himself. Experience shows that it is folly to depend upon the other fellow, and even by driving carefully and playing safe there is no real insurance that you will not be smashed up by the reckless and heedless driver who seems to think he owns the highway and no one else has a right to any part of it.

FIGHTING THE DRUSES

Not so long ago much criticism was caused by the manner in which the French forces in Syria resorted to a bombardment of Damascus, which resulted in the killing of many who were in no way concerned with the revolution which the French were endeavoring to put down. It was regarded at the time as the act of the French high official in Syria and not representing the attitude or wishes of France. Support was given to that view by the subsequent change of officials, the French general being recalled to Paris.

That didn't end the revolt of the Druses but it was expected that it would mean the employment of different tactics in dealing with them in the future. That it has not is indicated by reports which are coming from Syria to the effect that there has been a repetition of what preceded and that a section of Damascus was subjected to bombardment before the residents thereof, the women and children, had had a chance to get away.

The rebels have adopted the plan of committing their misdeeds and then hiding in a residential section of the city. It can be appreciated that there is probably difficulty experienced in locating them, but that doesn't justify the bombardment of the innocent in an effort, by chance to reduce or drive out the band of Druses.

France is governing Syria under a mandate from the league of nations. The Druses are doing their utmost to handicap and discourage the French. They are forcing them to resort to most drastic measures and even with the killing of the 300 who are reported slain in the bombardment it doesn't appear that the Druses were seriously affected. According to the report the most of them escaped, thus indicating the horror of the entire affair and the futility of the measure employed.

It is certainly not an impressive move on the part of the French. They have not suppressed the Druses and they certainly have not gained the good will of the rest of the people through the slaughter of the innocent.

A TEST IN GERMANY

Within a month the people of Germany are to vote upon the question of disposing of the ex-rulers' property. This is in accord with the constitutional provisions. It has in fact been forced by the long petitions which have been submitted as expressive of the people's will. Because of such a demand there is nothing for the government to do but to arrange for a referendum. Having declared that the matter should be decided by means of a referendum that step will be taken on the 20th of June, when the people by their votes will tell the reichstag what they want it to do.

The question before Germany is whether the whole property of the ex-rulers shall be confiscated without compensation or whether the matter shall be left to the civil courts for disposition.

Efforts have been made to obtain a settlement on terms, but they have been unsuccessful. Ordinarily it might be expected that a matter of that character would be left to the decision of the courts, but that plan is meeting with opposition now because it is insisted that the monarchists are strong in the courts and it is feared that the sentiments of the people might not be met if that course were followed.

It remains to be seen however just how public sentiment in Germany lines up. If a sufficient number favor the courts that method will be followed. If on the other hand the majority favors confiscation it is to be expected that the voice of the people will be heeded. It is by no means a certainty as to the outcome and plenty of demonstrations can be expected in the next few weeks.

Germany is making an experiment with this method of procedure. It will be a test of the new form of government and it comes when it will be of much significance in connection with the new Marx cabinet. With propaganda being actively carried on both for and against, the contest is certain to be a hard fought one in which a large vote can be expected. Germany is deeply concerned and other countries look on with interest.

THE WHITTEMORE CASE

Not much encouragement was to be gained by those who may have been contemplating a criminal career from a study of the Chapman case and its disposition in Connecticut. No more is to be found in the Whittemore case in Baltimore.

This young desperado may have been elated over the attentions showered upon him by the underworld and the curious. He may have been cheered by the outcome of his trial for murder in Buffalo, but such cannot be said concerning the prompt and thorough trial at Baltimore.

If Whittemore and his crime record to date have been an inspiration to others, it is not to be expected that conviction of murder and with the death penalty staring him in the face will create the impression in the minds of others that the defiance of law is a desirable and profitable undertaking.

Whittemore demonstrates that the criminal is not always the product of the gutter. He came from a good family and a good home. He was a wild youngster who apparently kept himself beyond the control of his parents. They failed to assume their responsibility at the proper time, but never anticipated that he would do anything rash. One step simply led to another with him until there became no limit, and apparently he gloated over the publicity which his crimes gained for him. Apparently he gained the idea that he was a super criminal, immune to arrest and able to escape the penalty if caught.

The verdict reached will get public endorsement and a life that started with much promise comes to early dishonor and disgrace. Nothing will do more than such handling of criminals to lessen the interest in such activity.

THE RIFFIAN WAR

When Abd-el-Krim refused the peace terms of the French and Spanish there were indications that he was so strongly entrenched that he believed he could either win out or by successful fighting force more favorable terms. His was the attitude of a confident leader.

It is entirely possible that he did not represent the sentiment of those he depended upon to fight for him, for the surrender of tribe after tribe and the occupation of Abd-el-Krim's capital from which he was forced to flee in disorder indicates that the time is not far distant when the resistance of the Riffians will be completely broken and control of the territory gained.

The desire had been for the prevention of more bloodshed in that region, and it was gratifying to note that the troops entered Targuist without a struggle, while north of Fez the enemy was offering but slight resistance to the advance of the French forces.

Such a development does not augur well for the Riffian leader. Evidently those upon whom he has been depending have grown sick of their task, or recognized the folly of trying to resist superior forces. That being the case it can be expected that other tribes will be inclined to take a similar course and bring to a quick end what must inevitably be. The leader of the Riffians has made a hard fight and stood out against great odds under the type of warfare which that region permits, but he has apparently gotten nearly to the end of his rope.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to the Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, D. C. May 24—Talking with several political leaders on the so called Whispering Campaigns that have formed an unsavory part of recent primary and election methods, the Bulletin correspondent found food for a sermon on the text "Thou shalt not bear false witness" in the comments of a man well versed in political details, as relating to putting a candidate before the people. Here is what he said:

"What do we think of people who send anonymous letters, in an underhand attempt to sow seeds of discord, or destroy the domestic or business life of their neighbors, or persons of prominence? We hold them in contempt.

What do we think of the old time so called village gossip? The sort of person our God-fearing ancestors punished with ducking in the trough in the public square, putting in the Stocks, or other forms of humiliating penalties?

We shun such people as pests.

And yet we are quite apt to condone, or at least let pass by with the slurring comment, "Oh, that politics," the same sort of unsavor, malicious, underhand attempts to defeat a candidate by a whispering campaign against him when things are hinted at, words spoken below the breath that the person uttering them dare not speak aloud, knowing them to be false, yet not hesitating to sow poisoning seed that will quickly grow into a crop of doubt as to the fitness, or moral worthiness of the candidate in question.

This is entirely in a non-partisan sense. I do not believe any political party, as a whole, upholds such methods; I do not believe whispering campaigns have their origin through party leadership or have the endorsement of candidates for office. "Your correspondent nodded assent recalling the many instances when he had been approached as a news writer by persons engaged in spreading the gospel of political untruth, yet in every instance it was some of the political small fry, and not by leaders.

And when pinned down as to authority for the statements, the reply was invariably "Oh, I must not be quoted, but I know it is true" etc., etc.

"Opposition to political policies is a fair ground on which to base a campaign "when on the speaker but a campaign of 'have you heard, or if you only knew what I know, or if I dared tell you half I know about that man, or they say, or other vague forms of accusation.'"

This recalled a specific instance where the Bulletin correspondent was approached by a man during a recent campaign, who whispered an unsavory rumor regarding a presidential candidate, adding, "of course you have heard this, but I want to say I know it is true, so you can safely use it as news." But the writer did not nibble at the bait. "No, I don't know the truth, but using your name as having stated it, I will make a full inquiry." Then the spreader of rumors runs to cover in all haste, insisting he should not be quoted adding "Oh you are too blamed particular," and went his way to seek others more credulous on whom to try his game of hints and inuendoes.

"Yes," said the man of political prominence "that is the way those things start. It isn't what Roosevelt called a square deal, it comes under the admonition "Thou shalt not bear false witness" and I believe the great majority of voters in both political parties do not approve such methods. Sometime the repeating of such whispered slander is done with malice; sometimes by victims of undue credulity, who innocent of wrong doing themselves do not detect it in others; sometimes such gossip is passed down the line by persons disgruntled over the failure of some pet measure to pass, either through the votes, the influence or the sympathy of a candidate for office. Those people then join the ranks of whispering campaigners, quite ready to believe ill of a candidate because they differ with him on some important policy.

But whatever the reason, whispering campaigns are unworthy of any political party, unworthy any political candidate, unworthy men and women entitled to the franchise. It's the right and duty of every person to oppose or support any political candidate, but politics should be played in the open, and poison gas should be outlawed in politics as well as in war. Whispering campaigns are sniper methods of warfare, and I believe the great majority of the people of the United States will unite in agreeing that the commandment "Thou shalt not bear false witness" applies equally to ones neighbor and to political candidates, of whatever party or faction."

Blandon, whose tongue is sharp, and whose voice and temper gain a high pitch under strain, of excitement, shouted to the doctor, whose salary in connection with a certain hospital was under consideration: "Do you realibe you are paid by the American people?" "Oh yes," retorted the doctor, "and I earn every cent of it." "Then you have a higher opinion of yourself than I have of myself" pursued Blanton "because I do not think I am worth $10,000 a year." "I'm quite inclined to agree with you," popped back the doctor, and the war of words ended midst the laughter of the crowded committee room.

The recent dance of the Hopi Indians, on the plaza of the Capitol was a thriller equal to any movie show in town.

Thousands of persons congregated in front of the great marble building; the audience of pale faces watched intently the dances, each of which was an Indian form of prayer, or typical of for some special purpose. There was a victory war dance shown as a warning to other tribes; the buffalo dance; the famous snake dance; a snow dance and a dance for rain. The latter, prayer seemed quickly answered by the rain God, for Washington's drought was broken by a heavy shower soon after the dance ended. The Indians were in native costume and the dance music was a monotonous beating of tom-toms. The affair was arranged by Senator Camaron of Arizona, from whose state the Indians came to Washington. It is the first time they have danced away from the reservation, so the senator stated.

CAT THAT HELPED

(The girl in the new mink coat and bright red dress is talking over the telephone to her "girl friend.")

"Lo there, kid! What ja know that is new and everything?

"Oh, a pile of things, Pooolootly. Say baby doll, listen! I was out to my auntie's that lives in Riverbank to spend Sunday last week.

"Swell. We was to a movie and a swell church supper, and everything. Just grand. And, say, dearie, listen! I sure had a comical time comin' back on the train, see? Only I guess it wouldn't of seemed so comical hadn't it of been for—

"Wait till I tell you. You know how my kid sister's been hollerin' her head off for a kitty, huh? Well, when I was fixin' to go out to my auntie's, ma, she says, if there was one out there or anything that my auntie wanted to give it away to any person, I was to bring it home to the kid, see?

"Did she? Say! A million of 'em, if you know what I mean. My auntie's crazy about 'em. So she left me pick out a cute little black one with kinda white spots—not so awful good lookin', see, but lots of—you know—personality and everything. And the mornin' when I was comin' home my auntie fixes it up in a basket with a kinda—you know—lid on the top and everything.

"Wait till I tell you. You see, I got on the train all right and I was tryin' to get my scotcase laid down under the seat when I kinda—you know—let go the basket and the cat jumped out on me and run off, see?

"Sure! Wait till I tell you. If ever you'd saw that kitty hot-footin' it down that car, about six foot at a jump and me after it hollerin' 'kitty, kitty,' and everything like a nut, you'd died. Dumb? Say! Once I climbed under a seat when I seen a kinda—you know—black streak that I thought it was the kitty, and I got a bolt of some dame's foot. Gosh, did she holler? She did. Say, kid, if it hadn't of been for how it come out in the end and everything—

"Wait till I tell you! After while the cat jumps up in the rack where they puts bundles and everything and I beats it down to that end of the car just in time to not ketch it before it gives a nose dive on the top of a high-hat guy that's sittin' and it gives him a scratch on his bald spot, see, and then it slides down and sticks in the middle of his back. Some trick, what? Say, I pretty near faded with the pitcher. If it hadn't of been—say, kid? listen. The guy that the cat was on his back commenced hittin' at it with his two hands from both sides of him and jerkin' up his back to try to make the kitty drop off, and the kitty was stickin' like a piece of gum on a person's shoe, and I begins to think him and the old prune was clinched for life.

"But just then a big boy in back picks the little cat off reel kinda gentle and everything and holds him in his hands and pets him till he wasn't scared no more, and then he turns 'round to me and says, 'I'll take him back and put him in his basket?' he says. And so he does it. And, honest, kid, the little cat never give so much as a squawk afterward, if you know what I mean.

"Swell lookin'? Wait till I tell you. Snappy clothes and everything. And say, old dear, listen. He sits down in the seat with me and we have a grand time laughin' about the kitty and talkin' about all the movie queens and sheiks and everything. And say, dearie, listen! He lives out to Riverbank and everything, and he says his ma is reel well acquainted with my auntie and everything. Wonnerful, what?

"Sure. Wait till I tell you! Him and me and the kitty all come home in a taxi together. Some class, what? And he's give me a ring a couple times since—

"You bet! And, say, baby, listen! This is what I phoned you to tell you see? I gotta bust that date I had with you for Saturday night, see? I gotta go out to my auntie's again. She wasn't feelin' so awful good when I was there and so-ma says—

"Aw, quit your jiddin'—

"Well, leave it go like that if it gives you a kick—

"Sure. Well, so long, kid. I'll ring you up Monday and tell you—you know—auntie does when I'm out to Riverbank. See? Well, bye-bye, baby! So long! You be good!"—Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Streets Are Wretched

Mr. Editor: We notice in the local papers or the good work of the street commissioner that is being done on some of the streets of the city of Norwich and the mention of other parts of the city where work is to be done on the streets. But no mention is made of Laurel Hill where some of the streets are in wretched condition. Watrous avenue in particular where the street is so rough that autos in passing over it are liable to have broken springs or other mishape.

A LAUREL HILLITE

Norwich, May 24, 1926.

Opposed to Bolshevism

Mr. Editor: May I call the attention of your readers to The Industrial Defense association, recently incorporated, with the following officers and with headquarters at 7 Water street. General William H. Bisbee, honorary president; Major James F. Winston, president; Rev. Charles L. Page, vice president; Rev. Wallace Hayes, treasurer; E. H. Hunter, executive secretary, and Professors Warren R. Moorehead, Charles A. Hayes, Charles P. Coffin, directors.

In the by-laws the purposes of the corporation are defined as follows: "To perpetuate and actively inculcate American ideals as expressed in the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States, thereby supporting our faith in the founders of our beloved country, and resolutely to oppose any effort that is inimical thereto."

Thinking men are beginning to realize that the rapid increase of bolshevism in America, in its various forms, is a serious problem, but they lack time and means to give the subject the attention it deserves, and this association is organized in order to enlighten the busy man and oppose, by educational methods, the vicious propaganda of the bolsheviks in the ranks of the proletariat.

Russia, Finland, Bohemia and Georgia, constituting one-fifth of the landed area of the world, are in the iron grasp of the leaders of bolshevism; India, Egypt, China, largely because of soviet propaganda, are in a state of unrest that menaces the peace of the world.

Recently in Boston the chief of the division of western European affairs in the United States department of state told the Episcopalian club: "The most marvelously organized and dangerous propaganda in the world is that of the Third Internationale, Moscow." The congressional hearings on the recognition of Russia before the Borah committee, made public some of the startling facts within the knowledge of our Department of State, which were presented to the committee by Hon. Charles E. Hughes, then Secretary of State. This Third International, through its political bureau, recently organized "a Moscow plot to start a terrorist campaign throughout the world. The leaders of the International have been giving technical support to the forging of huge sums of foreign money for the purpose of red propaganda."

Looking near by at home, the "Soviet Sunday school" discovered in Hudson, Mass., by a priest of the Roman Catholic church, where little children are taught atheism and class hatred, is but one of many of its kind in New England. One ex-priest of the Russian Orthodox church, now living here, has under his supervision in Greater Boston twenty-two such Russian "soviet Sunday schools."

The Passaic strike, openly repudiated by the American Federation of Labor because of its communistic leadership and purpose and openly declared by its leaders to be "a lesson in revolution," is a strike called, like many others, only to stimulate class hatred and strengthen communism.

Bolshevism has, in the United States over three hundred, well-financed, powerful organizations, aided and abetted by over six hundred publications in many languages, all explicitly aiming to overthrow this government.

We have organized to eliminate from New England this vicious, un-American element. Our speakers are ready at short notice to present before clubs, societies, business and social groups the actual facts of the situation.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. George Ellery Hale, to whom the Franklin Institute in Philadelphia has awarded the Cresson Medal for scientific achievements in the past year, is regarded by many as America's leading physicist. For some years he has been honorary director of the Mount Wilson Observatory near Pasadena, of which he formerly was active director. Dr. Hale is one of the world's greatest investigators in solar and stellar spectroscopy. He got his preliminary training in physics and astronomy at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and at the Harvard Astronomical observatory. Then he went to the University of Berlin. Before going to California he was director of the famous Yerkes observatory of the University of Chicago, which institution he also served as professor of astro-physics. Few men in America have had so many high honors formally conferred upon them by European societies of savants.

From Small Beginnings

Captain Mayne Reid, a lover of Adventure

Every boy who loves stories of adventure has read some of Capt. Mayne Reid's stirring novels. "The Rifle Rangers," "The Scalp Hunters," "Osceola the Seminole," "Afloat in the Forest," "The Castaways" and "The White Chief" are some of them. The very titles suggest the kind of stories that they are—stories of wild, thrilling adventure in wild and dangerous places.

The writer of these books that are almost "dime novels," but that are too good to be "dime novels," was destined by his parents to become a minister of the gospel. Instead of becoming a sedate and quiet preacher, leading a simple life, he became as adventurous as the heroes in the stories that he wrote.

As a small boy in Ireland, he lived in a home where money was far from plentiful. His father was pastor of a little church in the village of Ballyrooney, and could afford little or nothing for the boy. "Tom Reid," as the boy was then called, did much as he pleased, and played and fought with the boys of the village. He went to school when he had to, and stayed away when he could. Instead of studying religious books, as his father wished him to do, he preferred to go on adventurous jaunts, or listen to the stories told by various wanderers.

Before he was 21 he left the quiet Irish village and made his way to America, where he hurried at once to be among the Indians in the west. He hunted for excitement in tribe after tribe of the wildest Indians. When he needed money he wrote for newspapers. He became captain in the Mexican war, and volunteered for the most dangerous forays. He was in all respects a fighting Irishman, an adventurer, a soldier of fortune. When he was 32 he began to write novels that told of the kind of life that he liked. As might be supposed, the books that he wrote were welcomed by the public. He had as great energy in writing as he had had in adventure and he wrote book after book. Not one of his books debases character. His later days he spent in England, busily engaged in writing, until his death at the age of 65. Out of hisave of adventure and of manhood, he built a great popularity.

Stories That Recall Others

Don't Tell It

Two little sisters were talkative to excess. Often they divulged family secrets. Their grandmother, becoming provoked by their seemingly endless chatter, chided them by telling them they should keep everything "under their hat."

In mimicry, natural with children, Katherine, the elder, on an occasion assumed the advisory role of her grandparents by repeating the same words to her sister Anne.

Anne raised her head to her head and said: "I have no hat on."

An Innocent Bystander

In a restaurant the other evening two men, unknown to each other, were seated side by side. A woman acquaintance of one entered, and noticing him, walked over to where he sat, chatted for a moment and then asked for his home telephone number, not yet in the book, as she had forgotten it and wished to call his wife. She confessed to a bad memory and asked him to write it. Neither having a pencil the man turned to the stranger and asked for the loan of a pencil. The latter wishing to be gallant complied with the request and handed over a nice, new expensive pencil. With the written number the woman joined her friends on the other side of the restaurant and the pencil borrower after finishing his lunch, departed with the borrowed pencil in his vest pocket.

Johnny Meets Old Jed Thumper

Knowledge is from others gained,
And thus may wisdom be attained.
—Johnny Chuck.

Johnny Chuck decided to go back to the hole he had dug under some rocks over in the Old Pasture and call it a day. He had met Old Man Coyote, he had met Reddy Fox and he had met Jimmy Skunk. The result was that Johnny's nerves were a little shaken. He felt that he didn't want to meet any more that day. So after parting from Jimmy Skunk, Johnny went back to that hole he had dug and sat down on the little heap of sand which former his doorstep. It was sunny there and Johnny likes the sun.

"I don't think the Old Pasture's a very safe place," muttered Johnny to himself. "I don't think I care to stay here. I think the sooner I get back on the Green Meadows the sooner I will feel really comfortable. I wonder if Polly Chuck has missed me. I wonder what she thinks has become of me. I wonder if she's been out looking for me. It must be a long way back to the Old Orchard. I suppose that if I want to see the Old Pasture now is the time to do it, because I don't suppose I'll ever get back here again. I must say I like to be able to look around me. I don't like being shut in where I can't see in all directions. How any one can feel at all safe in such a place as this I don't understand, but I suppose there are those who do. I suppose there are those who think the Old Pasture really is a safe."

"The safest place in the world," said a voice behind Johnny, and then there was a thump that made Johnny almost turn a back somersault in order to get inside his hole. Never had he been more startled. It was some minutes before he even dared poke his nose outside that he might look around and see who had frightened him so. When at length he did look out, there was no one to be seen excepting a big, gray old Rabbit sitting up at the edge of a tangle of brambles a few feet away. Johnny stared most impolitely at the gray old Rabbit. "Where did you come from?"

"That's my business," growled Johnny Chuck. "Were you the one who said that this is the safest place in the world? Because if you did, you don't know what you are talking about."

"How long have you been here?" inquired the gray old Rabbit.

"Not long, but long enough," retorted Johnny Chuck.

The gray old Rabbit grinned. "I've lived here all my life," said he. "So you must admit that I ought to know. If it were not a safe place, I wouldn't have been alive long enough to grow old and gray. When a Rabbit can live to be old and gray he must be living in a safe place. If you don't like it up here, what did you come for?"

"I didn't come," replied Johnny. "I was brought here." Then becar e he really wanted to talk to some one, he told the story of how he had been caught in the trap by Farmer Brown's Boy over in the Old Orchard and set free in the Old Pasture.

The old gray Rabbit listened attentively. Finally, he asked a question. "Do you know Peter Rabbit?" he inquired. Of course, Johnny replied that he did. "Do you know Mrs. Peter?" was the next question. Again Johnny nodded and said that he did. "Well," said the old gray Rabbit, "I'm Mrs. Peter's father."

"Oh!" exclaimed Johnny, "then you must be Old Jed Thumper. I've heard Peter and Mrs. Peter tell about you."

"Yes," replied the old gray Rabbit, "I'm Jed Thumper."

THINNESS MEANS SICKNESS

Add the Flesh You Want This New Way

It's not natural to be thin. If you are scrawny and underweight, something is wrong. You are not enjoying 100 per cent health. And what's more, if you don't look to it, you are almost sure to get worse.

If you are looking for real help to restore Nature's depleted nerve force and vital power, to add weight, to tone up digestion and overcome body poisoning constipation, you will do well to see that you get into your system the vital food elements such as vitamines, the organic plant salts of phosphorous, iron, lime, etc., as they are found in time-tried Cod Liver Extract.

To try to take them in drug form is worse than useless for they cannot be absorbed into the body unless they are as Nature made them in fresh vegetables and Cod Livers. Everybody knows there is no better body builder than Cod Liver Extract. But everybody cannot take this wonderful natural tonic because of its fishy taste and odor.

Now, however, Science has removed all the objection by finding the way to concentrate the vital elements necessary to healthy body-building into pleasant, sugar-coated tablets called McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets.

They contain, along with other recognized up-building ingredients, the vital parts of Cod Livers. Their results in thousands of cases have been remarkable. They have added 15 to 20 pounds of solid healthy flesh within 30 days, they have built up frail, puny children to normal weight and sturdy strength. They provide the run-down system with just the help it needs and in just the form that the digestive organs can easily assimilate.

In fact, the results have been so remarkable that you can now buy McCoy's Tablets at Lee & Osgood Co., or your favorite druggist anywhere with a specific guarantee that if after 30 days' use you have not added at least 5 pounds of solid, healthy flesh, your money is to be refunded instantly.

Don't be thin and sick any longer. Begin using McCoy's Tablets today and start yourself on the road to sound health, normal weight, and steady nerves.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mrs. Annie Kwinski of 526 1st Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., writes that she became so weak and rundown that she was not able to do her housework. She saw the name Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the paper and said to her husband, "I will try that medicine and see if it will help me." She says she took six bottles and is feeling much better.

Mrs. Mattie Adams, who lives in Downing Street, Brewton, Ala., writes as follows: "A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and since taking it I feel like a different woman."

With her children grown up, the middle-aged woman finds time to do the things she never had time to do before—read the new books, see the new plays, enjoy her grandchildren, take an active part in church and civic affairs. Far from being pushed aside by the younger set, she finds a full, rich life of her own. That is, if her health is good.

According to the final report of City Treasurer Charles S. Avery, which was presented to the common council last week, covering the finances of the different city departments for the year up to May 15, a total in overdrafts of $7,909.18 has accumulated. This is principally in the public works department, where the overdraft is $6,417, but the police department has an overdraft of $561.82 above the $68,000 that was appropriated for salaries and general expenses, the finance department has run $179.67 over the $8,900 appropriated for salaries and tax commission, the court house expense was $98.68 over the $9,600 appropriated, and the contingent fund has used $681.20 in excess of the $17,000 that was appropriated and to which was added $552.19 by tax refund.

In the public works department the total of the overdraft of $6,417 is made up of several different items. Ordinary repairs and expenses, which had the original appropriation of $70,000 bolstered up by a special appropriation of $20,000 in March and also received $1,566.60 by returns still shows an overdraft of $2,723.02. The collection of garbage and ashes cost $382.89 more than the $28,000 that was appropriated. The expenses for oiling and sprinkling ran $1,681.12 over the appropriation of $5,000. The expenses for parks and trees was $628.94 more than the $2,500 that was appropriated for that purpose and there was spent for liability insurance $1,024.62 more than the appropriation of $2,500.

The gas and electric department which was given an appropriation of $610,000 for operating expenses and betterments is shown to have spent but $557,356.92 of this amount and has not availed itself of an appropriation of $100,000 for expansion and extension of business.

Out of the appropriation of $1,080,000 for the Deep River reservoir, it is shown that $154,345.17 has already been spent.

All the new street and sewer work done during the year was accomplished within the appropriations made for the various items.

Receipts.

On the side of receipts City Treasurer Avery's report shows that the water department turned in to the city treasury $10,982.48 more than the $40,000 that was estimated for it. In the department of public works, there was derived from rents $3,028.55 more than the $1,500 that had been estimated, but from outside work, where the estimated receipts were put at $5,000, there was only $2,600.90 received.

The gas and electrical department fell short of turning in the amount that had been estimated to come from that department. The estimate was $750,000, but the amount received by the city treasurer was $703,163.14.

In the department of cemeteries, the receipts from trust funds were $642.75 more than the $4,000 that had been estimated, but the ordinary receipts were $35.26 less than the estimate of $4,750.

The police department, which last year, through the city court, turned in several thousand dollars ahead of its estimated receipts, failed to keep up that record but fell $712.63 short of the estimate of $12,000, while the estimate of $800 from licenses was not reached by $34.10.

Under the finance department the only material variation between estimated and actual receipts is seen in the items of bank and insurance tax and in sewer assessment. Under the former item the estimated receipts of $3,000 were exceeded by $1,087.46 and under the latter the estimate of $2,000 was exceeded by $5,930.68 in actual receipts.

AR SCHOOL AND SLATER MUSEUM EXHIBIT

The invitations for the 36th annual exhibition of the Norwich Art school at the Converse Gallery next Friday afternoon include an invitation from the trustees of the Norwich Free Academy to view the collections of Slater Memorial museum. The art school exhibition will be open from 2 until 5 o'clock, standard time, while the Slater museum will be open from 2.30 to 6.

The art school exhibition will be open to the public on Saturday and Sunday, May 29 and 30 from 2 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon, standard time.

When Slater Memorial Museum, the munificent gift of the late William A. Slater, was first established in 1888 it was recognized as the best equipped high school museum in the country and was acknowledged to be the best arranged museum of reproductions of classic sculpture in existence. Only one similar collection of casts in America had preceded it, this being at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, whose director, Edward Robinson, had sole charge of the selection and arrangement for Mr. Slater here.

Such a notable collection of plaster cast reproductions of the best examples of Greek and Italian sculpture made Norwich an art center for this part of the state and the museum was visited by large numbers of people, but this practice has fallen off in recent years. It is the hope of the trustees of the Academy to revive again in the popular mind the realization and appreciation of this very unusual privilege which people of this section and other parts of the state may enjoy by visiting the museum, of which Mrs. Ozias Dodge is now in charge.

Student guides will be present during the visiting hours Friday to conduct visitors through the museum and explain what its galleries contain. The Greek sculpture is arranged on the main floor of the museum with the Italian sculpture upstairs, and besides these the history of painting can be followed through the collection of 2,000 photographs of classic paintings.

In the Converse art gallery, besides the work of the art school which will be on exhibition, there will be several other permanent and valuable exhibits of much interest to visitors. All these articles have been labelled by Mrs. Dodge so that visitors may easily understand the exhibits which interest them.

Carroll Alton, assistant at the Peabody museum, Yale, has recently been here and assisted Mrs. Dodge in arranging the Indian collection which he declared was a very remarkable showing of Indian relics. The Henry Edmonds Indian collection, which was loaned, Indian collection, which was fine New England material, and there are Indian relics from Panama, Indian jewelry from Santa Barbara, Cal., relics from New Mexico and some from the Illinois mound builders.

A collection of Alaskan articles is of special interest and value. This was made by Capt. Charles Satterlee of Gales Ferry, an Academy graduate in 1895, who lost his life when his ship was torpedoed in Bristol channel, Sept. 26, 1918, during the World war. The collection was presented by the Satterlee family.

A collection of American pewter of the colonial period which was presented by the late John C. Averill, Japanese ivories presented by the late Mrs. Charles W. Gale and a display of Chinese shoes will also be objects of much interest.

TILDEN SHOWS TALENT IN BROADWAY THEATRE PLAY

"They All Want Something," a three act dramatization by Courtenay Savage of E. J. Rath's novel, The Dark Chapter, was presented Monday at the Broadway theatre, providing a highly entertaining evening, not the least interest of which came from the appearance of William Tilden, 2nd, the world's tennis champion, in the leading male role.

Tilden plays the role of Wade Rawlins, a chauffeur, and is the center of action all through every act, enacting the role with impressive sincerity, and although the action gives him little opportunity for emotional display his performance is most pleasing and his stage presence is very satisfactory.

In the story of the play Tilden appears as a tramp at Kilbourne Heights, the home of a newly rich family, the mistress of which has a penchant for taking in tramps for reformation. Wade Rawlins (played by Tilden) fits in as the family chauffeur, but something in his manner and intelligence arouse general suspicion as to his genuineness as a tramp. When the mistress of Kilbourne Heights arranges for a fancy dress party at which a famous author who was to be the "lion" fails the hostess at the last moment, Rawlins, the chauffeur, saves the party from a social failure by taking the place of the "lion" in his tramp's clothes. But this success makes his discharge as a servant imperative when the affair is over. Meanwhile the mysterious employe becomes involved in the secret of the head of the house who is something of a sport unknown to his wife and there are more complications for the chauffeur-tramp when the son of the household is trailed by a chorus girl who arrives most inopportunely at the party. By this time the pampered daughter of the household has become so fascinated by the mysterious employe that she reveals her love for him at about the same time that the youthful son of Mr. Kilbourne discloses the real identity of the stranger, entrusted to him in secrecy, that he is none other than the son of a famous motor car manufacturer.

Playing opposite Tilden as Hilda Kilbourne was Helen Spring who portrayed the role with great faithfulness. Frederick Burton was excellent as the gay Mr. Kilbourne and Camilla Crumb was exceedingly well cast as his wife, the patroness of the tramp fraternity. Billy Quinn took the part of the juvenile Billy Kilbourne, with exceptional ability and Minnie Harlan did notably good work as the society vamp endeavoring to capture the mysterious tramp at the fancy dress party.

The play was the first stage production that has been put on at the Broadway theatre in a long time and the management deserves a vote of thanks and encouraging support for its movement to resume the presentation of legitimate plays at the theatre.

CULBERTSON CONCLUDED HIS TARIFF TESTIMONY

WASHINGTON, May 24—(AP)—Concluding testimony today before the senate tariff investigating committee, William S. Culbertson, minister to Rumania and former tariff commissioner, declared he had been subjected to attack before the committee because he refused to support charges against President Coolidge made in the senate by Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska.

He declared his personal letters and papers were inserted in the public record because he had declined to subscribe to the Norris contention that the president attempted to influence former Commissioner Lewis in his official acts by asking for an undated resignation before reappointing him.

"It was heralded to the country that the theory of Senator Norris was proved by my memoranda," Mr. Culbertson added, "the public was led to believe I had made a backdoor handout to a senator to prove the theory. My memoranda advanced an entirely different theory.

"No one apparently noted the fact that I stated in the memoranda that the president desired to be free to make appointments after the election (of 1924) and that he desired to use the appointment for trading purposes if the democrats attempted to hold up other appointments."

Declaring he was summoned from Rumania solely to prove Senator Norris' theory, Mr. Culbertson declared that when he failed to do so he was attacked.

"Who attacked you?" asked Senator La Follette, republican, Wisconsin.

"You did, senator," replied the witness, "you produced that 'affectionately yours' letter from Bucharest, which I wrote to Mr. Costigan as a personal friend and it was never intended as a public document."

"It dealt with the public business, didn't it? Wasn't it an opinion on a presidential appointment?" asked Senator La Follette.

"Yes, but it was of an intimate nature and was not intended as a public document," replied Culbertson. "If I did not deny that I did not authorize the public use of my private papers I would be left in the position of sneaker or fool and of attacking the person under whom I serve. It has left the impression that I left the papers behind to be used against the president."

SCANDINAVIAN INTRODUCES "PSYCHOLOGICAL SPOTLIGHT"

CULVER CITY, Cal., May 24—(AP)—The "psychological spotlight" has been introduced in American motion pictures by Mauritz Stiller, Scandinavian director now at work here.

The trick is in focusing the attention of the spectator on principals even when seen in a large crowd of "extras." Stiller achieves his result by no special lighting effect. It is accomplished in part by differences of make-up or dress, on the same theory that when a magician holds up a number of cards, all black but one, the red card invariably holds the attention of the audience.

Thousands of women at the changing time of life are in danger of high blood pressure. It is caused by poisonous waste matter accumulating in the system or the weakening of one or more organs. This forces the heart to do more work and raises blood pressure.

The symptoms are dizziness, shortness of breath, head pains, flushed face, nervousness or sleeplessness. High blood pressure must be treated and stopped for everyone knows it brings on Bright's disease, apoplexy and often sudden death. It is too dangerous and quick acting to go without heeding its symptoms.

Norma is a doctor's prescription for high blood pressure that has been used with great success.

Being a purely vegetable medicine it contains no habit forming drugs, is harmless, and works in such a way that it drives out waste matter, lessens the duty of the over-taxed heart and reduces blood pressure swiftly and safely. Often one bottle brings great relief. Get a bottle of Norma today and free yourself of life shortening high blood pressure.

SUSIE AND HER BOY FRIEND TAKE IN TWO ATHLETIC EVENTS OVER WEEK END

Susie and the Boy Friend take in two of Norwich's most preminent sport events of the week end, the Bulkeley-Academy game at the Campus and the Tilden tennis exhibition at the Norwich Golf club. Susie writes as follows:

Dear Sports Ed.:

During the last coupla weeks I been to golf matches, baseball games and tennis matches so much that I'm gettin' dizzy and all balled up in my old bean. I got so I don't know whether a "sluice into the rough" is a foul ball in a baseball match or a hit out of the lot in a tennis game. Gosh I gotta stick to one sport or I ain't goin' to know nothing about sports nohow. First I goes in a golf's matches and near gets newmonia and then I goes to a ball games and pretty near gets a busted limb and I don't know which is worst.

Gee Ed. ain't you proud of them 'Cademy boys for lickin' Bulkeley like they did. Gosh I ain't been able to speak above a wisper since the third inning of that game. Oh boy them kids is just grand specially that Jarvis feller what throws the balls for them Bulkeley fellers to hit only they don't hit for some reason which I don't know. Say can't that nice quiet feller on third base, Yerrington his name is, hit that old ball a mile. He don't say much with his tongue, he sure did tell Bulkeley something with that bat of his. Every time that Bulkeley feller throw a ball at him he hit it back and there wern't none of the New London guys what was stoppin' it either. Then that good lookin' feller what played stop short, the feller with the Irish name, Tom Barry somebody said it was. My but don't that kid cover a lotta ground and them Bulkeley fellers couldn't hit no balls by him. They didn't have no better getter gettin' 'em by that feller what plays second base. There's a kid what I'd like to know 'cause he looks like a regular feller and besides I'm strong for them decided blondes. Say Ed. ain't that 'Cademy coach a nervous little cuss. I see him pacin' 'round there like he couldn't sit down cause the bench was hot. He oughta get a lotta credit for coachin' them kids into a regular baseball team.

Gosh didn't you most pass out when them bleechers caved in? Maybe I didn't get some thrill outa that collapsity. Sure, I was in them bleechers with the boy friend but a lotta good he was when the crash come, he didn't do nothin' to save me from no broken bones. All he did was to holler and then run away, leavin' me sittin' on the ground tryin' to feel if I was all together or had I lost a couple legs and arms. Somebody said them was knock-down bleechers and I says you is wrong, them is fall down bleechers. You know I was settin' on the top seat in them things when all of a sudden I hears something breakin' and I stands up. The stands start chimmyin' and then starts to go slow like the Boston Store elevator and everybody is hollerin' and the first thing I know I is sittin' on the ground back in the lot somewhere's. I looks 'round but nobody seems hurted only one girl who throws a faint. Say they out not to let the faint hearted girls sit in no bleechers. Gosh it was lucky nobody don't get hurted but even then I didn't see nobody running away and they all stays and see the game.

The only thing what I don't like about that game was when that big fat feller from New London kept runnin' out. If he wanted to play why didn't they give him a suit and let him play but I suppose he don't know no beter. Didja go up to the celebration after the game. Say you oughta been there, everybody was makin' speeches but nobody don't say nothin' only they was glad they winned which was plenty 'cause everybody said that.

Sunday the boy friend and me goes down to them tennis matches what is put on by that actor-player feller Tilden. Gosh ain't he a long drink of water though and his head is a long ways from his feets. But outsider that he can play that outdoor pingpong. I don't know nothin' about tennis and I ain't learned nothin' much about it either. All I knows about the game is one feller hits the ball over something that looks like a fish net hung out to dry and the other feller hits the ball back at him and a feller what's got a bleecher all to himself says love 15 and love this and that till I don't know who's lovin' who. When the feller says "love 15" the first time I says to the boy "thats too many to love at one time." The boy ashs me in silence and I knows I has pulled another boner. I asks the boy what love means and he says "Love means nothing". By gosh the kid is right. I seen a lotta love what don't mean nothin' to nobody, that's why there's so many divorces and second honeymoons. If love mean somethin' to everybody this old world would be a whale of a place to live. But enough I'm gettin' away from the tennis matches, that love stuff has got me feelin' kind of mushy. What I noticed at them tennis matches is that there wern't no more cheerin' than there is at a buryin'. I don't like them games where you can't get up and give a real old fashioned cheer oncet in a while.

Everybody said that Tilden feller won the matches so I guess he did. Right here I want to say I saw that Tilden feller in a show once and I here to write that he's a lot better tennis player than he is a actor.

Well Ed. I didn't get much kick outa that tennis matches but I suppose its cause I don't know how to play. The boy says he's going teach me all about that tennis and love stuff but I don't wanta learn nothin' more about love 'cause I got my hands full now and besides I rather pick it myself than be taught, they say that experience is a great teacher.

Well so long Ed.

Yours as ever,

SUSIE.

MACKENZIE TURNS IN FEATURE IN BRITISH GOLF

MUIRFIELD, Scotland, May 24.—(AP)—A youthful golfer from the capital of the United States, Roland MacKenzie, was the hero today among the American golfers in the first day's play of the British Amateur championships. Although three other members of the American Walker cup team gained victory with little difficulty, it was the match of the Washingtonian that was the talk of the clubhouse. He started out to beat his opponent, W. J. Guild, of Murray Field, from the first tee, and won, 3 and 2.

The other American winners were Francis Ouimet of Boston, who defeated Frank Williamson, of Carlyle, 7 and 6; George Von Elm, of Los Angeles, who won from Russell Boyack, of Baberton 4 and 3, and Jesse Guilford of Boston, who defeated Jay Birnie, 2 and 1.

A heavy toll among the other Americans was taken today, and one of the surprises was the defeat of Cyril Tolley, the British star who had been looked to by his countrymen, to regain his title as amateur champion. he was defeated by A. R. Hall-Caine, 4 and 3.

Among the Americans who went down to defeat was Alfred C. Ulmer, of Jacksonville, Fla. He succumbed to a worthy opponent, Roger Wethered, former British Amateur champion, who finished one up. Although he was defeated on the last green, Ulmer showed tremendous fighting power against the ex-champion. Others of the overseas players who were eliminated were Everett Brooks, of Missouri, and W. C. Fownes, of Pittsburgh. James W. Spratt and William J. O'Brien, both of Florida, scratched.

Young MacKenzie had in Guild an opponent of no mean ability, for he is known as one of the deadliest putters in Scotland. Although it was MacKenzie's first appearance in championship competition in Great Britain, he showed no signs of nervousness, and gave Guild little quarter, for he was 5 up at the turn, with the low score of 33. His homeward journey was an equally good one, his score for the seven holes being 30. The outward journey over the Muirfield course covers the longest hole.

Neither Ouimet nor Von Elm was forced to his best pace to win. Although Von Elm had difficulty in getting started, being behind through the first nine holes, his play improved considerably on the way home, so that he was able to win, 4 and 3. Ouimet was not in his usual effective form with the putter. Guilford gave an exhibition of good steady golf in his match with Birnie. On the outward journey he did not lose a hole.

Robert A. Gardner, captain of the Walker cup team, Jess Sweetser and Bobby Jones, will make their debut in the tournament tomorrow.

WALKER SAYS HE WAS "OVERTRAINED" FOR LATZO

RUMSON, N. J., May 24.—(AP)—Predicting that he will be back on the welterweight throne before the end of the year, Mickey Walker, who lost the 147-pound crown to Pete Latzo in Scranton, Pa., last week, today attributed his unexpected defeat to being "overtrained."

"I had been out of the ring eight months when I took on Latzo, and I pushed myself too hard to get in tip-top condition," said the former champion. "The stories about Broadway life undermining my vigor are untrue and unfair to me. I put in six hard weeks' training for the match and was on edge too soon to be right. I have had the experience before. This is not the first time I have had bad luck, but those who are panning me now will have another tale to tell later on.

"I have my youth and strength yet in five or six month's I'll be up there again. The Pennsylvania commission has promised me a return fight, and this upset isn't going to worry me."

Walker's confidence was shared by his mother, who has assisted in training him for important matches ever since he was a preliminary fighter.

"Long absence from the ring and local popularity of Latzo beat Mickey," she said.

"New Jersey fans who saw the fight claimed that Mickey won at least five of the rounds, with three for Latzo and two even. Mickey will regain the championship inside of six months," was her closing conviction.

Taftville Sluggers Win

As the Paramounts were not on the field of play, the Sluggers were forced to play Tucker's All-Stars in which the Sluggers were victorious by a score of 10-5 in a heavy hitting game. L. Paul featured in the mound and Young Walter Szdlo featured in the outfield with a shoe string catch which resulted in a double play.

Everready Win

The Everreadys of Taftville defeated the Baltic Sluggers Saturday afternoon, to the tune of 8 to 2 and they also won from Cardinals 8 to 3 on Sunday afternoon on the Providence street grounds. The battery for the winners was Wilfred Fancher, pitch, and Lawrence Gladue, catch.

FIVE EASTERN TEAMS TO BATTLE FOR POLO TITLE

NEW YORK, May 24.—(AP)—Rivalry for the eastern intercollegiate polo championship this year will be confined to five eastern teams, with Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Army and Pennsylvania Military college drawing their mallets in quest of the title on June 19 at the Westchester Biltmore club, Rye, N. Y.

The anticipated invasion of a team from the middle west failed to develop when entries were closed today with an expected blank from Ohio state, Norwich and Cornell, aspirants for the title in other years, also found it unpossible to compete.

BASEBALL FIELD DAY TO BE HELD AT ACADEMY CAMPUS THIS AFTERNOON

At the Academy Campus this afternoon the faculty, varsity baseball team and the students engage in a real baseball field day. Many events are scheduled for the afternoon's entertainment which will include baseball for the male members of the faculty and as well as for the members of the fair sex.

The afternoon's programme will open with a baseball game between the young women members of the faculty and a girls' team chosen from the students. This is the first ball game at the Academy Campus in which members of the fairer sex have engaged as active participants. This contest should be one worth witnessing and there is every possibility that the young women players may give their brother players a few fine points about the game.

Then follows the clash between the faculty and the varsity. This game will furnish some mighty good baseball for on the faculty team will be a number of former college players. For the faculty Earle E. Brigham, former C. A. C. player, will do the hurling and Court Whitney, former Middlebury luminary, will do the catching. Covering the first sack will be Henry "Pop" Tirrell, a former Wesleyan player and a member of the famous Tirrell battery that created such a sensation in college baseball a number of years ago. Principal Tirrell was a catcher and was sought by professional baseball, Bill Gallagher will also play, as will Johnny Williams. The remainder of the faculty lineup is not announced until just before game time. This game will be a case of wisdom versus flaming youth.

Following the two games there will be throwing contests for distance and accuracy, circling the bases against time, fungo hitting and a number of other events in baseball.

Prizes have been donated for the events and will be awarded to the winners after the completion of the contests. The whole arrangement is a novel innovation at the Academy and will tend to stimulate a large amount of interest at the school and among the townspeople. The first event is scheduled for 2 o'clock.

ACADEMY TEAM GUESTS OF BREED THEATRE

TILDEN BEATS CHAPIN IN FINE TENNIS MATCH AT NORWICH GOLF CLUB

One of the most brilliant and sparkling tennis matches ever seen in Norwich was played at the Norwich Golf club Monday afternoon when William T. Tilden, 2nd, national tennis champion, defeated Alfred H. Chapin Jr. of Springfield, 6-3, 6-3, 4-6, 6-3 and 6-4.

As the score indicates Tilden had no easy time with the Springfield boy who gave him a tough battle all the way. Chapin played a stiff game of tennis and gave the champion a busy afternoon forcing him to extend himself to win the match which went to five sets.

The first and second sets were fairly easy for Tilden although Chapin took a love game from the champion in the first set. Tilden played easily and kept Chapin working hard to return his back court drives. In the third set Chapin displayed that he is one of the coming players of the country when he took the set from Tilden 4-6. Chapin's stroking in this set was fully as good as the champion's and his placements baffled Tilden several times and were out of Tilden's reach.

The fourth set was the feature set of the afternoon both Tilden and Chapin playing championship tennis in which the Springfield player had a slight edge on Tilden in the game at the net and also put up a brilliant game in the back court. The wind bothered both players to some extent although it was not as bad as on Sunday. Tilden took the first two games but Chapin came back strong and took the next three but Tilden was the fresher of the two in the next game and made it 4 all. Tilden also took the fifth game but Chapin evened the match and took the next making it 6-5. Tilden who was showing the strain again evened the match but Chapin ran through the next two games and took the set evening the match at two all.

Tilden started strong in the final set taking the first two games before Chapin had really recovered from the tiring work of the previous set. Resting through the first two games Chapin suddenly started a strong attack that Tilden could not smother and Chapin evened the set. Tilden again took the lead by one game but Chapin again evened the set. Tilden took the next two games and Chapin made it 5-4 but the champion took the other set and match.

This match was by far superior to the Sunday matches and those who saw it were treated to many of the tennis thrills. Sharp volleying featured the games from time to time by Tilden's superior knowledge of the game which was too much for the brilliant youngster who had played a smashing game all through the match.

The gallery in today's match numbered several hundred.

That the Norwich Golf club was honored by the presence of such tennis players as Tilden, Chapin and Jones is due to the untiring efforts of the tennis committee of the club of which James A. Roantree is chairman. This committee, all enthusiastic tennis players themselves, by their efforts have brought the local club in state and national prominence and have advanced the tennis interests in Norwich a hundred fold. Tennis was practically a dead issue in Norwich a few members of the club undertook to bring back this sport and their efforts have been rewarded as can be seen by the playing of the national stars at the local courts.

NEW LONDON JOURNEYMEN PLUMBERS GET THEIR $1.15, BUT NOTHING MORE

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 24.—There will be no strike of the journeymen plumbers, contrary to expectations, for the masters and journeymen effected a compromise this morning and as a result all of the journeymen were at their employment today. The journeymen will receive their request of an increase in wages of 15 cents per hour, bringing their hourly working wage to $1.15, but they will not receive any of the other requests, such as would have affected overtime, also pay for half a day when they worked but an hour. The masters also made it plain that in the future and whenever any change in the working schedule was desired the journeymen must give such notice 90 days in advance of the date which the new schedule is desired to become operative.

AHRENS FIRE PUMPER DUE FOR TEST WEDNESDAY

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 24.—The underwriters' test of the new Ahrens fire pumper, which was recently delivered to the city and which will be used by the Pequot Hose company, will probably take place Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock on the municipal pier. At least that is the plan of Chief Thomas Shipman at present. The truck was taken from a box car in the union station yard of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad this afternoon and operated to fire headquarters. Tomorrow the pumper will be put into proper working condition and by Wednesday it is believed the apparatus will be ready for the official test prior to its being accepted by the city and made a part of the city's fire-fighting equipment. The pumper is the first of its kind to be purchased by the city, all of the other apparatus being either Seagraves or La France make. The pumper is of great size and has been inspected by many members of the department since it reached here last week.

ANCTIL'S CASE CONTINUED TO TUESDAY MORNING

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 24.—Max Anctil Montville, who was taken into custody, charged with manslaughter, Saturday afternoon by State Police Officer Bernard Menerson, of Groton barracks, following the automobile that he was driving fatally injuring John R. Vallett, 78, late of Uncasville, was before Justice of the Peace William Smiddy, Montville, this morning. The hearing was deferred to Tuesday morning, at 10 o'clock. Anctil is being held without bail. Since the accident it has been revealed that the automobile was the property of Anctil's brother and that it was taken without the consent or knowledge of the owner. Neither did the driver possess an operator's license.

Mildred McTough would seem to be living up to her name. She was taken into custody about 3 o'clock this morning when seen on Bank street by Sergeant Murphy and Patrolman Foley and was questioned. Then it was learned that she had been the companion of sailors and that her conduct was not what the officers believed should be, the deportment of a girl of her age, about 18. Further investigation disclosed that the girl was wayward and that she was guilty of lascivious conduct. The case was one that was difficult to handle that injustice might not be done. The girl's father was in court. He is a hard worker, but has been annoyed by the conduct of his daughter. Naturally he has tired of that and seeks a remedy at the hands of the law, in that the good offices of the authorities may be exercised to bring the girl to a realization of her danger and that she may be induced to turn to the right. Prosecutor Hollandersky investigated the situation and his conclusion was that if the girl had intentions of proper living she should have the chance to follow the advice of her parents and keep away from companions who are not such as she should have. He represented to the court that he was disposed to give the girl one more chance and recommended that she should be committed to the Florence Crittenton Mission at Hartford and that the execution of judgment be suspended during a period of a year, for the girl to manifest her intention of reforming. That action was taken by Judge Prince who made plain to the girl what was expected of her.

Josh Hubbard and Robert E. Lee, both colored, the latter from Gales Ferry, indulged freely in liquor while they were out for a good time, with the result that they got mixed up in an alleged financial matter and one accused the other of having taken money without right. Hubbard claimed that Lee had a pistol and that in a scrimmage there was likelihood that he would use it. When the men were taken into custody no revolver was found, so the conclusion was reached that there was no pistol in the case. The men today admitted, when charged with a breach of the peace, that they were good friends and that the talk of robbery and pistols was the outcome of their drunken spree. Hubbard said he was employed on a vessel and that he desired to go back to the boat and lead a proper life. He was given that opportunity and judgment was suspended in each case.

John Higgins was charged with a breach of the peace for he had created a disturbance at his home. He had hired an attorney to present him in court and the lawyer was necessarily detained by other cases today, so John asked for and was allowed a continuance of the case for a week. He gave a bond of $50 for appearance then.

There were seven drunks to respond when called upon to plead. They all acknowledged that they had been indulging in liquor so freely that they became and were found intoxicated. They were of all degrees of offensiveness and were disciplined accordingly. The accused were young and old, but they were all of the male sex. Some of the accused had been arrested and prosecuted within a short time and then they were shown leniency. Today they did not get the same sort of treatment.

In court today, Maurice Sinclair, whose home is in York street, New Haven, was disclosed as an offender of an unusual sort. He is a deaf mute and travelled to New London by automobile, pretending to be and actually was a pedlar of post cards and needles. His physical infirmity was an advertisement of value, for it elicited sympathy for him and helped him to get rid of his stock. If Maurice had stuck to legitimate ways of carrying on his business his affliction would have served him very well. But he didn't do that. He went about from house to house and when he reached Perry street he encountered at a residence there a girl of about eight. This little midget Sinclair took liberties with, inducing her friendship by means of pennies given to her. The child told her mother what had happened when she sought the rearrangement of her clothing and the mother hot-footed it for an officer. She found Policeman Wells and he soon had Sinclair in custody, locking him up and keeping him in custody till the police court convened this morning when Sinclair was prosecuted for assaulting the child. Though the little girl and her mother were in court as was the wife of Sinclair, he assumed an air of innocence and made the plea that he was not guilty. Prosecutor Hollandersky had the facts to present to the court, but gave Sinclair a chance to withdraw his plea and admit his guilt, but he had to threaten to send him to jail unless he told the truth. Sinclair promptly weakened and owned up to what he had done. The court then fined him $25 to give him a chance to pay and escape jail. He raised the money and settled.

Aaron Haynes of Waterford; Mrs. John Angeles, 3 West Pleasant street; John Maine, Waterford; Morris Couch Groton; Peter Smith, New York; Mrs. Sybil Hubbard, 8 Home street; Mrs. Irving Harrison and infant daughter, 89 Rosemary street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were dismissed today.

Fred W. Bruce, 75, retired merchant, died late Saturday at his residence, Colt street, after a lingering illness following two shocks suffered over two years ago. He is survived by his wife and a son, Bertram Bruce, of this city. Mr. Bruce was in business a number of years, at one time being established in the Neptune building State street, and later on Bank street, and in which place he was located when he was stricken by a shock.

Thomas M. McLaughlin, 69, died Sunday at his residence, 24 Robinson street, death terminating a long illness following his having suffered a fractured arm and fractured shoulder at different times. He is survived by his wife and two sons, John and Thomas M. McLaughlin, Jr. Mr. McLaughlin was a machinist and for many years was employed by the Whiton Machine company. He was a charter member of F. L. Allen Hook and Ladder company and was one of the oldest members of Seaside council, Knights of Columbus.

Frank J. Alexander has sold to Ethel L. Grieb a house and lot on South bedyard street.

Fred N. Elliott has sold to Ella D Moran a house and lot on Raymond street.

Malcolm M. Scott, paying teller in the employ of the Union Bank & Trust company, resumed his duties today after his vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wuest, of Hart-ford, spent today in New London, their visit here being to close a deal for the purchase of a summer cottage in Waterford. Mr. Wuest was formerly proprietor of a bakery shop in New London and served two terms as alderman under the former municipal form of government.

Another gang of drunks will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning for this evening there were eight awaiting presentation before Judge S. Victor Prince. Three of the drunks are also charged with breach of the peace for they engaged in a fight with Raymond Bailey on Railroad avenue and were taken into custody on complaint of Bailey by Motorcycle Officer George McCaskey and Patrolmen William Corcoran and Henry Sylvia. The three, they claim, reside in Providence and were on their way to Fishers Island where they had obtained employment when they became involved in the street brawl.

It is just four weeks ago today that William Shragowitz, 837 Bank street, married and employed as an insurance agent, mysteriously disappeared from his home. Not since his car was found abandoned at Ocean Beach, has any trace of the insurance man been obtained by either the police or his relatives. The day Shragowitz disappeared he was seen during the afternoon about the city, but after 5:30 o'clock all trace of him was lost. His automobile was found the day following his disappearance, just off Bentley avenue. His coat was in the machine and in the pockets was found two checks, one of them for $144 and endorsed by Shragowitz, indicating that he intended to cash it. Relatives and friends have made a diligent and systematic search for the missing man, as have the police, the latter causing postal cards to be sent to numerous police departments and giving a minute description of Shragowitz but not the slightest tidings of the missing man was obtained.

Earl Faulkner, submarine base, was before Judge Cornelius Costello, in Groton town court this morning on charges of violation of the automobile law in operating his car without having a license, also with non-support. On the first charge and for which he was arrested last week by State Police Officer Arthur Whitmarsh, a fine of $3 and costs, the latter amounting to $12.40 was imposed. Faulkner did not have the funds to pay and he was granted 24 hours in which to do so. On the non-support charge the case was continued a week.

The continued case of Arthur Perry, West Mystic, charged with operating a motor vehicle without having a license, was disposed of, Perry being fined $3 and costs, the latter amounting to $5.20.

Cydge G. Maione, of New London, charged with operating a motor vehicle without having a license, was fined $3 and costs, the latter amounting to $12.30.

The working day of the employes of the Max Pollack & Co., thread mill, Poquonoc road, Groton, has been reduced from five and one-half days to five days each week, due to a lack of orders. About 100 hands are affected, but, it is believed, that the mill will resume full schedule within a few weeks.

Miss Jennie M. Rogers, daughter of the late Alonzo B. and Jennie V. Rogers, died Sunday night at her residence, Great Neck, Waterford, as the result of a shock suffered about a week ago. Nathan Rogers, a brother and with whom Miss Rogers resided, is her only survivor. Miss Rogers was born in Waterford and had resided there her entire life. She was a member of the Waterford Seventh day Baptist church.

Mrs. Lillian Palmer Parks, 59, wife of James J. Parks, and a former resident of New London, died Saturday at her home in Baltimore, Md. She was the daughter of the late Almond B. and Susan Palmer. Besides her husband, Mrs. Parks is survived by a brother, Roy R. Palmer, 32 Pacific street, this city, and a sister, Mrs. Effie Bishop, of Boston.

Nine cases, all for violation of the automobile law were presented in the Waterford town court late this afternoon. Joseph Rosatta, charged with speeding was fined $10 and costs. George Scheller, speeding, was fined $10 and costs. Joan Delopsom, failure to possess operator's license, fined $3 and costs; Earl Frink, speeding, fined $10 and costs. G. W. Phillips, speeding, fined $10 and costs. Henry Storer, speeding, failed to appear and his bond of $25 was called. Lieut. Edward Sparrow, speeding, had his case continued a week. Charles W. Freeland, speeding, fined $10 and costs and Richard D. Donnell, charged with reckless driving, was fined $25 and costs.

E. G. BLACK GRANTED PERMISSION TO BUILD

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, May 24—The city council held an hour's session this evening. Black's application for a permit to erect a stone building on Fitch avenue for business purposes was granted. This is the permit to build to which some two-score of residents in the vicinity of Fitch avenue objected last week. The city manager reported that Mr. Black had complied with all the provisions of the building code and that therefore there was nothing for the council to do but to grant the permit to build. He said that Mr. Black was engaged in a business which he managed himself and did the work. The objection was because the section was regarded as purely residential by the people residing there. Mr. Holt said that Mr. Black intended to reside in the building with his family and that there was positively no objection to the erection of the structure he intended to build.

The ferry boat between New London and Groton has been off the line for repairs several days and the city manager reported that the cost of the same would be $4,705. He had authorized the Thames Towboat company to go ahead with the work as it must be done and the city and Groton were to pay the bill in the proportion of 75 per cent by New London and 25 per cent by Groton. The action of the city manager was approved.

Councilor Streeter was firm in a demand for an interim ordinance that would bring about zoning regulations and moved that the commission should bring in such an ordinance not later than two weeks hence. The motion was carried.

The city manager reported on cases in which liens had been removed from property on which they had been placed for sewer debts, this in justification of the action taken by the council a week ago. The report was made part of the record.

Charles Schall asked the council to take action in regard to the removal of bathhouses alleged to be on city property on Pequot avenue. He wrote that the matter had been before the council some time and pointed out that it was the duty of the council to take action. On motion of Councilor Whiton the letter was referred to the committee on public works.

The council was invited to review the parade on Memorial day and accepted the invitation.

There were 13 applications for building permits presented to the council, but most of them were for garages and the alteration of verandas. In the lot however, were requests for permission to erect four cottages in various parts of the city.

NEW LONDON SAILOR FINED, TRIED TO STEAL CAR

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, May 24—In the city court this morning Judge M. H. Geissler imposed a fine of $50 and costs on Louis Provencal, for attempting to steal the automobile of Fred Ashton of West Gloucester, R. I. Provencal is a member of the U. S. Coast Guard, stationed at New London, and is believed to have been under the influence of liquor when he climbed into Mr. Ashton's car and tried to start it. The car was parked in front of the Congregational church. Provencal was seen by a Putnam citizen who knew that the car did not belong to him and reported the matter to the police. His mother who lives at Worcester, has been notified and she is expected to be here tomorrow and pay the fine.

Acid Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"

Better than Soda

Hereafter, instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent bottles, any druggists.

Breed Theater

A new Norma Talmadge is delighting large audiences at the Breed theater this week. In fact, the famous motion picture star is not merely delighting but diverting spectators, for she had turned comedienne after so many years in dramatic orles.

David Belasco's favorite stage play has been picturized on a lavish scale by Joseph M. Schenck for First National.

U. S. Rubber Co. Insurance Plan

From office boy to president, every one of the 10,164 full time salaried employees of the United States Rubber company is now eligible for life and permanent disability insurance, under a group insurance plan which has just been approved by the board of directors of the company. The plan has been enthusiastically received by the employes and already nearly 855 per cent have applied for the insurance with a number of employes from outlying points still to be heard from.

By underwriting a substantial portion of the premium, the rubber company makes it possible for employees under 60 years of age to secure insurance which might otherwise be too expensive, or for physical reasons, impossible to obtain. The cost to employees is at the nominal rate of 15 cents a week for each $1,000 of insurance.

Salaried employees who have been three months or more in the service of the United States Rubber company and its subsidiaries, (excluding those in foreign service) are eligible for this insurance. No medical examinations are required.

The amount of insurance for which each employee is eligible, and the weekly cost, follow:

Salary	Amt. of Ins.	Cost of Emp.
$1,000 and under	$ 500	$ .08
Over $1,000 to $1,500 incl.	$ 1,000	$ .15
Over $1,500 to $2,000 incl.	$ 1,500	$ .23
Over $2,000 to $3,000 incl.	$ 2,000	$ .30
Over $3,000 to $4,000 incl.	$ 2,000	$ .45
Over $4,000 to $5,000 incl.	$ 4,000	$ .60
Over $5,000 to $7,499 incl.	$ 5,000	$ .75
$7,500 and over	$10,000	$1.50

Employees 60 to 64 years of age are eligible for $1,000 of insurance. Employes 65 years old and over, are eligible for $500 of insurance.

In the event of total permanent disability, resulting from bodily injuries or disease, before the insured employee attains the age of 60, no further premiums are collected, and the principal sum is paid to the insured.

In a letter announcing the plan to employees of the Rubber company, Charles B. Segar, president, says, in part:

"It affords me pleasure to extend the privilege of obtaining life insurance, with disability benefits and convenient method of premium payment, at a rate much lower than that obtainable by individuals. These and other attractive features are made possible by a contract under which the company underwrites a substantial portion of the premium."

Broadway Theater

It is the best picture I have ever made.

It isn't often that a motion picture director will say that of any of his productions, but it is the verdict of Edward Laemmle on his latest Universal-Jewell, The Still Alarm, which is now showing at the Broadway theater.

The Still Alarm is a dramatic, human story of a fireman, and the entire picture glorifies the American firefighter who works on small pay, risks his life almost daily, and does not, as do other public employes, depend on politics and pull to keep his position.

Laemmle believes it is his best picture to date, and says he has never produced a photoplay before which has given him so much personal satisfaction.

William Russell, Edward Hearn and John T. Murray play the roles of firemen in the picture. The rest of the cast includes Helene Chadwick in the feminine lead, Edna Marion, Dot Farley, Richard Travers and others.

Short subjects include a comedy and new Kinogram.

Broadway Theater

A year and a half of careful preparation and planning was spent by Samuel Goldwyn before actually putting into production his screen version of Stella Dallas, which comes to the Broadway theater starting Sunday. It is directed by Henry King and features an all-star cast of unusual brilliance. It is the first picture to be distributed by United Artists corporation under the affiliation of the Samuel Goldwyn units with that organization.

The titular role of Stella Dallas calls for one of the most difficult engagements ever attempted on the screen. It is a characterization of unusual emotional depth. Stella is a character we all know—a girl whose heart glows with romance, and a woman who fights a valiant but losing battle as her beauty fades.

Frances Marion devoted four months to the preparation of the scenario.

Henry King was not selected to direct Stella Dallas. He had read the book, knew that Samuel Goldwyn had the screen rights, and asked to be allowed the privilege of picturizing it. It is known that with but a few exceptions Henry King has clung to his ideal to only direct those pictures which he desires to do and on which he sets his heart.

Stella Dallas reaches the screen as a happy combination of a producer who had vision and faith in a great novel, a director known for his ability to handle themes of deep human sympathy, with a cast that is considered unsurpassed—both for appeal and ability.

Palace Theatre

"The Vanishing American," Zane Grey's latest and greatest story to be screened by Paramount, ever-shadows any similar exposition ever written and establishes a new high mark in motion picture production. It is gigantic in spirit and presentation.

The picture, which is the feature at the Palace theatre this week, presents one of the biggest and most vital themes concerned with the history and civilization of the United States. It holds a deep element of tragedy from the Indian viewpoint, showing him dispossessed gradually of his lands and shorn of his power by the white man's progress.

To build up the tremendous theme we are carried back to prehistoric times in spectacular scenes that are absorbingly interesting, showing how the Indians overcame the cliff-dwellers, and how, in turn, the coming of the Spaniards foretold the passing of the Indian.

Two years of preparation were put into this picture by the company that has given the picture-going public such productions as "The Ten Commandments," "The Covered Wagon" and "Peter Pan."

Richard Dix, Lois Wilson, Noah Beery and Malcolm McGregor are featured in the leading roles of the production, adapted for the screen by Lucien Hubbard. George B. Seitz, who made "Wild Horse Mesa," directed. Ethel Doherty wrote the screen play.

Commander Donald B. MacMillan has ordered from Swift & Company the meat products for his latest Arctic Expedition.

Commander MacMillan's scientific studies in the Polar Regions have brought him world-wide recognition.

The noted explorer realizes the necessity of having the best foods and supplies in order that members of his party may enjoy the good health necessary to carry on their labors.

In 1923 Swift & Company was proud to be called upon to furnish the supplies for the expedition.

In 1925 a repeat order for the Geographic Society trip was a satisfaction.

POETRY

Peter Pigeon

The pigeons dwell in Phalises; they mingle in the street;
They flutter at Victoria around the horses' feet;
They fly to meet the royal trains with many a loyal phrase
And strut to meet their sovereign on stripes of scarlet baize;
But Peter, Peter, Pigeon, salutes his cradle days.

The pigeons build in Bloomsbury; they rear their classic homes
Where redants clamber sable steps to search forgotten tomes;
They haunt Ionic capitals with learned lullabies
And each lumenta in anapaests and in iambics cries;
But Peter, Peter Pigeon, how sleepily he sighs!

The pigeons walk the Guildhall; they dress in civic taste
With ampitude of mayoral chain and aldermanic waist;
They bow their grey emphatic heads, their topknots rise and fall,
They cluster in the courtyard at their midday dinner call;
But Peter, Peter Pigeon, he nods beneath my shawl.

The pigeons brood in Battersea; while yet the dawn is dark
Their ready aubade ripples in the plane-trees round the park;
They light upon your balcony, a brave and comely band,
Till night-decays their coral feet, their voices grow low and bland;
But Peter, Peter Pigeon, his feet are in my hand.

—Helen Parry, Eden, in "Coal and Candlelight."

The Stars

They wait an day unseen by us, amidst;
Patient they bide behind the day's full glare;
And we, who watched the dawn when they were there,
Thought we had seen them in the day-light melt,
While the slow sun upon the earth-line knelt.
Because the teeming sky seemed void and bare.
When we explored it through the dazzled air,
We had not thought that there all day they dwelt.
Yet were they over us, alive and true,
In the vast shades far up above the blue,—
The brooding shades beyond our daylight ken,—
Serene and patient in their ceaseless light,
Ready to sparkle for our joy again,—
The eternal jewels of the short-lived night.

RISE IN STOCK PRICES

NEW YORK, May 24—(AP)—Stock prices made further recovery in today's market with the industrials assuming the leadership of the advance. Trading was moderately heavy in volume, the days sales aggregating 1,725,000 shares.

Bullish operations in the oil shares were stimulated by the announcement of another increase in gasoline prices by the Standard Oil company of New York, reports of record-breaking gasoline consumption merger rumors and the declaration or an initial dividend of $7 1-3 cents on the new $25. par stock of the South Penn Oil Company. Atlantic Refining was the leader in that group, soaring over five points to a new high record for the year at 123 3-8. Initial gains of a point or more also were recorded by General Asphalt, the Pan-American issues, and Tidewater.

Pool activity was apparent in many issues despite the relatively stiff call money rates. Marking up of the renewal rate to four per cent. was somewhat of a surprise in view of the huge excess of reserve shown in last Saturday's clearing house statement, but the official figure was shaded in the "outside market." The day's business news was largely constructive in character, considerable encouragement being derived from reports of a better demand for steel, and from the unusually favorable nature of the April railroad earnings statements.

Remington Typewriter rallied five points to 87 on the filing of a decree in favor of that company in a patent suit brought by it against the National Cash Register company. Among the score or so other issues to show net gains of 2 to 5 points were American Brake Shoe, California Packing, Dupont, General Electric, International Combustion Engineering, International Paper, Marine preferred, National Cash register, National Biscuit and Wilson company, new.

The prospect of valuable bus franchises being granted to local traction companies stimulated the demand for those shares. Interborough Rapid Transit was bid up nearly 3 points to a new high at 31 and Third Avenue and Brooklyn Manhattan Transit showed net gains of 2 1-3 and 1 1-2 points, respectively.

Stronger buying support also was apparent for such standard industrials as American Telephone, Baldwin Locomotive and U. S. Steel. Efforts of bear traders to unsettle the general list by renewing their attack on the motor shares met with little success.

Profit-taking sales checked the advance in the railroad shares. Atchison touched a new high for the year at 123 1-2 and then slipped back to 187 5-8, or 1 point net. Chesapeake and Ohio and New York Central also lost a point or so. The Southern Pacific reported net operating income of $2,631,681, an increase of $916,050 over the same month last year.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Brokers' loans reported by the Federal Reserve bank for the week ended May 19, showed a decrease of $7,585,000 under the week before.

Commodity prices moved within a narrow and irregular limit. Active wheat futures showed relatively little change although a firmer undertone was apparent as a result of unfavorable weather reports. A substantial decrease in the visible supply of cotton caused it to rise 11 points in quiet trading. Sugar prices were practically unchanged. Coffee advanced 10 to 17 points.

Foreign exchanges displayed a strong undertone with a rally of over 10 points to 3.37 1-2 cents in French francs as the feature, demand sterling held steady round $4.86.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, May 24 (AP)—Hot weather and urgent need of rain had much to do with strengthening the average price of wheat today. Profit-taking sales, however, caused some reaction in the late dealings. The wheat market closed irregular, at 2-4c net decline to an equal advance, with corn 1-4c to 3-4c down. Oats 1-4c off to a shade up, and provisions varying from 10c decline to a rise of 2c.

Reports of ill effects from high temperatures and dry weather in Oklahoma were the first to attract notice, as the new crop southwest is nearing the critical stage, and hot winds could do decided damage. Word or crop deterioration in northern Kansas tended further to induce buying, and there were also unfavorable advices at hand from parts of Nebraska.

Writing to Norwich friends from Juarez, Mexico, under date of Monday, May 17th, Harry W. Cardwell and his sister, Miss Alice M. Cardwell, are enthusiastic over their tour. They were then on their way from San Diego, Cal., to Denver. After over 10,000 miles of travel by ships and automobiles, they went aboard a train at San Diego for the first time since their 13 mile ride from Norwich to New London, Dec. 2th last.

The Salvation Army financial campaign to raise $4,500 for the purpose of carrying on the work of the army in this city during the ensuing twelve months, started off with a bang Monday evening when a get-together supper was held at the Central Baptist church. The supper, attended by 130 team captains and workers, was served at 6.30 o'clock in Bushnel chapel. The menu comprised clam chowder, crackers, pilot bread, rolls, coffee, cake (furnished by the women of Trinity M. E. church) and ice cream (donated by Charles C. Treat).

Rev. Edward C. Dunbar, pastor of the First Baptist church, said grace and at the close of the menu James L. Case addressed the workers, urging them to put on their best efforts to carry the campaign to a successful close. Earle G. Taggart, who is chairman of the campaign of the 1925 appeal committee, stated that he is sure the city of Norwich will support the campaign. He also said that right after the war the Salvation Army was promised by the citizens of America that in case they ever needed help the people would respond. Mr. Taggart urged all to remember this promise.

E. J. McCabe, director of the campaign, made a plea that the workers endeavor to get at least $5 subscriptions.

John J. O'Rourke and Louis M. Crandall were the song leaders for the supper and the programme featured song number by the members of the Lions club present and members of the Rotary club. Mr. Case created enthusiasm by having all sing "Pack Up Your Troubles" and "Smiles."

William A. Anderson was delegated to convey the thanks of the assemblage to the women who so kindly provided the supper. Following the supper the campaign workers put in a busy hour selecting the names of prospective contributors from the master list prepared for their perusal. The campaign will continue all week and the first report of contributions will be made Wednesday evening at a place and time to be announced by the campaign leaders.

The Salvation Army campaign office at headquarters, Cliff street, will be open during the entire week for capains and their workers who seek information or assistance in their work. Volunteer workers who are desirous of helping in the drave will be cordialy received. Mr. McCabe will be present to receive all visitors and friends of the Salvation Army during the entire week.

SCOUT PATROL LEADERS HAD INSTRUCTIVE POW-WOW

The patrol leaders representing the troops of Norwich council of the Boy Scouts returned Sunday night from the three-day pow-wow of the eastern Connecticut councils held at Camp Pioneer, Winsted, the Hartford Scout camp.

The Norwich delegation arrived at Camp Pioneer at 7 Friday evening and was immediately assigned to places. The camp had been set up beforehand and tents placed so that the tribal or troop system could be used to greatest advantage.

The patrol leaders taking part in the pow-wow numbered 89 and were divided into three tribes, the Mohawk, in charge of Scout Executive Fred C. Hill of Hartford; the Tunxis, in charge of Scout Executive Henry T. Fowler of Middletown, and the Nipmuc, in charge of Scout Executive Fred Bielefield of Norwich. Scouts attending represented Norwich, Hartford, Middlesex and New London councils.

After supper Friday evening the scouts were given time to get acquainted with their tent mates, and then attended campfire in a body. The campfire program was given over to songs and yells by the three tribes, and the slogan, "My Patrol-Outdoors" was chosen as a basis for the patrol leaders to work on.

Saturday morning all three tribes responded to the 5 o'clock hike call, and took a three-mile hike around the lake. Specimens of flowers and tree leaves were gathered on the hike and a number of song birds identified. In preparation for the nature study hike scheduled for 10 o'clock, each tribe was given general directions on conducting supervising and planning patrol hikes by the tribal chiefs, after which each tribe set off to study and identify plants and trees. At noon the tribes gathered on the baseball field, where each individual cooked a kabob, and each patrol made hike chowder. General supervision of the cooking was in charge of the tribal chiefs.

As the water was too cold in the afternoon for much swimming instruction, each tribe organized a baseball team, and the free time of the afternoon was given over to two games, the first between the Mowhawks and the Nipmucs, umpired by Scout Executive Fowler, and the second between the victorious Mohawks and Tunxis, umpired by Scout Executive Bielefield.

Saturday evening campfire was featured by the lighting of the fire by the friction-fire method, a short fire ceremony, and stunts by each patrol. After the stunts were over, several delegates were initiated into both the Ino and Siam clubs.

Sunday morning's program started with a tribal bird study hike. Twenty-eight different birds were seen and identified and the scouts were taught to know the calls and songs of the birds. After breakfast and tent inspection, the Catholic scouts were taken to Winsted to church while the others held a service at the camp council ring. After church each tribe went into the woods for collections, and brought back, labeled and set up collections of 74 different kinds of flowering plants and herbs, a collection of lizards, salamanders, frogs and snails, a small collection of fungi and mosses, and three snakes.

At Sunday dinner each of the patrol leaders expressed opinions on the conference as a whole, and all were unanimous in declaring that another pow-wow be held next year at another council camp, either at Norwich or Middletown.

The aim of the pow-wow, which was carried through, was to give each patrol leader a practical working knowledge of conducting his own patrol, how to plan and conduct hikes, inter-patrol contests, cooking demonstrations, and how to make collections of nature materials that will be the most instructive to his patrol. The instruction was given by the project method entirely, whereby each patrol is first given general instruction on how to do a thing, and then immediately puts that instruction into practice.

SENATE QUESTIONS POWER OF PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

Passed the King Resolution Directing the Judiciary Committee to Advise Whether the Executive New Prohibition Enforcement Order is Within the Power of the President—Measure Qualified by Senator Bingham's Amendment That the Inquiry Would Be to "Enable the Senate to Determine Whether Legislation is Advisable or Necessary"—Resolution Introduced in the House Calling on Congress to Request States to Hold Referendums on Prohibition.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—(AP)—Amid the growing uproar over President Coolidge's order authorizing state and local officials to act as federal prohibition agents, the white house today defended the action, and the senate unanimously directed its judiciary committee to investigate its legality.

These were outstanding developments in the latest prohibition controversy which also extended to the house of representatives where Representative Curry, republican, California, denounced the order in a fiery speech and Representative Hill, republican, Maryland, a leader of the wets, offered a resolution which would have the effect of nullifying the president's action.

An informal, but official white house pronouncement was that the president felt he had neither exceeded his authority nor invaded state rights, but was ready to modify his order should its operation lead to harmful consequences.

The senate resolution of inquiry, sponsored by Senator King, democrat, Utah was adopted after a prohibition field day in the senate during which the legality of the order was defended there for the first time and by a democrat, Walsh of Montana, an ardent dry and in the past a frequent critic of the administration.

There was no discussion on the resolution itself which went through without a record vote and with no opposition after it had been amended by Senator Bingham, republican, Connecticut, to set forth that the inquiry would be "to enable the senate to determine whether legislation is advisable or necessary."

Denouncing the order in the house, Representative Curry declared it was "unconstitutional, unjust, vicious, wrong, and contrary to the fundamental principles of American government." He also said the people of California would like it better if the treasury instead of first applying the order to their state, would apply it in New York or the president's own state, Massachusetts.

Representative Hill's resolution went over under the rules, but he announced that if the president's order were not revoked within a few days he would press for its adoption. It would prohibit employment of federal officers by states and state officers by the federal government and would require action by the senate.

During a senate post-mortem on the Pennsylvania republican primary and its relation to the prohibition question, Senator Reed, republican, of that state, said the people had shut their eyes and voted blindly wet or dry. He added that "as long as the people of Pennsylvania voted like a lot of dunderheads they deserve what they get."

"Oh, they were not dunderheads!" exclaimed Senator Bruce, democrat, Maryland, a leader of the senate wets as the galleries joined with senators in laughter.

With respect to the charge that the president's order constituted an invasion of state sovereignty, it was stated at the white house that the chief executive had not thought that this question could arise for the reason that the states not only had invited, but had commanded the national government to take concurrent jurisdiction with the states in the enforcement of the prohibition law.

This principle must be followed, Mr. Coolidge believes, so far as federal and state statutes permit and to the extent that working agreements between the federal and state officers may be voluntarily entered into.

It is not the intention of the administration, it was explained, that local officers given federal power are to have the right to ignore state lines in their enforcement work, nor is there intention to use the authority general over the country.

Opening the four hours of senate debate, Senator Walsh said he had no warrant to speak for the president and raised his voice only after waiting for some one on the republican side to do so. Replying directly to the charge yesterday by the leader of his party, Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, that the president's order constituted the usurpation of power, the Montana senator said he could not sit silent while that assertion was made.

The Montana senator was subjected to a cross-fire of questioning from both sides of the chamber, but insisted there was no inhibition in the constitution on the point and that the Volstead act prescribed the method of appointment of prohibition agents by the commissioner of internal revenue and the attorney general, both creatures of the president.

When Senator Walsh concluded, Senator Bruce launched into another long attack on the order during which he asserted that outside of "eight or ten senators there is not a real prohibitionist in the senate."

Commenting that prohibition field agents are not under civil service, the Marylander declared that they had been exempted because Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the anti-saloon league, "wanted to use these posts as patronage with which to bribe congress."

In the house, Representative Curry called attention that California had a very strict prohibition enforcement law and declared that "we are getting along very well, thank you, without the interference of unsolicited, uncon-stitutional supervisory power by a group bureaucrat from the state of New York," referring to Assistant Secretary Andrews, in charge of prohibition enforcement.

"If this is not repealed by the executive branch of the government," he said, "steps must be taken to throw it out, hook, line and sinker."

After Mr. Curry had spoken, General Andrews disclosed that Edward Green, prohibition administrator at San Francisco, was ready to confer federal power upon 14 deputy sheriffs in his territory while Administrator Robert Firth at Los Angeles was prepared to swear in three deputy sheriffs in that territory.

REQUESTED DRY ORDER ISSUED BY PRESIDENT

SAN FRANCISCO, May 25.—(AP)—Prohibition administrator for California, said today he had requested the president order empowering state peace officers to act as federal agents in the suppression of the manufacture and sale of liquor.

"The reason for the request was that near the county line between two adjacent counties a bad condition existed," Colonel Green declared in a statement. "Many foul and extremely unsanitary stills were in operation just east of the line in what we will call county B, and all of the product of these stills, which was rotted poison, was sold to the people just west of the line in county A.

"The county line, therefore, was a complete protection to the violators, nearly all of whom were deportable aliens. Both counties wanted the situation cleaned up, as it was not only a menace to public morals, but to public health, and they appealed to me.

"I then asked the Washington authorities if two or three of offices of county could be made federal agents for a short time without compensation, so that they could cross the county line and handle the situation. There were at the time no federal men available, and there was no other way to handle the situation.

"Such a ruling would aid enforcement in many like situations, and of course, would not be used except where there was some special need for it.

"It was found that the plan could be authorized only in case the president issued an executive order rescinding an old order issued in 1873 by President Grant, saying that county and state officers could not hold federal jobs at the same time which, of course, was to prevent the drawing of two separate salaries and did not apply at all to this situation.

"The president therefore issued an order authorizing the appointment at nominal salaries which would just simply give these county officers additional authority.

"It does not mean the appointment of more agents. It does not mean any more expense to anyone, and it does not mean any abuse of authority, unless you want to admit that your present sheriffs and deputy sheriffs are not men who can be trusted with a little additional authority.

"This order was issued simply to give much needed additional authority to county officers now in office and only in those localities where such a need existed and then only on request of the county officers concerned."

BILL FOR PROHIBITION REFERENDUM BY STATES

WASHINGTON, May 25.—(AP)—A resolution calling on congress to request the states to hold referendums on prohibition was introduced today by Representative Hill, republican, Maryland.

The resolution suggests that these two questions be submitted to the voters:

Shall there be modification of the Volstead act, and if so to what extent?

Shall the eighteenth amendment be modified or repealed?

The resolution would request the president to invite state authorities to submit the questions.

SQUABBLE OF TWO BARBERS HELPED $25,000 BANK HOLDUP

NEW YORK, May 25. — (AP) — A squabble between two Bronx barbers played a major part today in assuring the success of a $35,000 bank holdup.

As two messengers, one with the large amount of money wrapped in brown paper and the other with $4,000 in silver in two packages, left the Bronx branch of the Hamilton National bank, the gun with the more valuable bundle was felled from behind by a robber who jumped from an automobile. The robber escaped with his loot and the other messenger fled back into the bank.

A policeman usually stationed almost in front of the bank was absent at the time of the robbery and it developed that he had been called away not ten minutes before to answer a call for help almost a mile away.

It developed later, however, that the call to police had been telephoned in by Sam Forstenberg, a Featherbed lane barber, who had had an altercation with a fellow craftsman across the street. By the time the policeman arrived Forstenberg had "changed his mind," and had gone to see about swearing out a warrant. When the policeman got back to his post the robbery was all over and the money was gone.

A reward of $5,000 was offered by the insurance company with which the bank had a blanket policy.

Investigation by Police Commissioner McLaughlin revealed that David Swinton, the bank messenger who was felled by the robber is 60 years old and had never used a revolver "except in celebrating Christmas." Mr. McLaughlin said Swinton was not capable of making use of the revolver he carried to defend himself against the robber.

USED TALENT FOR ACTING IN DECEIVING WOMEN

PHILADELPHIA, May 25.—(AP)—The secret of his success in deceiving women in marriage and defrauding them of several hundred thousands of dollars, "Lord Beaverbrook," otherwise Herman Kreuger and Robert Whitman told the police today, was his talent for acting. Kreuger, who was arrested yesterday in connection with alleged swindles by which he had robbed numerous women of large amounts in jewelry and money, was free in telling of his exploits.

Kreuger, which the prisoner, with a dozen other aliases, said was his real name, lamended recent heavy losses in gambling. He declared he had secured all his life, but only professional gamblers had out-smarted him.

"I've fooled a lot of people," he said. "Quite a lot of them wanted to be fooled. Others thought they were fooling me. The gamblers were the only ones who really fooled me."

Kreuger was lodged in Moymensing prison without bail to await a hearing tomorrow. Police declared he essayed many roles, and usually was successful in marrying his victim within a few weeks, after which he disappeared with her valuables. His vanity, was his undoing for detectives knew of his fondness or tonsorial attention and watched the barbershops. He was arrested in the barbershop of a large hotel here.

SESSION OF NORTHERN BAPTIST CONVENTION

WASHINGTON, May 25.—(AP)—Outward harmony ruled the opening session of the northern Baptist convention today with no controversial subject coming up for discussion. Fundamentalists and modernists awaited the test of strength, expected tomorrow, on the question of admitting delegates from churches where immersion is not required for membership.

An indication of possible dissension was given, however, during the address of President John W. Million, of Des Moines college, Iowa, by the applause of the fundamentalists when he said "Simon pure Baptists everywhere today believe in a practice of immersion," and of the modernists when he declared: "We must be willing to have the basis of our faith checked up by scholarship. The best place to do this is out in the open at the university."

Dr. Million denounced the proposal to create a federal department of education as an attempt to "Prussianize the American intellect."

WILD TROLLEY CAR CAUSED PANIC AMONG PASSENGERS

BOSTON, May 25.—(AP)—A wild trolley car careened down a long steep grade into another car today, rammed it into a repair truck and caused a panic among the passengers, seven of whom received hospital treatment for their injuries. The crash alarmed hundreds in the neighborhood, and eager calls to the police brought three ambulances to the scene.

The accident happened at the foot of "Dead Man's Hill" on Commonwealth avenue in the Brighton district, where the truck was making repairs to the overhead trolley wires. The first car was halted when the other got beyond control and struck it. The vestibules of each car were smashed to kindling wood, and the first car was pushed askew along the roadbed, snapping off poles as it went.

The seven injured were taken to St. Elizabeth hospital, whence they were discharged after treatment.

Railroad Trainmen Seek Higher Time Wages

Locomotive Engineers Have Voted in Favor of a Movement For Increased Wages—Amount Undetermined

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 25.—(AP)—Through a referendum vote of its membership the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers has declared in favor of a movement for increased wages, A. Johnson, grand chief, announced here today.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen have taken the same action through a membership vote, D. B. Robertson, president of the firemen announced.

The general chairmen of the engineers on all roads in the United States and Canada will convene here June 2 to determine the procedure for presenting their demand, Johnson said. At the same time a sub-committee of the firemen's general chairmen will meet here, Robertson said.

"The sole purpose of calling the engineers general chairmen together is to determine further procedure in our request for a wage increase," Johnson said.

Neither Johnson nor Robertson would say how much of an increase would be asked. This must be determined by a committee, they said.

The conductors and trainmen already have made joint demands for higher wages, asking $1 a day increase. As the engineers and firemen will meet here at the same time, it is believed they will pool their interests and also join with the conductors and trainmen.

Independent of these four organizations the Switchmen's Union of North America also has asked for a wage increase and for a change in working conditions and rules. President Thomas C. Cashen, of Buffalo has announced.

It is understood that the four transportation brotherhoods are not asking any change in rules, confining their demands to a request for the restoration of wages to the war period basis.

FORMER PRESIDENT OF UKRAINE ASSASSINATED

PARIS, May 25.—(AP)—The spectacular career of General Simon Petlura, former president of the Ukrainian republic, recognized as such by the allies in March, 1919, and later beaten by the bolsheviki, came to an end tonight.

He died in the Charite hospital a few hours after he was shot down by a Ukrainian Jew, Samuel Schwartzbar, in the student quarter of Paris.

Petlura was walking in the Boulevard St. Michel when he was accosted by Schwartzbar, who shouted: "Dirty dog, defend yourself!" Then he fired a revolver, and when he was surrounded he did not resist arrest. The police saved him from attack by the large crowd.

Schwartzbar exulted over his deed, saying it was in revenge for the way in the Ukraine when he held power. In the Ukraine when he held power. He also denounced the anti-Semitic propaanda which he said Petlura published in his Ukrainian language newspaper in Paris, "The Trident."

"I killed an assassin," Schwartzbar cried. "He dishonored numerous families in Ukraine. He was our old executioner. I took justice in my own hands. I am willing to die for the Jews of Ukraine."

WOULD EXTEND TIME FOR VETS WAR RISK INSURANCE

WASHINGTON, May 25.—(AP)—World war veterans would be given another year in which to convert their war risk insurance under an amended senate bill passed today by the house. As approved by the senate the measure which now goes to conference provided for a six month extension.

The extension would date from July 2 next, when the present time for conversion expires.

Term insurance, issued druing the war at low premium rate, is convertible into a number of different policies, including ordinary life, 20 year endowment and 30 year paid-up.

The bill also would provide for a five year policy similar to term insurance but with a higher premium rate for veterans financially unable to pay premiums on the present type of converted policies. This point is not in dispute between the two houses.

Extension of the conversion period is favored by Director Hines of the veterans bureau.

RELEASE OF MOUNTAIN LAKE CAUSED DISASTER IN JAPAN

TOKYO, May 25.—(AP)—A mountain lake, released by an eruption from a long inactive volcano crater, caused the greater part of the death and destruction which followed yesterday's resumption of activity in Mount Tokachi, in central Hokkaido, northernmost of the principal islands of Japan.

Coolidge Welcomed Red Cross Conference

He Pronounced It An Intermediary For Peace and Friendly Cooperation of All Nations.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—(AP)—The Red Cross has provided a means by which the American people may express their spirit of consecration to peace and to the friendly cooperation of all nations, President Coolidge asserted today in an address welcoming the delegates to the Second Pan American Red Cross conference.

Speaking in Continental Memorial hall, the president described the Red Cross as "in the truest sense a popular organization", which "springs from the people," and said that in bringing about such discussions as provided for at the conference the delegates were holding before their respective peoples "new ideals which can not but have a wider and wider reaction."

"In recent years," he added, "there has been much discussion of international relations. And, indeed, the need for such discussion is apparent. The application of scientific discovery to communications, to transportation, to industry, has bound the countries of the world together to a degree our forefathers could never have anticipated.

"Social organization seldom keeps pace with human activity in science, industry and commerce. The very complexity of modern governmental problems is appalling to those who share the responsibility. In the face of these increasing problems of international intercourse, cooperation of the peoples of the world must rest on a broad and fundamental basis. Mutual understanding, sympathy and tolerance, must grow up among the peoples themselves and cannot be imposed upon them.

"The ills of humanity are common to all nations and afflict us all alike. The chief factors conditioning human life and happiness are still natural rather than social in their character. Our chief problem, and the universal dilemma of the race is that of perfecting our adaptation to our natural environment; of controlling the blind forces of nature to make them serve as instruments of human happiness; of circumventing the operation of natural causes destructive of our health, our vitality, or our lives. As mankind learns to devote its efforts to these tasks, rather than to futile and internecine strife, international relationships will become increasingly cooperative and less controversial."

NICKY ARNSTEIN ARRESTED AND RELEASED IN $5,000 BAIL

NEW YORK, May 25.—(AP) — The dust was shaken from an indictment six years old today and Jules (Nicky) Arnstein, again was arrested and released in $5,000 bail.

The indictment, which charges Arnstein with grand larceny and receiving stolen property, dates from Arnstein's first legal trouble, which in 1923 resulted in his being sentenced to two years in Leavenworth for participation in thefts of $1,500,000 in securities.

Arnstein, the husband of Fanny Brice, actress, was accused with "Nicky" Cohen as the master mind of the ring.

The indictment on which today's arrest was made charged Arnstein specifically with receiving $65,000 worth of Crucible steel stock stolen from Clarke, Childs and company in 1919.

Before his release in bail, which was furnished by a surety company, he issued a statement denying his guilt and said that district attorney was "just making a sucker out of me."

"BATHTUB GIRL" CLAIMS SHE WAS DRUNK BEFORE "STUNT"

As Witness in Perjury Trial of Earl Carroll, Joyce Hawley Declared She Had Been Unable to Collect the $700 or $1,000 She Was Promised For the Scene—Testified That an Associate of Carroll's Had Offered Her $350 If She Would Deny Before the Grand Jury That Liquor Was Served at the Party.

NEW YORK, May 25.—(AP)—Joyce Hawley, the "girl in a tub" at Earl Carroll's party told on the witness stand today how she was ushered into it, undraped, served drinks from it to male guests at the party and tried unsuccessfully to collect pay she said was promised to her.

Giving her age as seventeen, she said her name really was not Joyce Hawley but that she was Theresa Dauglas, born in Chicago, March 3, 1909.

Her story was substantially that she had been appearing as a model in a fashion show for a salary of $20 a week, meanwhile endeavoring to get a position as show girl in Earl Carroll's Vanities. While she testified she alternately was composed, then weeping, and again displaying signs of intense nervousness.

While appearing as a model, she said an employe of Carroll's saw her, admired her figure and a week before the party asked if she would do the "bath tub" stunt. She said she was promised $700 or $1,000.

She said that when she went to collect the money Chris Schaife, an associate of Carroll's offered her $350 if she would deny before the grand jury that liquor was served at the party.

Miss Hawley said she wanted the money because she had been ordered to appear before the grand jury that day and believed that she would need to hire an attorney.

She said that altogether she had four attorneys since instituting suit to collect damages from Carroll but did not know whether her case still was pending.

After Miss Hawley testified that she had become drunk at the party before going through with the bathtub scene she was asked if she felt bitter against Carroll.

"No," she replied, "but it wasn't a very nice thing for him to do."

Later under cross examination, she was asked considerable about her present work in a Broadway show where she does a simulation of the bath tub scene as a part of the night-ly performance.

She testified she had been in the show about three months.

"Didn't you get that contract as the result of the publicity you got from the Carroll party?" she was asked.

"Oh, I suppose so," she replied.

When asked whether she had posed for newspaper photographs showing her nude in a tub, she said she had posed at the insistence of the show's publicity agent, with draping on her which made her appear nude.

A question as to her salary brought a spirited tilt between her and Carroll's attorneys.

"You know all about me you need to know," she said, "and I won't tell you any more."

That ended her testimony for the day and the government rested its case.

Four defense witnesses called during the afternoon session denied that liquor was at the party and none was questioned about the bath tub episode.

Miss Hawley was escorted from the court room by a side door, thus avoiding hundreds of curious persons waiting for a glimpse of her in the corridor.

TO ASCERTAIN ARMAMENTS REQUIRED BY NATIONS

GENEVA, Switzerland, May 25.—(AP)—In preparation for the big international conference on the reduction of armaments, the first question which will be thrown at each country is: "So what extent can you lay down your arms?"

When the drafting committee of the preparatory commission on disarmament, which is trying to arrange the agenda for the international conference, made its complete report to a plenary public session of the commission tonight, the delegates discovered that everything was contingent on this question.

Each nation will be asked to state what amount of armaments it thinks it requires, calculated with reference to the degree of security existing at the time the conference meets. Each country must also give reasons to justify its claim for a particular quantity of armaments, whether it be naval, land or air.

In going over the list of questions upon which expert advice is sought the drafting committee registered its view that it was impracticable at this time to limit the ultimate war strength of countries, but affirmed that it was possible to limit land, sea, and air forces permanently maintained in peace time or capable of immediate use without preliminary mobilization measures.

In connection with the move definitely to abandon poison gas warfare, the committee requested the experts to consider what effective penalties could be proposed for enforcement of undertakings not to restore to gas and bacteria warfare.

Discussion of the committee's report will begin tomorrow.

VICTIM RECOGNIZED HERMIT AS CRIMINAL ASSAILANT

FREEHOLD, N. J., May 25.—(AP)—"That's the man, that's the man," was the cry of 13-year-old Rose Tarabashi, victim of a criminal assault last Thursday when Frank Lipschitz, 27, bearded hermit, living in the woods near Perrineville, approached her today wearing a long raincoat and black mask, and carrying a big club to re-enact the scene of the attack.

The girl was released from a Trenton hospital where she was treated for head injuries inflicted by the club and was taken to the scene of the attack by state troopers.

Lipschitz displayed no emotion whatever throughout the ordeal, remaining silent as the girl screamed accusations at him.

The girl's mother who had been left unguarded on her promise that she would not attack Lipschitz, leaned from the crowd, demanding his life, pleading "some man" in the group to "step up and kill him."

The police concluded the identification as quickly as possible and rushed Lipchitz to the Freehold jail in a state police car.

Fearing an attempt to break into the jail to get the man the authorities late today planned to remove Linchitz to some other secret place of confinement.

JURY CASES SETTLED IN SUPERIOR COURT TUESDAY

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, May 25—Several cases were disposed of at the short calendar session and assignment of cases in the Windham county superior court held in this city today with Judge Christopher L. Avery on the bench. The day was also designated as motion day for the restoration of cases to the docket.

Included in the short calendar cases heard was that of the Willimantic Lumber & Coal company vs. Rohde & Klanck, a hearing in default and damages. The defendant were not present nor represented. The only witness heard was Patrick J. Twomey, official on the firm, who related that his company was holding a note against the defendants. Judge Avery gave judgment for the plaintiff concern to recover the sum of $186.27.

Judgment for the plaintiff to recover on a series of notes with interest to the amount of $3,747.69 was given in the case of Alvah C. Wadsworth vs. George W. Webster, Jr., et als.

In the case of Emily O. Butler, executrix vs. Claude F. York, et al, foreclosure of mortgage and hearing on limitations Judge Avery gave judgment in the favor of the plaintiff to the amount of $522.25.

Only one of the five uncontested divorce cases listed was heard. It was that of Walter A. Franklin of Killingly. He charged that his wife deserted him 14 years ago. They were married in Coventry, R. I., January 1905 and two children were born to them, Hazel Franklin, 19 and Beulah, 17. The complainant claimed that after marriage they lived in Oneco for five years. He asserted that his wife drank heavily and stayed away from home on occasions until she finally left him. Franklin said tha he had seen his wife but a few times later and had known nothing of her whereabouts for several years past. Among witnesses who were heard was Franklin's employer for the past 17 years. He testified that the man had lived a model life to his knowledge. Judge Avery gave the decree of divorce on the grounds of desertion.

At this point court took a recess after which the jury panel was called with 31 of the 24 talesmen responding. A number were excused including: George E. Brick and George H. Burley of Windham.

The jurymen selected are: John Weaver of Brooklyn, George Holmes of Canterbury, Frank E. Platt and Alfred T. Hall of Chaplin, Fred Bowen of Westford, John Hammond and Byron Colvin of Hampton, George L. Upton and Fred L. Miller of Killingly, Edward M. Allen and Edward G. Ames of Plainfield, Alfred S. Bryden of Pomfret and Elmer Carter of Scotland.

The first jury case which came up for trial was that of Hester Rowsell et al vs. George F. Taylor, both of this city, which was finally settled out of court. Damages of $1,500 were asked for as the result of an automobile accident at the intersection of Prospect and Walnut streets here during the afternoon of October 10, 1925. The plaintiff claimed that an employe of the defendant, Wesley Bradley, recklessly and with negligence drove an automobile into a car which she was driving damaging the latter to considerable extent and that she suffered from a shock as a result of the accident.

It was noted during the outline of the case that Clarence Rowsell, husband of the plaintiff was also mentioned as a plaintiff. As he had not suffered any injury and held no interest in the car his name was dropped from the case on suggestion of Judge Avery.

With the conclusion of his testimony court took a recess for luncheon during which time the attorneys and parties interested in the case held a conference. The reopening of court was deferred until 2.40 o'clock when announcement was made that the case had been settled. Attorneys stated that the settlement was on the basis of $750 for the plaintiff.

Another jury case that of George C. Spalding vs. C. F. Colcord, both of Woodstock was taken up. The case is a suit for damages of $2,000 over the purchase of 39 cows by the plaintiff from the defendant on April 21, 1924, for $1,540. There was a cash payment of $200 and a note for $1,000 to be met July 1, 1924. It is set forth in the complaint that on May 23, 1924, the inspectors of the state department of domestic animals took action on the claim that the cows were not sold legally under the importation law and that the animals had been tested and found to be afflicted with bovine tuberculosis. The cows were condemned and taken from the plaintiff who alleged that by reason of having to pay the note in addition to the $200 cash payment he had suffered a severe loss.

George C. Spalding was the first witness called. He was examined at length by Attorney Charles Torrey for the defendant, relative to the payments made on the note.

The next witness called by Attorney Darbie for the plaintiff side was Geo. E. Cowin of Hartford, veterinary surgeon and deputy commissioner of domestic animals. Dr. Cowin told of the inspection of the cattle imported by Colcord and of having them ordered into quarantine. Attorney King, assisting Attorney Torrey raised several objections to the testimony of Dr. Cowin finally arriving at a "stickler" when he objected to the admittance of the records of the department showing that the cows were afflicted with tuberculosis as part of the testimony. The record consisted of a report of a veterinary surgeon assigned by the department to examine the animals. Neither the attorney nor the court was positive as to the validity of the legal point raised and after a study of the statutes which failed to give satisfactory information a decision on the objection was postponed until this Wednesday. Court adjourned at three o'clock, standard time until this Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock standard time when the case will be resumed.

Her uncle, John Monro of Stirling, Scotland, was detained a week on account of the recent strike in England. Mrs. Cossar started before the strike was ended, and was obliged to taxi nearly 300 miles at the cost of almost $100 to reach her sailing point. There was absolutely no freight on the boat, and the baggage of the passengers was put on by college men, protected by the crew being lined up so they would not be stoned. A friend of Mrs. Cossar's went to the railroad yard to ascertain when the next train would leave. She was told that a college man had started about two minutes before then to learn how to run the engine, so the time of starting was rather uncertain.

RARE YELLOW MOCCASINS BLOOMING DEEP IN SWAMP

(Special to the Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, May 25—The beautiful yellow moccasin flowers has but one habitat in all this part of the county, and that is very sparingly in McNicol's big cedar swamp. Of late, few people care to try the treacherous boggy surface or risk the real danger of becoming confused and possibly lost in its quest. Thirty years ago, a small colored girl came down the main street of the village. She was not above three feet high and was one of the many Frost pickaninnies who at that time, lived in Hopeville, three miles above the town. Clasped in her small fist, she proudly carried three of these rare and truly georgeous yellow and purple cipripediums. By the merest chance a local amateur, but very enthusiastic botanist, heard about the yellow slippers, that the little girl had to show. He followed her from street to street and finally located her in Finn's store. The color of a new dime and a ride up the road, paid for the information she gave about the flowers. Soule's Cedar swamp, now owned by Mr. McNicol, was the place. Next day two local flower lovers resolved to hunt the swamp.

After going in some distance, all sense of location seemed to vanish, the rank cedar growth, covered in long moss crowded everywhere, while the boggy floor left not the slightest trail. After more than two hours the hunters finally made solid land in the back yard of the Owen Clark house, just off the border of the swamp, a half mile from where they entered.
